Castro Blocks Agreement

U. S. To Renew Cuban Blockade, Air Watch

Quarantine Will Resume At Daybreak

Kennedy Cancels News Conference Scheduled Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced Wednesday night the naval arms quarantine of Cuba will be resumed at daybreak Thursday. Air surveillance of the Russian missile sites in Cuba also will begin again.

The decision was reached Wednesday night by President Kennedy after a conference with his top advisers and after the departure of United Nations Acting Secretary-General U Thant from an attempt to arrange U.N. verification of the dismantling of the bases. The attempt apparently was not successful.

Press secretary Pierre Salinger told newsmen he would not state precisely when aerial surveillance would begin. Like the naval blockade, it had been suspended for the period of U Thant's two-day visit to Cuba.

News Conference Canceled

The White House also announced that Kennedy has canceled a news conference which had been scheduled for Thursday afternoon. Salinger said it would be rescheduled when the Cuban situation is clarified.

In announcing that the reconnaissance operations will be resumed, Salinger told newsmen: "In the absence of effective U.N. arrangements, the hemisphere nations have the responsibility for continuing surveillance."

It was presumed that the safety of American fliers was the reason for Salinger's refusal to state precisely when the air reconnaissance would begin.

And despite the phrase "hemisphere nations" there was no indications that any planes other than United States ones would perform the aerial photography over the Soviet missile sites.

Salinger said he could not describe the scope of the blockade when it is resumed, but he left the impression that the same zones and interception rules would apply as were in effect Monday when the two-day suspension was ordered into effect.

Other Nations Consulted

Questioned whether the decision to resume the blockade and surveillance was made in consultation with Latin-American countries, Salinger said this government has been "in constant consultation" with the other republics of the hemisphere.

The press secretary, who had been giving "no comment" answers to most questions of newsmen for the past two days, was plainly relieved to be able to provide some solid news.

He made announcement of the resumption of the arms quarantine by recalling that on Monday the White House had announced that in response to a request from Thant, the quarantine would be suspended voluntarily by this government "for the period of his two-day visit."

Salinger added: "That voluntary suspension will end at daybreak. The quarantine will be resumed at that time."

Mrs. FDR Reported "Feeling Better"

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is "feeling better than she has been" but her condition still must be considered serious, a family spokesman said Wednesday.

The 78-year-old former First Lady was hospitalized Sept. 26 with a lung infection and anemia.

The spokesman denied published reports that Mrs. Roosevelt was expected to reach a "crisis" stage within the next two or three days.

Nehru Assumes Defense Post After Firing Menon

Indian Troops Battle To Hold Mountain Pass

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru, facing up to charges that V. K. Krishna Menon has bungled India's preparedness, ousted him as defense minister Wednesday night.

Nehru himself, almost 73, took over the key post with its urgent responsibility of staving off Red China's attacks on India's northern borders.

Though Menon's fall was cushioned by a new appointment as minister of defense production, the switch was an important victory for his critics at a time when the nation was bogged down in the crucial, undeclared war.

Almost simultaneously with the ouster, the United States announced it is airlifting weapons to India.

Light Weapons First

"We will be supplying types of equipment needed to meet the current Chinese Communist aggression—for example, light infantry weapons and ammunition, transport and communications equipment," a State Department spokesman said in Washington.

Delivery of the arms had been promised Monday by John Kenneth Galbraith, U.S. ambassador, in response to an appeal from Nehru.

Menon has fallen under increasing fire, in public demonstrations and among leaders of Nehru's Congress party, since the Red Chinese opened their offensive Oct. 20.

The Red Chinese have smashed through Indian forces, inadequately clothed and equipped, at 13 points along the northern border.

In the latest report on the border fighting, a Defense Ministry spokesman said Indian and Red Chinese forces exchanged fire at close quarters Tuesday at a key Himalayan pass leading to the most vulnerable invasion route to the plains of Assam State.

Menon Friendly With China

Menon, 65, has often shown friendship for the Red Chinese. He had turned to the Soviet Union for weapons and for what he had hoped would be a restraining influence on the Red Chinese. But the Soviet Union has endorsed the Red Chinese stand in the border dispute and called off arms shipments to India.

Now India has turned to the United States and Britain—two of the nations Menon irritated most in the United Nations—for the weapons it desperately needs to hold back Red Chinese advances. The British government, like the United States, is arranging to send help.

Thant Peace Mission Seen Unsuccessful

Fidel Apparently Balks At Admitting U. N. Inspectors

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Acting Secretary-General U Thant returned from his Cuban peace mission Thursday night and declared he was reliably informed all Soviet missiles would be dismantled by Friday and out of Cuba soon afterward.

The secretary-general, however, apparently had failed in his efforts to get Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro to agree to any form of U.N. inspection to verify the removal of the missiles.

Thant's chartered plane touched down at New York's Idlewild Airport at 8:48 p.m. EST amid developments which indicated the Cuban crisis had taken a critical turn.

In his airport statement Thant made no mention of his apparent rebuff by Castro. He stressed the dismantling of the Soviet missile bases and plans for withdrawal of the missiles.

Shortly before Thant's return, the White House announced that the naval arms quarantine of Cuba would be reinstated Thursday morning and that aerial surveillance of the Soviet missile sites in Cuba would start again.

Mikoyan Heads For Cuba

In what seemed to be another emergency move, the Soviet Union sent Anastas I. Mikoyan, first Soviet deputy premier, on a hurried trip to Cuba via London and New York. He is due in Havana Friday.

Thant described his talks in Havana as "fruitful." He said there was agreement that the United Nations should continue its efforts to reach a peaceful settlement of the Cuban problem.

Then he asserted:

"During my stay in Havana, I was reliably informed that the dismantling of the missiles and installations was already in progress and that this process should be completed by Friday — that is the day after tomorrow.

"Thereafter will come the shipment and return to the Soviet Union, arrangements for which are understood to be in hand."

Thant declined to answer questions from newsmen.

Advisers Also Return

Returning with the secretary-general from Havana were members of the U.N. Secretariat and military advisers who had intended to remain in Cuba as the nucleus of the proposed inspection team.

News that this group was coming back to New York was the first tipoff that Thant had run into a snag. There was no word of this in a U.N. communique issued at the end of Thant's second long talk with Castro, but it was regarded as significant that the communique made no mention of any agreement on inspection.

British officials in London saw Mikoyan's unexpected flying trip as an effort to get his friend Castro to comply with Premier Khrushchev's decision to pull Soviet missiles out of Cuba.

Moscow's dispatches indicated one purpose of Mikoyan's visit was to remove any possible Cuban roadblocks such as a refusal to permit admission of U.N. inspection teams.

Russia's Mikoyan On His Way To Cuba

Deputy Premier Plans New York Stop

MOSCOW, Thursday (UPI) — Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan left today by airplane for a trouble - shooting mission to Cuba with a mystery stopover in New York.

The Soviet news agency Tass, which announced Mikoyan's departure, made no mention of Mikoyan's New York stopover although embassy sources said he had been granted an American transit visa which would allow him to stop there.

Mikoyan was seen off by Soviet ministers and Cuban Ambassador Carlos Olivares Sanchez. Tass said Mikoyan left "to exchange views on the international situation with the government of Cuba."

It was not known why Mikoyan had requested the visa for the New York visit.

It was believed Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev might ask Mikoyan to confer in New York with Vassily V. Kuznetsov, special Russian delegate to the United Nations who has been handling negotiations on the withdrawal of Soviet missiles from Cuba.

The State Department in Washington said Mikoyan has been granted a transit visa which will enable his plane to make a one-day stop-off in New York on the way to Cuba.

Sources said Mikoyan's trip also was an attempt to bolster Soviet prestige in Cuba in the wake of Khrushchev's decision to withdraw Soviet missiles from the Caribbean island.

There also has been speculation that the Kremlin was concerned about the possibility that Castro may complicate the U.S.-Soviet agreements for resolving the Cuban crisis.

Western diplomatic sources speculated that Mikoyan planned to stop over in New York to meet with American officials or with U.N. acting Secretary General Thant to help push the Cuban negotiations through to a successful conclusion.

Cuba To Return U.S. Pilot's Body

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —An American U2 pilot missing on a flight over Cuba is dead and the Cuban government has agreed to return his body, Acting Secretary-General U Thant said Thursday night.

The pilot was Maj. Rudolf Anderson Jr., 35, Greenville, S.C.

The Defense Department reported Anderson missing last Saturday but there had been no indication he might have been forced down over Cuba and killed.

Thant made the disclosure on his, return from Havana, where he had discussed removal of Soviet missile bases with Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Anderson presumably was on a flight to check on the buildup of the Soviet bases.

Number Of Unemployed Dips To Three-Year Low

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployment fell sharply in October to 3,294,000, a three-year low, the government announced Wednesday. The number of persons with jobs rose seasonally by 225,000 to 68,893,000, a record for the month.

A drop of 218,000 in the number of unemployed, about four times a purely seasonal September-October decline, lowered the jobless rate from 5.8 to 5.5 per cent of the labor force. The rate averaged 5.5 per cent from February to July, then jumped to 5.8 per cent for tw months.

These were the key facts in a Labor Department report on the job situation in October. They did not alter the general pattern which has persisted since last spring — no real reduction in the jobless rate but stability of employment at a high, gradually rising level.

With the congressional elections only six days away, Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz supplemented his department's regular monthly report with a special statement. He said the October figures "show a substantial improvement in the economy since January, 1961," when President Kennedy took office.

But, Wirtz noted, the economy still is operating below capacity and "there are still too many unemployed workers in the nation."

A normal seasonal dip in unemployment from September to October would have been about 50,000. The actual decline was 218,000. Consequently, the jobless rate, which is adjusted to take account of the normal seasonal pattern, fell from the relatively high August-September perch of 5.8 per cent.

U.S. Will Speed Arms To India

WASHINGTON (AP) — High priority U.S. light infantry weapons and other equipment will be sped by air to India this week to help Indian troops hold off massive Chinese Communist border attacks.

The State Department announced this Wednesday and defense authorities said big Air Force transport planes will start taking off on the mission Thursday or Friday from many points in the United States.

The first deliveries are expected to include M1 Garand semiautomatic rifles, light mortars, grenades, trucks, jeeps and radio communications gear.

The arms flow is in swift fulfillment of President Kennedy's pledge to give rapid and sympathetic consideration to an appeal from India's Prime Minister Nehru for military assistance to repel the invaders.

A State Department spokesman, in announcing the airlift, said it was prompted by a specific situation.

"That situation," said press officer Lincoln White, "is created by massive Chinese Communist Communist aggression is a serious development and is so regarded by this government."

'Firefly' Rifled Into Orbit; Will Measure Earth

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —A "Firefly" satellite with four blinking beacons zipped into orbit Wednesday to take the earth's measurements—where it bulges, dips, the center of gravity and distances between far-apart places.

The unique satellite, officially named Anna, could produce more accurate maps of our world and gather vitally needed information for tracking future American astronauts to the moon and back.

Militarily, Anna could more precisely pinpoint location of possible enemy targets for long-range missiles, but officials considered that a secondary role.

A two-stage Thor-Able-Star rocket rifled into the darkness to propel the 355-pound sphere into a nearly perfect circular orbit about 735 miles above the earth.

Because the rocket was aimed on a northeast heading which carried the satellite over the Soviet Union, the Defense Department announced launching time in advance so that Soviet missile trackers would not mistake Anna for a hostile weapon.

A project spokesman reported all systems in the satellite were functioning perfectly. He said trackers will follow the payload for three days to determine exact orbital path before starting to exercise the flashing lights sometime Saturday night.

Although packing the illuminating power of a lighthouse, the flashes would be so far away they would not be visible to the naked eye. But officials said anyone with binoculars should be able to spot them as dim stars in the night sky. The Defense Department is expected to announce light activation times in advance.

Scientists at the Applied Physics Laboratory, Johns Hopkins University, will determine when the lights should wink and will send radio commands from a station in Howard County, Md.

Pentagon Curb On Interviews Stirs Up Storm

WASHINGTON (AP)—A written directive to the Pentagon's military and civilian personnel to report to public information officials what they tell newsmen in interviews blew up a storm Wednesday.

The memorandum, addressed to Defense Department personnel, was issued by Arthur Sylvester, assistant secretary of defense in charge of public affairs.

It instructed all personnel to report to him or other "appropriate public information offices" at the close of each day the substance of each interview or telephone conversation held with a newsman. If a representative of the department's public information office was present during the interview, no report would be needed, Sylvester's memorandum said.

Reporters covering the Pentagon already were incensed in the belief that news on the ship blockade and aerial surveillance of Cuba was withheld in some instances. They also recalled that Sylvester had acknowledged there was administration control of the flow and type of news. Sylvester said this had enabled the government to "speak with one voice" during the Cuban crisis.

Cherry Bomb Stirs Ole Miss Search By MPs

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—Military policemen, their bayonets fixed, threw a guard around a men's dormitory at the University of Mississippi on Wednesday night and searched rooms after somebody tossed a cherry bomb out a window, slightly injuring a soldier.

The MPs hauled out a dismantled pistol, a dismantled M1 rifle and several tear gas grenades from the dormitory.

The dormitory, Lester Hall, is next door to Baxter Hall, where Negro James H. Meredith lives.

The MPs came out with the weapons — as well as a five-gallon gasoline can and a large supply of fireworks — after 2½ hours of searching the more than 100 rooms of the dormitory.

They then boarded Army trucks and rolled away. Behind them, a small crowd of students in the darkness outside the dormitory broke up.

About 100 students gathered in front of the dormitory, standing face to face with the soldiers ringing the building. There were no signs of trouble. Within an hour the crowd dwindled to about 20 students.

At the time, Meredith was eating—in the company of a Justice Department official—without incident in the student cafeteria. He returned to his dormitory while the search was in progress, and entered without any reaction from the students milling around.

The crowd of students shouted taunts at the soldiers for a few moments.

Parents Of 12 "Stuck" With Two Left At Home

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. Eugene L. Parisse, the parents of 12, had two young children abandoned at their home Sunday and they learned Wednesday they may have to keep them a year.

For Parisse, a laborer with a $65 weekly grocery bill, the idea is frightening although he does like children.

An unidentified man left the children at the home on the pretense of hiring 15-year-old Helen Parisse to baby sit. Since Sunday, 4-year-old Mike and 3-year-old Lisa have dwelled in the Parisse home.

The family, exasperated, called police and juvenile court. Both said the children were not abandoned, technically. At the end of a year, Mrs. Parisse said they told her, it would become a court matter.

"I wouldn't mind if we were financially fixed to take them on," she said.

But with 12 children, ages 17 to 2, expenses already are high. And there have been recently additional problems:

—Two children recently were hospitalized with hepatitis.

—Mrs. Parisse recently had a miscarriage.

—All beds in the house are full and the two invaders sleep on the couch.

—Their pet dog recently had four pups.

The family questioned the young boy about his background, but he won't talk, said he likes it here and plans to stay.

"I've read about it happening to people, but I never dreamed it would happen to me," the mother said. "But we've enjoyed the kids."

Vote Satisfies French Leader

PARIS (AP) — President Charles De Gaulle has called the results of Sunday's referendum satisfactory—clearly showing that he has no present intention of quitting.

During the referendum campaign, De Gaulle pleaded for a big "yes" vote for his proposal to elect his successors by universal suffrage. He said he could not carry on if the results were "weak, mediocre, or doubtful."

At a Cabinet meeting Wednesday, De Gaulle apparently made no reference to his threat to step aside. A communique on the deliberations said he underlined the "great significance of the positive response given by the nation to the question that was posed."

Voters who went to the polls on Sunday approved the direct election proposal with a 62 per cent "yes" answer. Counting stay-at-homes and "no" votes however, only about 47 per cent of the total number of registered voters lined up behind De Gaulle's plan.

Because the rocket was aimed on a northeast heading which carried the satellite over the Soviet Union, the Defense Department announced launching time in advance so that Soviet missile trackers would not mistake Anna for a hostile weapon.

A project spokesman reported all systems in the satellite were functioning perfectly. He said trackers will follow the payload for three days to determine exact orbital path before starting to exercise the flashing lights sometime Saturday night.

Although packing the illuminating power of a lighthouse, the flashes would be so far away they would not be visible to the naked eye. But officials said anyone with binoculars should be able to spot them as dim stars in the night sky. The Defense Department is expected to announce light activation times in advance.

Scientists at the Applied Physics Laboratory, Johns Hopkins University, will determine when the lights should wink and will send radio commands from a station in Howard County, Md.

Peugeot Kidnapers Get 20-year Terms

VERSAILLES, France (AP) — Two men who kidnaped 4-year-old Eric Peugeot drew 20-year sentences Wednesday. The penalty, fixed by a jury, is the maximum in France.

Raymond Rolland, 27, and Pierre Larcher, 40, seized the scion of a wealthy automobile manufacturing family in 1960. They released him unharmed for $100,000 ransom.

Ike In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower arrived Wednesday on a visit. He is expected to stay until Friday.

The Council on Foreign Relations said Eisenhower would attend a private dinner Wednesday night in the council's headquarters.

Lancaster, Pa., Couple Observes 74th Anniversary

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Mann of Lancaster, celebrated their 74th wedding anniversary Wednesday.

Mann, 98, is a tobacco and auto dealer. He goes to work nearly every day. Mrs. Mann, 94, attributes their long, successful marriage to "the magic touch."

Pentagon Curb On Interviews Stirs Up Storm

WASHINGTON (AP)—A written directive to the Pentagon's military and civilian personnel to report to public information officials what they tell newsmen in interviews blew up a storm Wednesday.

The memorandum, addressed to Defense Department personnel, was issued by Arthur Sylvester, assistant secretary of defense in charge of public affairs.

It instructed all personnel to report to him or other "appropriate public information offices" at the close of each day the substance of each interview or telephone conversation held with a newsman. If a representative of the department's public information office was present during the interview, no report would be needed, Sylvester's memorandum said.

Reporters covering the Pentagon already were incensed in the belief that news on the ship blockade and aerial surveillance of Cuba was withheld in some instances. They also recalled that Sylvester had acknowledged there was administration control of the flow and type of news. Sylvester said this had enabled the government to "speak with one voice" during the Cuban crisis.

Cherry Bomb Stirs Ole Miss Search By MPs

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—Military policemen, their bayonets fixed, threw a guard around a men's dormitory at the University of Mississippi on Wednesday night and searched rooms after somebody tossed a cherry bomb out a window, slightly injuring a soldier.

The MPs hauled out a dismantled pistol, a dismantled M1 rifle and several tear gas grenades from the dormitory.

The dormitory, Lester Hall, is next door to Baxter Hall, where Negro James H. Meredith lives.

The MPs came out with the weapons — as well as a five-gallon gasoline can and a large supply of fireworks — after 2½ hours of searching the more than 100 rooms of the dormitory.

They then boarded Army trucks and rolled away. Behind them, a small crowd of students in the darkness outside the dormitory broke up.

About 100 students gathered in front of the dormitory, standing face to face with the soldiers ringing the building. There were no signs of trouble. Within an hour the crowd dwindled to about 20 students.

At the time, Meredith was eating—in the company of a Justice Department official—without incident in the student cafeteria. He returned to his dormitory while the search was in progress, and entered without any reaction from the students milling around.

The crowd of students shouted taunts at the soldiers for a few moments.

Parents Of 12 "Stuck" With Two Left At Home

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. Eugene L. Parisse, the parents of 12, had two young children abandoned at their home Sunday and they learned Wednesday they may have to keep them a year.

For Parisse, a laborer with a $65 weekly grocery bill, the idea is frightening although he does like children.

An unidentified man left the children at the home on the pretense of hiring 15-year-old Helen Parisse to baby sit. Since Sunday, 4-year-old Mike and 3-year-old Lisa have dwelled in the Parisse home.

The family, exasperated, called police and juvenile court. Both said the children were not abandoned, technically. At the end of a year, Mrs. Parisse said they told her, it would become a court matter.

"I wouldn't mind if we were financially fixed to take them on," she said.

But with 12 children, ages 17 to 2, expenses already are high. And there have been recently additional problems:

—Two children recently were hospitalized with hepatitis.

—Mrs. Parisse recently had a miscarriage.

—All beds in the house are full and the two invaders sleep on the couch.

—Their pet dog recently had four pups.

The family questioned the young boy about his background, but he won't talk, said he likes it here and plans to stay.

"I've read about it happening to people, but I never dreamed it would happen to me," the mother said. "But we've enjoyed the kids."

Thant Peace Mission Seen Unsuccessful

Fidel Apparently Balks At Admitting U. N. Inspectors

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Acting Secretary-General U Thant returned from his Cuban peace mission Thursday night and declared he was reliably informed all Soviet missiles would be dismantled by Friday and out of Cuba soon afterward.

The secretary-general, however, apparently had failed in his efforts to get Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro to agree to any form of U.N. inspection to verify the removal of the missiles.

Thant's chartered plane touched down at New York's Idlewild Airport at 8:48 p.m. EST amid developments which indicated the Cuban crisis had taken a critical turn.

In his airport statement Thant made no mention of his apparent rebuff by Castro. He stressed the dismantling of the Soviet missile bases and plans for withdrawal of the missiles.

Shortly before Thant's return, the White House announced that the naval arms quarantine of Cuba would be reinstated Thursday morning and that aerial surveillance of the Soviet missile sites in Cuba would start again.

Mikoyan Heads For Cuba

In what seemed to be another emergency move, the Soviet Union sent Anastas I. Mikoyan, first Soviet deputy premier, on a hurried trip to Cuba via London and New York. He is due in Havana Friday.

Thant described his talks in Havana as "fruitful." He said there was agreement that the United Nations should continue its efforts to reach a peaceful settlement of the Cuban problem.

Then he asserted:

"During my stay in Havana, I was reliably informed that the dismantling of the missiles and installations was already in progress and that this process should be completed by Friday — that is the day after tomorrow.

"Thereafter will come the shipment and return to the Soviet Union, arrangements for which are understood to be in hand."

Thant declined to answer questions from newsmen.

Advisers Also Return

Returning with the secretary-general from Havana were members of the U.N. Secretariat and military advisers who had intended to remain in Cuba as the nucleus of the proposed inspection team.

News that this group was coming back to New York was the first tipoff that Thant had run into a snag. There was no word of this in a U.N. communique issued at the end of Thant's second long talk with Castro, but it was regarded as significant that the communique made no mention of any agreement on inspection.

British officials in London saw Mikoyan's unexpected flying trip as an effort to get his friend Castro to comply with Premier Khrushchev's decision to pull Soviet missiles out of Cuba.

Moscow's dispatches indicated one purpose of Mikoyan's visit was to remove any possible Cuban roadblocks such as a refusal to permit admission of U.N. inspection teams.

Vote Satisfies French Leader

PARIS (AP) — President Charles De Gaulle has called the results of Sunday's referendum satisfactory—clearly showing that he has no present intention of quitting.

During the referendum campaign, De Gaulle pleaded for a big "yes" vote for his proposal to elect his successors by universal suffrage. He said he could not carry on if the results were "weak, mediocre, or doubtful."

At a Cabinet meeting Wednesday, De Gaulle apparently made no reference to his threat to step aside. A communique on the deliberations said he underlined the "great significance of the positive response given by the nation to the question that was posed."

Voters who went to the polls on Sunday approved the direct election proposal with a 62 per cent "yes" answer. Counting stay-at-homes and "no" votes however, only about 47 per cent of the total number of registered voters lined up behind De Gaulle's plan.

Small Would Have Candidates List Contributions Preceding Elections

By The Associated Press

The Republican nominee for governor, Frank Small Jr., proposed Wednesday that the Corrupt Practices Act in Maryland be changed to require political candidates to make public a list of contributions before, instead of after, an election.

"The public has a right to know whose money is financing political campaigns," Small said in a statement. He said he was willing to make public such a list and urged his opponent, Democratic Gov. Tawes, to do likewise.

"My opponent has consistently failed to list the names of people who buy tickets to his fund-raising dinners," Small said. "This money is listed in one lump sum without any indication as to its source.

"If this money comes from slot machine operators, savings and loan associations or other special interests, the public has a right to have this information.

"Republicans have traditionally listed the individuals who buy tickets to fund-raising dinners, rather than a listing of a lump sum. By concealing this money under the heading of a dinner committee in the financial report, the Tawes Administration subverts the intent of the Corrupt Practices Act.

"The wheeling and dealing in Maryland politics are ample evidence that the Corrupt Practices Act should be thoroughly revamped."

Small said he was certain that Tawes was using fund-raising dinners to "conceal contributions which he doesn't want the public to know about."

The Republican nominee said that if he is elected next Tuesday, he will appoint a non-partisan citizens committee to study election laws and make recommendations for improving them.

The Republican candidate for U.S. Senate, Edward T. Miller, accused his Democratic opponent, Daniel B. Brewster, with backing out on a debate scheduled for Wednesday.

Miller said Brewster had withdrawn less than 24 hours before the debate was to have been taped for showing on television. Brewster's excuse, Miller said, was that he was too busy.

Nike Zeus Tests Will Be Shifted

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP)—Test launchings of the Army's Nike Zeus antimissile rocket at this Pacific missile range headquarters will end about Jan. 1, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Further testing will be conducted at the White Sands, N.M., missile range and at Kwajalein Island in mid-Pacific, where the Nike Zeus is fired at Atlas-boosted warheads from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

11 Cities Ask ICC Hearings On Rail Merger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) examiner said Wednesday he had requests to hold hearings at 11 major cities on the proposed Pennsylvania-New York Central Railroad merger.

Chief hearing examiner Jerome K Lyle said sessions were requested for New York, Buffalo and Rochester, N.Y.; Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Harrisburg, Pa.; Detroit and Kalamazoo, Mich.; Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio; and Boston.

Lyle announced at the Penn-Central hearings that he had not scheduled the regional sessions, but indicated he wanted to hold them during December in Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania and complete the tour in January.

Attorneys for the Justice Department and the ICC's Bureau of Inquiry cross-examined David C. Bevan, Pennsylvania's financial vice president on how the huge railroad planned to dispose of its heavy stockholdings in the Norfolk & Western Railroad, which is seeking a three way merger with the Nickel Plate and Wabash Lines in a separate case.

Bevan said he would be "horrified" if the commission forced the Pennsylvania to sell its N & W holdings within an eight year period. He said a 12 to 15-year period "would seem reasonable."

Navy's Power Hailed By Korth

BALTIMORE (AP)—The power of the United States naval fleet undoubtedly led to the decision to meet the Cuban crisis with a naval blockade, Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth said Wednesday night.

Korth spoke at a Navy League dinner which highlighted Maryland's celebration of Navy Day.

Oct. 27 was Navy Day, but the celebration in Maryland was delayed four days to coincide with Korth's appearance.

Korth said the Cuban blockade called for a classic use of seapower. He said that in this respect there "is an indisputable advantage enjoyed by the United States over the Soviet Union."

"Despite their formidable fleet of submarines, the Soviets cannot control the seas with their unbalanced naval forces. They cannot deny the seas to the fleets and merchant ships of the United States."

In a related development at Washington President Kennedy called off his news conference scheduled for Thursday, awaiting what the White House called clarification of the Cuban situation

The cancellation appeared to be a clear indication that a snag had developed in the plan to dismantle the Cuban bases under U.N. inspection.

A communique said further talks would be conducted in New York with representatives of the Cuban government in the search for a peaceful solution.

Thant himself insisted on his departure from Havana that two days of discussion with Castro had been "very useful."

But the Cuban press showed no sign of yielding and gave prominence to expressions of support from Red China, which espouses an uncompromising stand toward the West.

Arrested Man Not Jail Escapee

BALTIMORE (AP)—The chief inspector of the Baltimore Police Department, George J. Murphy, said Wednesday a man arrested in Chicago Tuesday as a jail escapee from Baltimore was not the man sought.

Murphy said fingerprints of Doyle D. Royal, 27, who escaped from the Baltimore jail Monday, did not match those of the man arrested as he got off a plane in Chicago.

Royal is the only one of five prisoners who was still at large Wednesday.

Murphy said the man arrested identified himself as C. Webster and gave an address in Baltimore County. However the home at that address has been vacant for two years, Murphy said.

Police said they will study a photo and fingerprints of Webster.

12 Astronauts Tour Martin Co.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. told workers Wednesday to "use tender, loving care" in building the rocket booster which will launch two Americans into space.

Glenn and 11 other astronauts toured the Martin Co.'s Space Systems Division, where the launch vehicle for the Gemini Project is being assembled.

Glenn talked to workers from a platform erected near the production line. He urged them to "remember the welfare of the man who will be on top of the rocket."

Project Gemini is the next step in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration program. The first flight is scheduled for late next year.

The project aims at orbiting two men for periods of up to two weeks. They will practice maneuvering their craft and rendezvous with other spacecraft.

Included in the group making the tour were Glenn, Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Maj. Virgil I. Grissom and the nine new astronauts chosen last month.

Contractor Buys Omaha Newspaper

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Contractor Peter Kiewit Wednesday purchased the Omaha World-Herald, Nebraska's largest newspaper and said he wanted to continue the newspaper's 77-year tradition of home ownership.

The newspaper said the purchase price was "in excess of $40 million.

Stockholders of the World Publishing Co. unanimously accepted Kiewit's bid over that of New York Publisher Samuel I. Newhouse, who was reported to have offered more than $40 million for the newspaper, television station KETV and other assets, including a physicians' building.

Aluminum Cable Price-Fix Charged

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —Six major manufacturers of aluminum conductor cable were indicted Wednesday on charges of price fixing.

Indicted were Aluminum Co. of America, Pittsburgh; Anaconda Wire and Cable Co., New York; General Cable Corp., Perth Amboy, N.J.; Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Sales Inc., Oakland, Calif.; Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., New York, and Reynolds Metals Co., Richmond, Va.

Venezuela Says Most Of Saboteurs Captured

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — The Venezuelan government announced Wednesday the capture of most members of a Communist sabotage ring which blew up parts of three American - owned oil complexes in Maracaibo Saturday.

An Interior Ministry communique said the captured men were members of the Communist party or the neo-Communist Movement of the Revolutionary Left (MIR).

The government said the dynamiting of the power-plants answered radioed instructions from Cuba which were intercepted.

The sabotage in the oil fields of a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey occurred hours after President Romulo Beatencourt announced mobilization of the armed forces during the Cuban crisis.

After the explosions, Havana Radio said it was "the answer of the liberation army to President Betancourt's mobilization order."

The Interior Ministry communique did not state how many alleged saboteurs have been arrested.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

PRINCETON, N. J. (UPI)—Do international crises make you bite your nails, lose sleep and otherwise upset you?

If tensions of this sort inflict symptoms of a full-blown case of exposed nerves, you probably react like a typical American—and that's not good.

The young woman who made that point in an interview makes her living keeping a cool head during global upsets—hot and cold.

She's Helen Kavan, a U.S. Foreign Service officer who recently completed an assignment at the U.S. Embassy in Saigon — an upsetty peace.

"But the people in Saigon," Miss Kavan said, "take it in stride, as is true to people in most tension-ridden places—except in the U.S.A.

"There has been uncertainty to live with for decades in Saigon. The people know a great deal is at stake but they cope with it and life goes on. Americans should do the same."

Miss Kavan, 35, a native of Cleveland, Ohio, has been a foreign service officer for seven years. Prior to the assignment in Saigon, she served in the diplomatic corps in Marseille, France.

Currently, the young diplomat is causing heads to turn at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs — as one might expect of the first woman to enroll at the school for international eggheads.

Breaking the ice, she used diplomacy — seeming not at all surprised when learning that the university couldn't quarter her on campus. She found an apartment off campus.

Miss Kavan's tuition and board bills are being paid by Uncle Sam. While she goes to school for a year, she also receives her Foreign Service officer salary.

"This is mid-career training," she said, "and one of the many nice aspects of being a Foreign Service officer."

About 10 per cent of the corps of 3,700 foreign service officers is female.

Service in the corps and marriage don't go together, by the way.

Miss Kavan said a Foreign Service officer who marries another Foreign Service officer isn't given consideration when transfers are made.

"When both are assigned to different posts," she said, "one must give up the commission. As a result, the women on active duty are bachelor girls."

Miss Kavan, a Phi Beta Kappa, majored in political science and history at Denison University in Granville, Ohio. Then she went on to get a masters degree in political science at Western Reserve.

Business Tabs

DUARTE, Calif. (UPI)—Powertron Ultrasonics Corp. of Plainview, N.Y. and Giannini Controls Corp. of Duarte, Calif., announced jointly Tuesday plans for a merger.

The transaction was described as an acquisition of the business assets of Powertron for stock of Giannini Controls. Giannini will issue one share of common stock and one share of $20 par convertible preferred stock for each 12 shares of Powertron.

CARLSTADT, N.J. (UPI) — Plans have been announced for the nation's first plant for the liquidification and storage of natural gas in the Hackensack Meadows here.

The $15 million facility will be built by the Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp., New Jersey's largest supplier of natural gas.

PORT HENRY, N.Y. (UPI) — Republic Steel Corp. announced Tuesday it will reopen its iron ore mine here Nov. 12. The company said 300 employes will be recalled. The mine was shut down June 30.

Wine To Shoes

HERMANN, Mo. (UPI) — Wine making, a major industry here from 1847 to 1920, ended with prohibition and has never been revived. Some of the cooling cellars are used today for commercial mushroom growing.

The town of 3,000 is mainly busy these days with shoe manufacturing. Since 1911, International Shoe Company here has produced more than 52 million pairs of shoes. The payroll now is more than $1 million a year. The city is about 80 miles west of St. Louis.

Railroad Anyone?

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas is the only state in the union that still owns a railroad and it would like to lease the line to someone else.

The Texas State Railroad, a 32 mile line running between Palestine and Rusk in East Texas, has been operated by the Southern Pacific since 1921. However, the S.P. has said it will not renew its lease when it expires Dec. 31.

TV Pupil

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A young visitor to the Texas capital gazed interestedly at a portrait of Davy Crockett and remarked to his mother, "Mom, Fess Parker looks a whole lot more like Davy Crockett than this man does."

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

PRINCETON, N. J. (UPI)—Do international crises make you bite your nails, lose sleep and otherwise upset you?

If tensions of this sort inflict symptoms of a full-blown case of exposed nerves, you probably react like a typical American—and that's not good.

The young woman who made that point in an interview makes her living keeping a cool head during global upsets—hot and cold.

She's Helen Kavan, a U.S. Foreign Service officer who recently completed an assignment at the U.S. Embassy in Saigon — an upsetty peace.

"But the people in Saigon," Miss Kavan said, "take it in stride, as is true to people in most tension-ridden places—except in the U.S.A.

"There has been uncertainty to live with for decades in Saigon. The people know a great deal is at stake but they cope with it and life goes on. Americans should do the same."

Miss Kavan, 35, a native of Cleveland, Ohio, has been a foreign service officer for seven years. Prior to the assignment in Saigon, she served in the diplomatic corps in Marseille, France.

Currently, the young diplomat is causing heads to turn at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs — as one might expect of the first woman to enroll at the school for international eggheads.

Breaking the ice, she used diplomacy — seeming not at all surprised when learning that the university couldn't quarter her on campus. She found an apartment off campus.

Miss Kavan's tuition and board bills are being paid by Uncle Sam. While she goes to school for a year, she also receives her Foreign Service officer salary.

"This is mid-career training," she said, "and one of the many nice aspects of being a Foreign Service officer."

About 10 per cent of the corps of 3,700 foreign service officers is female.

Service in the corps and marriage don't go together, by the way.

Miss Kavan said a Foreign Service officer who marries another Foreign Service officer isn't given consideration when transfers are made.

"When both are assigned to different posts," she said, "one must give up the commission. As a result, the women on active duty are bachelor girls."

Miss Kavan, a Phi Beta Kappa, majored in political science and history at Denison University in Granville, Ohio. Then she went on to get a masters degree in political science at Western Reserve.

Business Tabs

DUARTE, Calif. (UPI)—Powertron Ultrasonics Corp. of Plainview, N.Y. and Giannini Controls Corp. of Duarte, Calif., announced jointly Tuesday plans for a merger.

The transaction was described as an acquisition of the business assets of Powertron for stock of Giannini Controls. Giannini will issue one share of common stock and one share of $20 par convertible preferred stock for each 12 shares of Powertron.

Science At Work

By The Associated Press

A new warning about an impending water shortage and a probe for space secrets in the snows of Antarctica figure in the activities of Science at Work this week:

Water, Water

A Montana scientist figures that while the average man drinks only about two quarts of water a day, he actually "uses" about 15,000 gallons every 24 hours.

Such a total is reached when you figure water requirements for raising crops and livestock, and for industrial and municipal needs and the like, says Dr. Charles C. Bradley of Montana State College.

In an article in Science magazine, he sounds this warning:

While the nation's annual rainfall makes available some 5,000 billion gallons of water daily, a per capita use of 15,000 gallons a day—in the face of a steadily increasing population — would mean that well before the year 2,000 our present standards of living would suffer. And it will, he says, unless "intelligent" action is taken to conserve supplies, and eliminate pollution of certain waterways.

Snow Sleuthing

The virtually never-melting snows of the antarctic ice-cap are being probed for possible new information about potential hazards of space travel.

More than a ton of snow, drilled from various points on the icecap —and from depths down to 35 feet—has been preserved in refrigerators at the University of Wisconsin.

Scientists there will melt the various snow "cores" and study their content of cosmic dust. That dust consists of tiny particles of still-uncertain origin which regularly fall to the earth from outer space and which might penetrate a fast-travelling spaceship. Since the antarctic snows have recognizable lines of demarcation for each year's snowfall — something like tree rings — accurate estimates of the quantities of dust falling each year, and variations at different points, might be obtainable.

The researchers figure the studies may help answer such puzzles as: Does the dust originate from larger objects in space like meteors? Do sunspots play a role in increasing the quantities of the dust at certain times?

Versatile

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — There are 744 cities and towns in Texas with at least one manufacturing plant, according to the Texas Manufacturers Association.

A director of the 10,530 plants in Texas shows they turn out everything from stagecoaches to wooden nickels.

Martyr

LYONS, Kan. (UPI) — Father Juan de Padilla, a Roman Catholic priest who travelled with the Spanish explorer Coronado, was murdered near here by Indians in 1542 and became the first North American martyr.

Homesteaders

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Sixty per cent of the land area in Kansas once was offered for homesteading, a way for a settler to get land free.

Mrs. Close Entertains Imperial Potentate's Wife

Mrs. J. Wallace Close entertained in compliment to Mrs. George M. Klepper, Memphis, Tenn., with a luncheon yesterday at her home on Camden Avenue. Mrs. Close is the wife of the potentate of Ali Ghan Temple and Mrs. Klepper's husband is the imperial potentate of the Shrine in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Guests were the wives of past potentates and the women of the divan.

Mrs. Klepper entertained the group by telling about her travels while her husband was visiting the different temples. The wives of the divan presented Mrs. Klepper with a Congressional Club cookbook.

A fall motif was carried out in the decorations, with yellow and bronze chrysanthemums centering the luncheon table combined with florating candles.

Attending were Mrs. McKinley Morton, Hagerstown; Mrs. William Jenkins, Frostburg; Mrs. Morgan Harris, Mrs. Howard Vandegrift, Mrs. John Brenneman, Mrs. Wayne Reed, Frostburg; Mrs. Harold Wickard, wives of past potentates of Ali Ghan Temple; Mrs. Earle Cobey, Mrs. Robert Moore, Mrs. Byron Kight and Mrs. William Torkington, women of the divan. Other guests were Mrs. Arthur Apsey and Mrs. Earl Chaney.

Preceding the dinner and ball last evening a cocktail party and get-together was held at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club.

This morning Mr. and Mrs. Close will drive Mr. and Mrs. Klepper to Charleston, W. Va., where they will visit Bene-Ke-Dem Temple.

Bridge Club Celebrates Anniversary

The Barton Wednesday Night Bridge Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Nellie Graham, 1211 Oldtown Road, with a buffet dinner. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Florence Wilson and Mrs. Philomena Chappell, and Mrs. Ina Byrnes.

The occasion marked the 25th anniversary of the club. Five charter members were presented gifts by the hostesses. They are Miss Hazel Inskeep, Miss Alice McCormick, Mrs. Phyllis Howell, Mrs. Inez Andrews, and Miss Maud Mowbray.

Mrs. Andrews composed and read a poem commemorating the origin of the club.

An arrangement of fall flowers centered the dining table and a vase of gold chrysanthemums depicting the occasion were used in the living room and later presented to Mrs. Dora McLuckie, Frostburg, who is a patient at Memorial Hospital. Each member received lipstick, sachet, and a corsage.

Three tables of contract bridge were in play. Prizes were won by Miss Inskeep, high score; Mrs. Katherine Keyes, second; Mrs. Howell, low; and Mrs. Andrews, floating. Others attending were Mrs. Eva M. Ream of Oakland and Verda Michael of Barton.

Scarf Hats Prove Who's Fashion Slave

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

Although women shrewdly refrain from discussing it, they have hats full of proof they are not slaves to fashion.

Indeed, fashion is slave to them.

Men should be so lucky—they with their cold, exposed ears and sideburns that sometimes confess a forgotten haircut.

Could they get away with scarf hats, the lady's latest fashion toiler? Nay, the male sex is too inhibited to wrap itself like an Arab and then top all with a hat?

Yet females for years have been carefully conditioning humanity until it now condones anything they wear in the name of fashion. Thus, today they can even be practical about clothes and still be stylish.

Hence the scarf hat.

A woman commands it to do any number of things. When the mercury drops she calls upon it to keep her ears cozy. She also hauls it into service when her dark roots begin to show. Or when she has curlers in her hair. Or when she suspects her chin is getting too fleshy.

She can count on the practical part one, the scarf, to hide such a multitude of sins, while the esthetic part two makes her look chic, coquettish, elegant and fashionably complete.

Even so, the scarf hat is such a complimentary combination that perfect beauties, or women without a dark root or a bobby pin to shroud, are wearing them simply because they look perfectly beautiful in them.

They also look mysterious, exotic, boyish, or dramatic, depending on the type they chose.

Veterans on the hat scarf scene are the knitted hat and sporty headwarmer, drawn snugly around the chin.

Ordinarily the winter wind could whip off the large brimmed roller, sombrero or puffed beret, but no when it is so charmingly and securely tied down to stay put. Even pill boxes and small derbies are adding their flattery to tailored coats and suits, with the scarves tucked into standaway collars.

Nor does a formal evening deter a scarf hat devotee. She simply turns to satin or velvet to frame her features and crowns herself with a jeweled turban, like a maharanee.

If she hasn't a single hair on her head, no one is the wiser.

Mrs. J. Elmer Minnicks, 727 Hill Top Drive, is a medical patient in Memorial Hospital.

Doctors Say Hormones Make Skin Look Younger Safely

NEW YORK (Special): — A leading dermatologist and his assistants have conducted a "half-woman" test that proves conclusively estrogenic hormones make skin look younger, smooth dry-skin wrinkles, often fade "old-age" skin discolorations.

A preparation containing female hormones was applied to one side of the face and neck and to one hand of 50 middle-aged women. A similar formula containing no hormones was used on the other side. It was quickly apparent that the side treated with hormones looked better. At the end of the test in all but two cases, skin lines were definitely less noticeable, complexion was softer, smoother, fresher. There was no local irritation in any case; examination revealed absolutely no systemic effects. The hormones had beautified effectively and safely.

In an effort to speed up hormones' beautifying action, a trustworthy 40-year-old laboratory developed a fluid formula called HORMONEX Beauty Serum. This laboratory conducted a test on 15,000 women volunteers who were asked to use the formula for just twelve days on one side of the face and neck. An impressive percentage signified that good results were attained even in this short period.

Hormonex Beauty Serum acts so rapidly because pure female hormones are dissolved in a combination of penetrating Sesame Oil and a patented, liquid Lanolin. Only 7 drops a day are required to treat face and neck.

If you would like to test HORMONEX Beauty Serum without risk, get a bottle at your favorite toiletry counter today, use it just twelve days. If the change is not astounding — if you are not completely satisfied, your dealer is authorized to refund purchase price without question. HORMONEX Beauty Serum is inexpensive to use. A 100-day supply costs only $3.50. Look younger quickly. See these wrinkles smooth out, starting today! You may obtain Hormonex Beauty Serum at:

James Clarke's Granddaughter, Husband Are Visitors Here

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rittenhouse Flood of Swarthmore, Pa., are visiting here.

Mrs. Flood, the former Miss Angela Patricia Clarke Casey of Scranton, Pa., is a granddaughter of the late James Clarke, who was a prominent whisky distiller here in the pre-Prohibition days. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke lived in the home at 108 Washington Street which is now the Allegany County Board of Education office. She is the niece of the late Mrs. J. Phillip Roman. Her mother was Mrs. Helen Clarke.

Mr. and Mrs. Flood were luncheon guests yesterday at the home of Miss Elizabeth Lowndes. They were married October 4 in Leesburg, Va. Mr. Flood, who is an account executive for radio station WCAU in Philadelphia, has expressed interest in locating here.

While in the lobby of the Fort Cumberland Hotel yesterday morning, Mr. Flood had the opportunity of meeting George M. Klepper, Memphis, Tenn., imperial potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. Mr. Flood is a noble in Lu Lu Shrine Temple in Philadelphia.

Mr. Flood is a great, great, great-grandson of Michael Hilligas, who was the first treasurer of the United States under the Continental Congress.

Book Review To Be Given

Dr. David Nuzum of Potomac State College, Keyser, will give a book review at the meeting of the Woman's Club of Moorefield November 5.

The meeting will be at the Hardy County Public Library.

Members are asked to remember to bring their donations for the Spencer box at this time.

The social committee for the evening is composed of Mrs. W. J. Teets, Mrs. Ashby Scea, Mrs. Howard Belt, Miss Elizabeth Wilson, Mrs. G. Tom Williams and Mrs. Orvon Bean.

Meetings Are Postponed

The Allegany County Youth Wind Ensemble meeting for Saturday has been canceled and will be held November 10 at Allegany High School.

The parents group meeting also has been postponed until November 10.

James Clarke's Granddaughter, Husband Are Visitors Here

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rittenhouse Flood of Swarthmore, Pa., are visiting here.

Mrs. Flood, the former Miss Angela Patricia Clarke Casey of Scranton, Pa., is a granddaughter of the late James Clarke, who was a prominent whisky distiller here in the pre-Prohibition days. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke lived in the home at 108 Washington Street which is now the Allegany County Board of Education office. She is the niece of the late Mrs. J. Phillip Roman. Her mother was Mrs. Helen Clarke.

Mr. and Mrs. Flood were luncheon guests yesterday at the home of Miss Elizabeth Lowndes. They were married October 4 in Leesburg, Va. Mr. Flood, who is an account executive for radio station WCAU in Philadelphia, has expressed interest in locating here.

While in the lobby of the Fort Cumberland Hotel yesterday morning, Mr. Flood had the opportunity of meeting George M. Klepper, Memphis, Tenn., imperial potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. Mr. Flood is a noble in Lu Lu Shrine Temple in Philadelphia.

Mr. Flood is a great, great, great-grandson of Michael Hilligas, who was the first treasurer of the United States under the Continental Congress.

Book Review To Be Given

Israel Embassy Counselor Will Be United Jewish Appeal Guest Speaker

Hanan Bar-On, counselor of the Embassy of Israel in Washington, will be the guest speaker at the Jewis Welfare "kickoff" dinner, Sunday.

It will be held at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club at 6:30, with the Beth Jacob Women's League in charge. Mrs. Harry Mandell is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Harvey Dezen and Mrs. Arthur Bauer.

Leonard Schwab, campaign director, will be the toastmaster. Officers of the Jewish Welfare fund are Dr. Benjamin Feldman, Robert Kaplon and George Ossip. Co-chairmen of the campaign are Dr. Jack Arch and Morris Schepcaro.

A native of Germany, Mr. Bar-On escaped that country during the height of the Nazi reign of terror and was brought, together with thousands of other Jewish refugee youngsters, to Palestine under the auspices of the Jewish Agency's Youth Aliyah, an operation supported by funds raised by the United Jewish Appeal.

World War II broke out while Mr. Bar-On was a student at the University of Tel Aviv, majoring in Political Science, and he enlisted in the British Army in which he served for five years. Immediately after returning to British-Mandated Palestine, he reoined the Haganah —the Jewish defense force and within two years — 1948 — was again a combat soldier — this time in Israel's War of Liberation, which permanently established it as a free and independent nation.

After his honorable discharge from the Israel Army, in 1951, Mr. Bar-On was appointed a member of the Israel Delegation to the United Nations, a post he held for four years. Following his UN service, he was assigned to the Office of the Israel Prime Minister, and two years later became Consul General of Israel in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. In July of 1961, Mr. Bar-On assumed his present position as counselor to the Embassy of Israel in Washington.

The United Jewish Appeal is the major American agency aiding immigrants to Israel and refugees and distressed Jews overseas. UJA aid programs are carried out by its three member agencies: The United Israel Appeal, which helps to receive, settle which helps to receive, settle and absorb immigrants to Israel; the Joint Distribution Committee, which aids Jews in 26 countries, including Israel, where it conducts a special welfare program for aged and handicapped immigrants; and the New York Association for New Americans, which assists Jewish refugees to the United States. The United Hias Service, which provides for the resettlement of Jewish refugees to countries other than Israel, also benefits from the UJA campaign.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son Andy is not quite 14 years old. He has been nagging his father for six months. He wants to shave. Honestly, Ann, there is nothing there to shave. He would only cut himself.

His dad keeps telling Andy that shaving is a nuisance and after he once starts he'll find it's no fun at all. The boy is unconvinced. This is getting to be such an issue around the house that we decided to write to you and let you settle it. I am sending you Andy's picture.

What do you think? — CHAOS UNLIMITED

DEAR CHAOS: I can't tell anything from the picture but please don't send the boy. I'll take your word for the fact that Andy doesn't have much of a beard.

The experts I've consulted say "let the boy shave." It will do wonders for his morale and it won't hurt his face one bit.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please don't print my name, initials, city or state. I can't have anyone know I wrote this letter.

A few doctors in this town live like millionaires. They perform an awful lot of operations. I've often wondered if all these operations are necessary. Several months ago a friend of ours was rushed to the hospital with severe abdominal pains. The doctor removed her appendix that very night. Complications set in and the patient see-sawed between life and death for three days. She finally pulled through.

What if the pains were just tension and not appendicitis? This is possible isn't it? Who is to say whether an operation is necessary? — JUST INQUIRING

DEAR J. I.: The doctor is the one to say whether an operation is necessary. And every family has the right to call in consulting physicians if they want more than one opinion.

All hospitals are required by the American Medical Association and the American College of Surgeons to have an examining body called The Tissue Committee.

The committe of pathologists and other specialists examine the removed tissue and determine whether the operation was essential. No human is infallible, but if a doctor chalks up two or three unnecessary operations, he will be dropped from the hospital staff.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wish to challenge your reply to the secretary who resented being asked to do janitor work.

You said: "Show me a secretary who has never washed a desk-top or moved a fan and I'll show you a mighty poor employe." Well, I'm an executive secretary who is considered tops in my field. I have never washed a desk-top or moved a fan — and furthermore I never will.

Any office worthy of the name has janitors who come in after hours to do the cleaning. If the clean-up crew is incompetent, these people should be replaced by people who can do the job. To expect a secretary to dust and wash desks is degrading.

I will work my fingers to the bone when it comes to secretarial duties but I refuse to do a janitor's work. It is obvious, Ann Landers, that YOU have never been a secretary — SEATTLE

DEAR SEATTLE: Right you are. I have never been a secretary, but I employ eight.

Often I consult with experts before giving an answer. In this case I asked each of my secretaries if she would wash a desk-top or move a fan. The verdict was a unamious yes.

Confidential to NEED A HELPING HAND: You'll find it right at the bottom of your arm, Buster. Why look further?

To learn the booby traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Handy Habits To Avoid Chapping

If you aren't already in the habit of giving your hands year-round protection, now is a good time to start. It's far easier to prevent chapping than to cure it, especially when winter weather is en route.

You can begin by furnishing each "key" room in your home with a tube or jar of your favorite rich emollient cream. That means bedroom, bath, kitchen and laundry room, of course; but you can count the family room or living room, too, wherever you do most of your relaxing. Thus equipped, you'll never have to postpone anointing your hands whenever they need it—and between times, too. (If you're a working girl, be sure to keep a small container of cream in your purse, the large economy size in your desk.)

Cream your hands as often as you can. Always do it before (and after) tackling housecleaning chores, garden work, anything involving water. Take special pains to cream your hands before putting on your gloves to go outdoors—this is a fall-and-winter "must"!

At bedtime, slather on more cream or lotion, then draw loose-fitting cotton gloves over your hands to make sure the moisturizing film stays on overnight to accomplish its "handiwork."

Whether or not you are prone to attacks of "housewives' eczema", you'll find gloves are an incomparable hand-saver whenever there's work to be done or exposure to be risked. If you are eczema-prone, try fending off the first flare-up with creams that have a high silicone content and wear cotton gloves under your rubber work gloves (or treat yourself to a cotton-lined pair).

At the first sign of reddening or chapping, double your vigilant care. You can help your hands recapture their normal appearance temporarily by coating the red areas with the same foundation base you apply to your face, unless you are eczema-prone—in which case, makeup might only irritate your supersensitive skin.

Exercise, because it stimulates blood circulation, is a marvelous tone-up for skin all over the body. For a delightful way to take your exercise—and like it!—send today to this newspaper for the booklet, "Dance Through a Week to Beauty"! Just 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to me, John Robert Powers, is all you need.

Town Creek Club Names Committee

A nominating committee was appointed at the meeting of the Town Creek Homemakers Club, which was conducted by Mrs. Ralph Buser at the home of Mrs. Donald Buser.

It consists of Mrs. Albert Snyder, Mrs. Donald Buser and Mrs. Dale Riley. They are to select a vice president and secretary and present the slate at the November 21 meeting. It will be held at the home of Mrs. Riley.

The meeting opened with the group reading the Homemakers Collect. Roll call was answered with each telling her greatest problem in meal planning. Most felt it was to avoid too many leftovers in a home where the children are grown and only two are left. Mrs. Harvey Johnson, food and nutrition chairman, spoke on "Food and Fitness." Achievements were discussed.

Concluding the business session, Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, showed a moving picture, "George Washington's River."

Others present were Mrs. Leo Leasure, Mrs. George Reuschell, Mrs. Edgar Tucker and Mrs. Roy Shryock.

Mary Ellen Sides Honored On Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. John Sides, Ellerslie, entertained with a Halloween and birthday party for their daughter Mary Ellen on her ninth birthday.

Costumes were worn and games were played and prizes given, and refreshments served.

Halloween Dance To Be Tomorrow

A Halloween dance, with costumes optional, will be held by the Road Runners Kart Club tomorrow at the Corriganville fire hall. Music will be by the Nu-Tones, from 9 until 12 o'clock.

A twist contest will be held and costumes will be judged. Besides the costume prizes, there will be special awards.

Stop Static

Static electricity in clothing a bother? The use of a blue fabric softener in the final rinse of slips and petticoats will eliminate it.

A person should cut down his food intake about one per cent a year after 25 to maintain steady weight.

Now — the ultimate in golf shorts for milady. The pants have a built in tee pouch, pencil holder, towel rack and, aft on one leg, a zipper compartment for golf balls! The serious golfer doesn't sit during hte pursuit of excellence, so no problem's anticipated in connection with the lumpy effect of golf balls in one's rear pocket. Wilma Donaldson, designer for Queen Casuals, said the utilitarian design is in response to demand from the females who rally round the tees.

Intimate intelligence; they don't call the customer "dearie" anymore in fur shops. Evans Fur Co., of Chicago, recently put out a formal edict on the subject, cautioning sales people to avoid the word. The boss said the word was "downright cheap, lacking in taste and likely to put saleswoman and her shop in the third rate class." What's more, warned the boss — conservative customers resent being hailed as "dearie."

Most Of India's 439 Million Are Illiterate

NEW DELHI (UPI) — As many as 335 million of India's total population do not know how to read or write.

This was revealed by Census Commissioner A. K. Mirtra, who recently announced the final total of the 1961 headcount as 439,235,462 persons, including 226,293,620 males and 212,941,462 females.

Of these, he said only 77,828,162 men and 27,505,118 women are literate.

Mitra gave the following additional information:

—The best educated of India's 15 states is the communist stronghold of Kerala where 50 per cent of the people are literate. The literacy ratio between men and women is 60-40.

—Another strongly communist state, West Bengal, ranks second with 30 per cent.

—The most thickly populated state is Prime Minister Nehru's home province of Uttar Pradesh. But here, only 1-6 of the people are literate.

—The most backward stated educationally are disputed Kashmir and Jammu and the former princely state of Rajashthan. Less than 1-7 of the population can read or write in these regions.

Mitra said India's population had increased by about 21 per cent in the past 10 years. He had warned that serious danger was in the offing if this "phenomenal" increase was not checked.

The commissioner placed India's average life expectancy at 45. Under the British regime it was 32.

He said the statistics indicate girls in the first few years of life suffer from greater neglect than boys.

A heavy toll of female lives is still taken in the earlier reproductive ages (15-34), he said.

Mitra said: "On the assumption of a round figure of 3,000 millions as the population of the world in 1961, and an inhabited land area of 135.16 million square kilometres, India accounted for about 2.4 per cent of the world's land area but 16.6 per cent of the world's population.

"In population, India is second in the world only to China."

Most Of India's 439 Million Are Illiterate

NEW DELHI (UPI) — As many as 335 million of India's total population do not know how to read or write.

This was revealed by Census Commissioner A. K. Mirtra, who recently announced the final total of the 1961 headcount as 439,235,462 persons, including 226,293,620 males and 212,941,462 females.

Of these, he said only 77,828,162 men and 27,505,118 women are literate.

Mitra gave the following additional information:

—The best educated of India's 15 states is the communist stronghold of Kerala where 50 per cent of the people are literate. The literacy ratio between men and women is 60-40.

—Another strongly communist state, West Bengal, ranks second with 30 per cent.

—The most thickly populated state is Prime Minister Nehru's home province of Uttar Pradesh. But here, only 1-6 of the people are literate.

—The most backward stated educationally are disputed Kashmir and Jammu and the former princely state of Rajashthan. Less than 1-7 of the population can read or write in these regions.

Mitra said India's population had increased by about 21 per cent in the past 10 years. He had warned that serious danger was in the offing if this "phenomenal" increase was not checked.

The commissioner placed India's average life expectancy at 45. Under the British regime it was 32.

He said the statistics indicate girls in the first few years of life suffer from greater neglect than boys.

A heavy toll of female lives is still taken in the earlier reproductive ages (15-34), he said.

Mitra said: "On the assumption of a round figure of 3,000 millions as the population of the world in 1961, and an inhabited land area of 135.16 million square kilometres, India accounted for about 2.4 per cent of the world's land area but 16.6 per cent of the world's population.

"In population, India is second in the world only to China."

Md. Women Tour Capital, Back Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — A large group of Maryland women came to Washington Wednesday to tour embassies and express support for Rep. Thomas F. Johnson, D-Md., in his bid for re-election.

Manuel Buarque, aide of Johnson, said more than 300 were in the group, and that between 500 and 600 are expected Thursday for similar activities.

Mrs. Johnson, in welcoming the group at a luncheon on Capitol Hill, expressed gratitude for the confidence shown in her husband and for the support by voluntary campaign workers and others.

The visitors were from the more northern counties of Cecil, Kent, Queen Annes and Talbot. Thursday's group, Buarque said, will come from the counties of Caroline, Dorchester, Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester.

Buarque said the women are paying for the bus and car rides to Washington.

"We paid for the luncheon," he said, but added that Johnson is "not paying a penny" of the transportation costs.

Asked why visits to the embassies were planned, Buarque said a suggestion for such a tour sometime ago was enthusiastically received.

"So we decided to have these embassy tours," he added.

He said Johnson and Mrs. J. Millard Tawes, wife of the governor, expect to be here Thursday for the visit of the second group.

Buarque said the response to Johnson's two-day program shows that his indictment by a federal grand jury will have no effect on his chances for re-election.

Johnson has been charged with conflict of interest and conspiracy to defraud the Justice Department in connection with a savings and loan case.

$1.8 Million Owed State For Medicare

BALTIMORE (AP) — Patients and their legally responsible relatives owe Maryland more than $1.8 million for care received in state mental and chronic disease hospitals.

Officials consider most of that sum collectable. But, they say, about $443,560 has accumulated in 1,742 accounts on which no payment has been made during the past six months.

The division of reimbursement in the Department of Mental Hygiene is responsible for collecting the bills. Before the division was established four years ago, the bills were collected by political subdivisions.

The division determines the financial ability of the patients and legally responsible relatives and bills them accordingly. About 5 per cent are billed for the total cost of their treatment. About 35 per cent pay nothing. About 60 per cent are sent bills covering partial costs.

Maryland News In Brief

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Mrs. John L. Whitehurst has been elected to the executive committee of the National Association of Governing Boards. She is a member of the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland.

FEDERALSBURG, Md. (AP) — A hay loader tipped over and killed Oliver Burnnell, about 51, as he drove the vehicle down a ramp.

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, and Rep. William Dawson, D-Ill, have been admitted to the U.S. Naval Hospital. Lausche complained of chest pains and fatigue. The reason for admittance of Dawson was not announced.

BALTIMORE (AP) — It's all right, says the Maryland attorney general's office, to serve food and drink at a political meeting. The refreshments do not constitute bribery of voters.

In fact, said assistant attorney general Robert F. Sweeney, the food and drink might compensate the voter "for the speeches he must endure."

The ruling was requested by James E. Thompson Jr., state's attorney in Queen Annes County.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Condition of Lottie Mae Neal, 17-year-old Vienna, Md., girl accidentally shot through the eye Tuesday, was listed as satisfactory Wednesday at University Hospital.

State Police said she was shot when a 22-caliber rifle held by George Cephas Jr., 18, accidentally discharged.

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Judge W. Laird Henry sentenced Emilio Cintron to four years in the House of Correction Wednesday after Cintron pleaded guilty of manslaughter.

Cintron, 30, of Billalba, Puerto Rico, was charged in the fatal shooting June 26 of Alejandaro Soler Ruiz, 26, at a migrant labor camp in Dorchester County.

Ruiz was shot after a fight.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland's draft quota for December will be 84, the state's highest since last January. Half of the total will be drafted Dec. 7 and the remainder Dec. 14.

Brig. Gen. Henry C. Stanwood, chief of Maryland's Selective Service System, said Wednesday that 30 per cent of the December quota would be volunteers and the age of draftees would be 23 years and 5 months.

The quota is 57 for November, when the oldest man drafted will be 23 years, 3 months.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Among pupils in Maryland's public schools, 87.4 per cent of the boys and 81.3 per cent of the girls in grades 7 through 12 are taking part in physical education.

A report from the State Department of Education showed Baltimore City ranked the highest, with percentage figures of 99.9 and 99.7 for boys and girls, respectively. Queen Annes County had the lowest, 66.1 for boys and 55.8 for girls.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The Rev. Cedric Earl Mills of Baltimore was named bishop of the Virgin Islands Wednesday by the House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church.

Bishop Mills, 58-year-old native of Hartford Conn., is now rector of St. James Episcopal Church in Baltimore. He was ordained into the Episcopal ministry in 1929.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Problems of urban living will be the topic of a one-day symposium conducted by the Maryland Conference of Social Welfare in Baltimore Nov. 16.

Subjects to be treated in 12 workshop sessions range from equal opportunities in employment to methods of communicating with the public.

New Bank Approved

BALTIMORE (AP) — Preliminary approval has been given by the comptroller of the currency for start of the National City Bank of Baltimore.

The new bank, which would be the first to be established within the city limits of Baltimore in many years, would have an initial capital of $3 million.

Bernard Dackman, an attorney and vice president of Key Federal Savings and Loan Association, has been one of the key organizers of the new bank.

Two Arrested In Gaming Raid; $7,700 Seized

BALTIMORE (AP) — Six federal agents and a U.S. marshal raided an apartment in the Washington suburb of Suitland Wednesday, arresting two men and seizing $7,700 in cash.

The Internal Revenue Service in Baltimore said the two men were charged with failure to have a $50 federal wagering tax stamp. They were identified as Murray E. Freeman, 49, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., self-employed, and John Theodore Jampalis, 35, of Arlington, Va., a part-time auto salesman.

They were to be arraigned later Wednesday before U.S. Commissioner Samuel W. H. Meloy in Upper Marlboro.

Agents of the Washington office of the IRS Intelligence Division made the raid at the apartment house in Suitland Prince Georges County.

Richard L. Edlin, an IRS public information officer in Baltimore, said that in addition to the cash the agents seized a 1961 automobile, telephones, numbers slips and other paraphernalia. Edlin said the operation did a business of more than $1.3 million annually.

National Park Service Plans Parkway Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Park Service plans to start a feasibility study of the proposed Allegheny parkway around Nov. 12, according to Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

The first step in the survey will be aerial mapping of the proposed route plus limited field work as long as weather permits.

Byrd, who was told the park service hopes to complete the survey sometime next year, said he plans, if re-elected, to introduce a bill in the next congress to establish the parkway. This will allow Congress to consider authorization of the project if the study shows it to be feasible, he added.

The parkway would start near Hagerstown, Md., run southward along high mountain ridges and end at Cumberland Gap national historical park near the Kentucky-Tennessee border.

Baltimore Shelves Type III Vaccine

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore City health commissioner said Wednesday the Type III oral polio vaccine will not be distributed as originally scheduled.

Dr. Robert E. Farber, the commissioner, said Type II would be given as scheduled, however, from Nov. 15 to 17. Type I was administered in October.

Distribution of Type III was discontinued in some areas after several cases of polio were reported by persons who had taken the vaccine. Distribution in Baltimore had been scheduled for January.

Baltimore Shelves Type III Vaccine

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore City health commissioner said Wednesday the Type III oral polio vaccine will not be distributed as originally scheduled.

Dr. Robert E. Farber, the commissioner, said Type II would be given as scheduled, however, from Nov. 15 to 17. Type I was administered in October.

Distribution of Type III was discontinued in some areas after several cases of polio were reported by persons who had taken the vaccine. Distribution in Baltimore had been scheduled for January.

More Comfort Wearing FALSE TEETH
Here is a pleasant way to overcome loose plate discomfort. FASTEETH, an improved powder, sprinkled on upper and lower plates holds them firmer so that they feel more comfortable. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH today at any drug counter.

Rockefeller's Forces Battle Voter Apathy

By ROBERT T. GRAY

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller appears assured of winning re-election in New York state. But the GOP is worried about voter apathy that could lead to a sharp cut in the governor's plurality.

Rockefeller forces are pushing for a big victory to establish the governor as a leading contender for the Republican nomination for President in 1964.

Rockefeller's Democratic opponent is Robert M. Morgenthau, 43, former federal prosecutor, a U.S. Navy veteran and the son of Henry Morgenthau Jr., U.S. secretary of the treasury in the New Deal era.

Rockefeller, 54, retains the bounce and enthusiasm that have made his grass-roots campaign techniques among the most effective in politics.

His divorce earlier this year, which chilled many state Republican leaders, does not appear to have harmed the governor politically to any significant degree.

Morgenthau was chosen by Democratic leaders in the belief that his name, his war record and his service as U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York also were considered assets.

The campaign has not excited voter interest. Rockefeller is widely considered to be a shoo-in and no sustained issues have evolved.

Morgenthau failed in an effort to turn the election into a test of strength between Democratic President Kennedy and Rockefeller.

The Cuban crisis broke, Rockefeller repeatedly pledged support of the President's stand and Morgenthau abandoned the theme that a vote for Rockefeller was a vote against Kennedy.

Morgenthau contends the state has lagged economically, that the governor has short-changed education and other needs in an effort to maintain pay-as-you-go and that, unless a Democrat is elected, new tax increases are inevitable.

Rockefeller won election in 1958 by 573,000 votes over the Democratic incumbent, Averell Harriman. In many quarters, that figure will be used as a guide to determine how the Rockefeller programs have appealed to voters in a key state.

In the New York race for the U.S. Senate, incumbent Jacob K. Javits, a Republican, is considered a favorite to defeat Democrat James B. Donovan, a New York City lawyer who has spent much of the campaign on his job as chief negotiator for the release of Cuban invaders held prisoner by the Castro government.

Sub Tender Returns

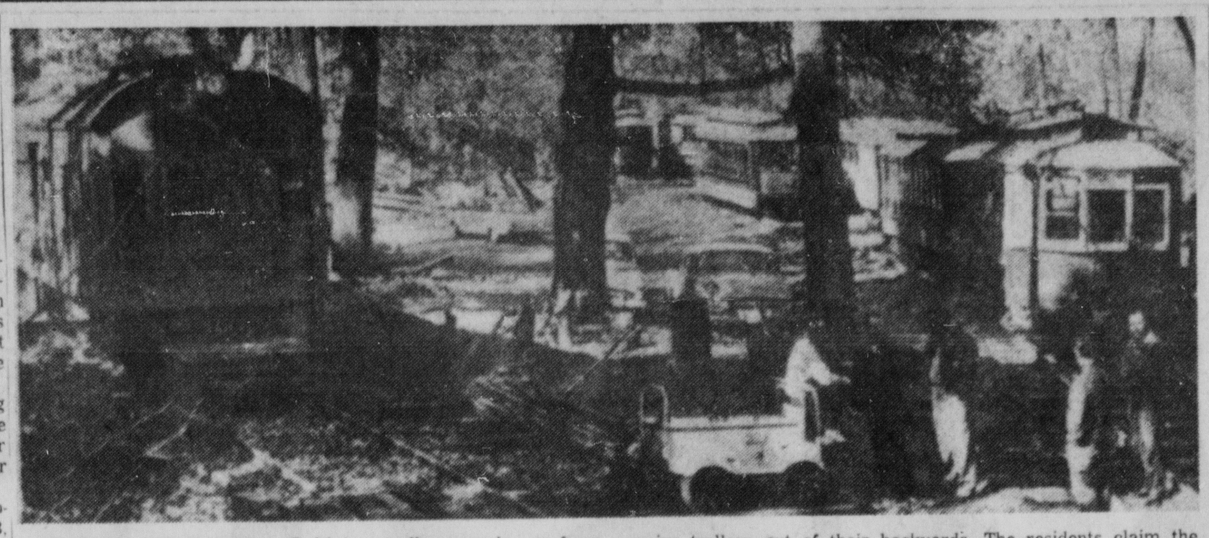
GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI)—U.S. Polaris nuclear submarine-tender Proteus returned Wednesday to Holy Loch. It had been at sea since last Wednesday.

Season's First Snow

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI) — The season's first snow fell on the slopes of Mt. Etna Wednesday.

The first flag of the Confederacy consisted of a red field with a white stripe in the middle third and a blue jack with a circle of white stars. Later the more popular flag was the red field with blue diagonal cross bars that held white stars.

Harvard College was founded in 1636.



TROLLEY CAR HAVEN — Baltimore trolley cars in use from 1889-1930 have been retired to Robert E. Lee Memorial Park in Baltimore for use as a trolley car museum. Residents of the area are not trolley car enthusiasts and are fighting to get the noisy trolleys out of their backyards. The residents claim the trolleys disturb their sleep and lower the value of their properties. (AP Photofax)

TOKYO (UPI)— An electric train being developed to speed service between Tokyo and Osaka in time for the 1964 Olympics was clocked Wednesday at 127 miles an hour, a new Japanese record.

U.S. Nuclear Weapons Spending Up $194 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission disclosed Tuesday that U.S. spending on nuclear weapons jumped $194 million in the fiscal year ended June 30.

This increase was nearly 38 per cent over the previous year, the commission said in a financial report for fiscal 1962.

"This is due in large part," the commission said, "to the resumption of full-scale weapons tests."

The AEC spent $512,317,000 on "weapons development and fabrication" in fiscal 1961 and $706 million last year. Ten years ago the weapons bill was only $257.5 million.

In most other major categories the commission spent less in fiscal 1962 than in 1961. Raw material procurement continued to decline, and the cost of nuclear explosives and fuels reached a seven-year low of $689 million.

The campaign has not excited voter interest. Rockefeller is widely considered to be a shoo-in and no sustained issues have evolved.

Morgenthau failed in an effort to turn the election into a test of strength between Democratic President Kennedy and Rockefeller.

The Cuban crisis broke, Rockefeller repeatedly pledged support of the President's stand and Morgenthau abandoned the theme that a vote for Rockefeller was a vote against Kennedy.

Morgenthau contends the state has lagged economically, that the governor has short-changed education and other needs in an effort to maintain pay-as-you-go and that, unless a Democrat is elected, new tax increases are inevitable.

Rockefeller won election in 1958 by 573,000 votes over the Democratic incumbent, Averell Harriman. In many quarters, that figure will be used as a guide to determine how the Rockefeller programs have appealed to voters in a key state.

In the New York race for the U.S. Senate, incumbent Jacob K. Javits, a Republican, is considered a favorite to defeat Democrat James B. Donovan, a New York City lawyer who has spent much of the campaign on his job as chief negotiator for the release of Cuban invaders held prisoner by the Castro government.

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI)—U.S. Polaris nuclear submarine-tender Proteus returned Wednesday to Holy Loch. It had been at sea since last Wednesday.

Season's First Snow

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI) — The season's first snow fell on the slopes of Mt. Etna Wednesday.

The first flag of the Confederacy consisted of a red field with a white stripe in the middle third and a blue jack with a circle of white stars. Later the more popular flag was the red field with blue diagonal cross bars that held white stars.

TROLLEY CAR HAVEN — Baltimore trolley cars in use from 1889-1930 have been retired to Robert E. Lee Memorial Park in Baltimore for use as a trolley car museum. Residents of the area are not trolley car enthusiasts and are fighting to get the noisy trolleys out of their backyards. The residents claim the trolleys disturb their sleep and lower the value of their properties. (AP Photofax)

U.S. Nuclear Weapons Spending Up $194 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission disclosed Tuesday that U.S. spending on nuclear weapons jumped $194 million in the fiscal year ended June 30.

This increase was nearly 38 per cent over the previous year, the commission said in a financial report for fiscal 1962.

"This is due in large part," the commission said, "to the resumption of full-scale weapons tests."

The AEC spent $512,317,000 on "weapons development and fabrication" in fiscal 1961 and $706 million last year. Ten years ago the weapons bill was only $257.5 million.

In most other major categories the commission spent less in fiscal 1962 than in 1961. Raw material procurement continued to decline, and the cost of nuclear explosives and fuels reached a seven-year low of $689 million.

NEW YORK (AP)—Wall Streeters are trying their hardest to figure out the future course of the stock market in view of the Cuban crisis turning from red hot to cool.

Opinions of investment analysts range from caution to optimism.

Leslie M. Polfack of the brokerage firm, A. M. Kidder & Co., taking a middle course, comments that while it seems as if the United States has won a victory and increased its stature, investors should await the decision of the market before becoming bullish.

"Cuba is not our only problem and we still have the stagnating domestic economy as well as our alarming gold loss to contend with," he says.

As another analyst, L. O. Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co., sees it, the market at the beginning of this week made an attempt to respond to the military command: "As you were."

"Investors and traders put stocks back to about where they would have been had there been no acute Cuban crisis last week," he observes.

"The market definitely was in retreat before the crisis, and the burden of proof is on those who say it is not still in retreat."

On the optimistic side is the advisory service, Smilen & Safian, which suggests that last week's action concerning Cuba may be interpreted from many points of view but for the stock market its implications are entirely bullish.

Not Theft To Take Coins From Fountain

TRIESTE, Italy (AP) — A Trieste court has exonerated German tourist Albert Neuwmann of Stuttgart and ruled it was not theft to take coins out of public fountains.

Neuwmann was accused of taking out of the Miramare Castle Park fountain coins that other tourists, as is the custom in Italy, tossed in for good fortune.

He said he just wanted them as souvenirs.

Soviet Swindler Sentenced To Death

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Russian fruit store director was sentenced to death for swindling and using the proceeds to buy two cars and build a private mansion with a swimming pool, the newspaper Soviet Trade reported Tuesday.

Soviet Trade said that Pyotr Bogdanov, the fruit store director, and three accomplices received 30 tons of tangerines at the state fruit store in Saratov where they were employed.

"Sometime later they signed a document in which they wrote off some 11 tons of tangerines as rotten, but which they sold in various shops," the newspaper said.

One of Bogdanov's accomplices, S. K. Kurmakayev, received a 2 - year prison term, while the other two, A. G. Chizova and V. V. Kalganova, were sentenced to eight year terms by a regional court.

Vicar "Too Religious"

SMIETHWICK, England (UPI) —The Rev. W. J. Peter Boyd, vicar of St. Paul's Church here, said Wednesday a poll showed that most of his parishioners believe he is "too religious."

The rich farm lands of Arizona produce more revenue than do the state's celebrated mines and cattle country together.

Many 'Fatties' Under-Average Eaters

CHICAGO (AP)—Don't assume all fat people are gluttons with no will power. Many of them eat less and exercise more than trim individuals.

A group of researchers conducting pioneer studies reported there has been a "complete turnabout in thinking and research" on the causes and corpulence.

They said animal experiments and recent human studies indicate that metabolic differences — the manner in which the body disposes of food calories after they are eaten-can cause some persons to gain but others to lose weight on the same amount of food consumption and energy output.

"Physicians could use this evidence to eliminate the guilt complex some overweight children have because their acquaintances assume they are gluttons without strong will," said one of the researchers, Dr. Felix P. Heald, of Washington, D.C.

The general assumption has been that an individual's weight is determined by the amount of food intake and activity—if more calories are consumed than burned up in the living process, the excess calories turn into fat.

That basic premise still holds, the researchers said, but rather large differences exist among some individuals on the rate that food calories are burned up.

Rural Scouting Director Visits This Section

Charles S. Griffin, assistant national director of rural scouting for the Boy Scouts of America, will spend today and tomorrow in the territory served by Potomac Council, it was announced by M. S. Brookhart, council president.

The Potomac Council, a County United Fund agency, "has a large number of potential members in the rural areas of Allegany and Garrett counties, and Hardy, Hampshire, Grant and Mineral counties of West Virginia," Brookhart said, "and Mr. Griffin can give us the latest information on how to best reach these boys."

Yesterday was spent in conferences with key Council Scouters and the executive staff. Today, Griffin will meet with the officers of the Tri-Valley District in Keyser, and will address the Keyser Rotary Club at noon. In the afternoon, he will visit rural leaders of Hampshire, Hardy and Grant counties, followed by a dinner and meeting with this group at the McNeill Hotel, Moorefield.

Tomorrow, Griffin will visit rural leaders of Garrett County, Brokhart said. He will address the Oakland Rotary Club tomorrow evening, an event to which the Friendsville and Grantsville clubs have been invited. Following the Rotary meeting, Griffin will visit the training course for Deep Creek District Cub and Scout Leaders at the Southern High School.

Griffin is a graduate of Iowa State College and did graduate work at Iowa State and Western Michigan. While teaching school at Muskegon Heights, Mich., he served as a scoutmaster and neighborhood commissioner. He entered scouting professionally in 1938 in Kalamazoo, Michigan, and transferred to the Wabash Valley Council at Terre Haute, Ind., as Scout Executive in 1941.

North End High School Plans Discussed

A detailed discussion was held this week by school officials with architects for the North End junior high school to be erected on the County Farm property at the end of Franklin Street.

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, said Lee Murray, of the Johannes and Murray firm of architects at Silver Spring, came here to go over the plans for the school.

Webster said that the new school, which is intended to take some of the pressure from Allegany High School, will have facilities for 1,000 students but that the initial enrollment will probably be about 800 boys and girls. The teaching positions will include 42 instructors.

At the conference with Murray, the supervisors of the various school departments such as art, home economics, industrial arts and music were brought in to give aid in the layout and equipment of the new junior high.

Webster said the new school will have a language laboratory complete with the necessary equipment and this will provide a program earlier than usual in the school system.

The preliminary plans will be sent to the State Board of Education for approval in the near future and after the state officials give the okay the firm of architects will proceed with working plans.

Building of the new school on the County Farm will result in moving the county garage facility to a new site on McMullen Highway which was given to the county by the Celanese Corporation of America in recognition of the "tried and trusted services" of County Commissioner John J. Rowan for 35 years. The Celanese tract comprises 20.4 acres of land.

Rural Scouting Director Visits This Section

Charles S. Griffin, assistant national director of rural scouting for the Boy Scouts of America, will spend today and tomorrow in the territory served by Potomac Council, it was announced by M. S. Brookhart, council president.

The Potomac Council, a County United Fund agency, "has a large number of potential members in the rural areas of Allegany and Garrett counties, and Hardy, Hampshire, Grant and Mineral counties of West Virginia," Brookhart said, "and Mr. Griffin can give us the latest information on how to best reach these boys."

Yesterday was spent in conferences with key Council Scouters and the executive staff. Today, Griffin will meet with the officers of the Tri-Valley District in Keyser, and will address the Keyser Rotary Club at noon. In the afternoon, he will visit rural leaders of Hampshire, Hardy and Grant counties, followed by a dinner and meeting with this group at the McNeill Hotel, Moorefield.

Tomorrow, Griffin will visit rural leaders of Garrett County, Brokhart said. He will address the Oakland Rotary Club tomorrow evening, an event to which the Friendsville and Grantsville clubs have been invited. Following the Rotary meeting, Griffin will visit the training course for Deep Creek District Cub and Scout Leaders at the Southern High School.

Griffin is a graduate of Iowa State College and did graduate work at Iowa State and Western Michigan. While teaching school at Muskegon Heights, Mich., he served as a scoutmaster and neighborhood commissioner. He entered scouting professionally in 1938 in Kalamazoo, Michigan, and transferred to the Wabash Valley Council at Terre Haute, Ind., as Scout Executive in 1941.

Church Scrubbing

LONDON (UPI) — Dr. W. R. Mathews, dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, said Wednesday the cathedral will receive its first cleaning in 250 years. Only "water and elbow grease" will be used to remove grime one inch thick in some places.

North End High School Plans Discussed

A detailed discussion was held this week by school officials with architects for the North End junior high school to be erected on the County Farm property at the end of Franklin Street.

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, said Lee Murray, of the Johannes and Murray firm of architects at Silver Spring, came here to go over the plans for the school.

Webster said that the new school, which is intended to take some of the pressure from Allegany High School, will have facilities for 1,000 students but that the initial enrollment will probably be about 800 boys and girls. The teaching positions will include 42 instructors.

At the conference with Murray, the supervisors of the various school departments such as art, home economics, industrial arts and music were brought in to give aid in the layout and equipment of the new junior high.

Webster said the new school will have a language laboratory complete with the necessary equipment and this will provide a program earlier than usual in the school system.

The preliminary plans will be sent to the State Board of Education for approval in the near future and after the state officials give the okay the firm of architects will proceed with working plans.

Building of the new school on the County Farm will result in moving the county garage facility to a new site on McMullen Highway which was given to the county by the Celanese Corporation of America in recognition of the "tried and trusted services" of County Commissioner John J. Rowan for 35 years. The Celanese tract comprises 20.4 acres of land.

Engineer Unit Offers County Advisory Help

The Cumberland chapter of the Maryland Society of Professional Engineers has offered its services to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners in an advisory capacity in the establishment of the County Engineering Department.

This offer was made in a letter from R. R. Leonard, president of the Cumberland chapter.

Back on September 18 the county commissioners took unanimous action in the first step toward creation of the County Engineering Department. The commissioners voted that day to have the County Planning and Zoning Commission set up specifications for a county engineer.

This action was taken on motion of Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon, seconded by Commissioner John T. Mason and concurred in by Commissioner John J. Rowan.

C. Lee Renaud, county planning director, has done some preliminary work on these specifications but they have not yet been presented to the full County Planning and Zoning Commission.

Mr. Leonard's letter to the commissioners read in part:

"It is becoming increasingly necessary for governmental bodies to engage the services of competent engineers. These engineers can advise upon the proper course of action to be taken in all types of public works such as sewers, water systems, highways, public buildings, area development and redevelopment projects.

"In the creation of a County Engineering Department, it is of the utmost importance that the individuals engaged be professionally qualified and legally registered. . .

"Since the Cumberland chapter of the Maryland Society of Professional Engineers includes within its membership a majority of all the registered professional engineers in Allegany County, it thus becomes the only local source of qualified and experienced engineers able to assist in the establishment of criteria for the selection of the various engineering professionals essential for the various fields of engineering effort and to define the duties and responsibilities of the individuals so selected.

"Therefore we do hereby offer to give whatever counsel and guidance you may require in these matters. At your request, we shall make available competent professional engineers to assist you in forming said County Engineering Department."

Tawes Victory

the county because neither candidate has an especial appeal. If so, this could help Tawes and the remainder of his ticket.

Plenty Of Guesswork

The big guessing game concerns whether Tawes will pick up most of the votes which went to David Hume and George P. Mahoney in the primary.

In other counties, Tawes is rated ahead in Frederick, gaining ground and probably ahead in Washington, about even in Allegany, and trailing in Garrett.

Tawes lost Washington County to Hume in the primary, but measures to ease unemployment and unravel construction and administrative problems at the State Reformatory for Males may have given the Democrats a boost since the primary. Both sides predict victory.

Frederick gave Tawes an edge of 4,600 in 1958, and the governor carried the county easily in the primary. His conservative money policies appeal to the rural voters, and Democrats expect Tawes to win by 2,500.

Atty. Gen. Finan, a Cumberland native, should help Tawes in Allegany. Republicans, with a 4,700 majority, are continuing on a heavy turnout because of the concentrated local campaign. And they expect the name of Glenn Beall Jr., son of the U.S. senator and a GOP candidate for the House of Delegates, to counteract the presence of Finan on the Democratic side.

A Quiet Campaign

Garrett County is expected to land in the Republican column, but its registration of only 9,734 will necessarily limit the size of any victory. Tawes carried Garrett by 479 votes in 1956.

The campaign throughout the district has been generally quiet and anti-climactic after the Democratic primary fight. The undynamic personalities of the gubernatorial candidates apparently has been a big factor. One observer said if Tawes and Small ever debated on television both would lose the election.

In the 6th District congressional race, pollsters figure Foley must win Montgomery County by 8,000 to 10,000 votes to have a chance of unseating Mathias. That seems a tall order, since Foley carried the county by less than 2,300 votes two years ago.

Foley has concentrated his efforts on Montgomery, while pinning his hopes elsewhere on the strength of the Democratic ticket. But organized labor, once solidly behind Foley, has been lukewarm in its support since he failed to take a stand on the Landrum-Griffin bill while a member of Congress in 1959. The bill offers protection for rank-and-file union members against dictatorial labor leaders.

Steers Vs. Sickles

Labor has given its 100 per cent backing to Carlton R. Sickles, the Democratic candidate for congressman-at-large. But Steers has been gaining ground in a hard campaign, and members of both parties feel he does best when campaigning alone.

Steers is rated ahead of Sickles in the GOP strongholds of Allegany and Garrett, and neck-and-neck in Washington and Frederick counties.

As in the race for governor, the trend in Montgomery isn't clear. It is the home county of Steers, but Sickles is popular with the liberal element and drew a heavy vote in the primary. GOP leaders hope that Sickles, the only member of the Mahoney ticket to win, may not be acceptable to Tawes' supporters.

The Democratic registration majority could well be the deciding factor in a race considered by most observers to be the most difficult to predict.

HAUGERS EXPAND — This new storeroom which doubles the size of the business quarters of Ward N. Hauger on North Centre Street will open officially today, tomorrow and Saturday in connection with the jewelry firm's 20th anniversary. The store also will expand its line of merchandise. Hauger's is the official watch inspection station for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the Western Maryland Railway.

Beer License Issued

James L. Fisher has obtained permission from the Allegany County Board of Alcoholic Beverages License Commissioners and has transferred his Class D beer license to 241 Henderson Avenue from 249 Henderson Avenue.

Michigan has 11,037 inland lakes within its boundaries.

Electrical Fire Sends Firemen To White Oaks

South End firemen had their first call to the new White Oaks Shopping Center at 7:26 p. m. yesterday when an electrical fire developed in the building which eventually will house the Acme Market.

Firemen were at the scene nearly an hour, returning to their station at 8:23 p. m. but part of the delay was waiting for the arrival of a Potomac Edison crew.

The fusebox at the new store was ruined but it was understood there was little other damage. However, the parking lot at the shopping center was plunged into darkness because the fire affected the outside lights there.

205 Couples Get Licenses To Marry During October

Some 205 marriage licenses were issued during October in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

That total was nine more than the 196 obtained in October 1961. After 10 months, the 1962 total of 2,081 is running 4.1 per cent ahead of the 1,995 issued in the same period of 1961.

The monthly totals, with 1961 figures listed first in each case:

January — 150 and 164; February — 141 and 163; March — 158 and 176; April — 168 and 166; May — 200 and 220; June — 273 and 273; July — 209 and 236; August — 271 and 292; September — 229 and 186, and October — 196 and 205.

the Fifth District. Eight precincts in South Baltimore were transferred from the Fifth District to the Third District.

Because of the petitions for referendum, Chapter 206 never became effective. Pending the results of this referendum, the seven existing districts have remained the same for the 1962 Congressional elections and Maryland's eighth representative is being elected from the state at large.

The League of Women Voters of Maryland has been a leader in the campaign against Question No. 6.

The League of Women Voters points out that Maryland's population in 1960 was 3,100,689. If the districts could be divided equally, the average district would contain just under 400,000 in population.

Although it is not feasible to divide the population into eight mathematically equal districts, the women voters' group argues that an attempt should be made to create districts with approximately equal populations. The disparity of 243,000 in the First District and 622,000 in the Second District is too great to be considered fair representation, they contend. The Sixth District embracing Western Maryland has 608,666, ranking just behind the Second District.

Engineer Unit Offers County Advisory Help

The Cumberland chapter of the Maryland Society of Professional Engineers has offered its services to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners in an advisory capacity in the establishment of the County Engineering Department.

This offer was made in a letter from R. R. Leonard, president of the Cumberland chapter.

Back on September 18 the county commissioners took unanimous action in the first step toward creation of the County Engineering Department. The commissioners voted that day to have the County Planning and Zoning Commission set up specifications for a county engineer.

This action was taken on motion of Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon, seconded by Commissioner John T. Mason and concurred in by Commissioner John J. Rowan.

C. Lee Renaud, county planning director, has done some preliminary work on these specifications but they have not yet been presented to the full County Planning and Zoning Commission.

Mr. Leonard's letter to the commissioners read in part:

"It is becoming increasingly necessary for governmental bodies to engage the services of competent engineers. These engineers can advise upon the proper course of action to be taken in all types of public works such as sewers, water systems, highways, public buildings, area development and redevelopment projects.

"In the creation of a County Engineering Department, it is of the utmost importance that the individuals engaged be professionally qualified and legally registered...

"Since the Cumberland chapter of the Maryland Society of Professional Engineers includes within its membership a majority of all the registered professional engineers in Allegany County, it thus becomes the only local source of qualified and experienced engineers able to assist in the establishment of criteria for the selection of the various engineering professionals essential for the various fields of engineering effort and to define the duties and responsibilities of the individuals so selected.

"Therefore we do hereby offer to give whatever counsel and guidance you may require in these matters. At your request, we shall make available competent professional engineers to assist you in forming said County Engineering Department."

Tawes Victory

the county because neither candidate has an especial appeal. If so, this could help Tawes and the remainder of his ticket.

Plenty Of Guesswork

The big guessing game concerns whether Tawes will pick up most of the votes which went to David Hume and George P. Mahoney in the primary.

In other counties, Tawes is rated ahead in Frederick, gaining ground and probably ahead in Washington, about even in Allegany, and trailing in Garrett.

Tawes lost Washington County to Hume in the primary, but measures to ease unemployment and unravel construction and administrative problems at the State Reformatory for Males may have given the Democrats a boost since the primary. Both sides predict victory.

Frederick gave Tawes an edge of 4,600 in 1958, and the governor carried the county easily in the primary. His conservative money policies appeal to the rural voters, and Democrats expect Tawes to win by 2,500.

Atty. Gen. Finan, a Cumberland native, should help Tawes in Allegany. Republicans, with a 4,700 majority, are continuing on a heavy turnout because of the concentrated local campaign. And they expect the name of Glenn Beall Jr., son of the U.S. senator and a GOP candidate for the House of Delegates, to counteract the presence of Finan on the Democratic side.

A Quiet Campaign

Garrett County is expected to land in the Republican column, but its registration of only 9,734 will necessarily limit the size of any victory. Tawes carried Garrett by 479 votes in 1956.

The campaign throughout the district has been generally quiet and anti-climactic after the Democratic primary fight. The undynamic personalities of the gubernatorial candidates apparently has been a big factor. One observer said if Tawes and Small ever debated on television both would lose the election.

In the 6th District congressional race, pollsters figure Foley must win Montgomery County by 8,000 to 10,000 votes to have a chance of unseating Mathias. That seems a tall order, since Foley carried the county by less than 2,300 votes two years ago.

Foley has concentrated his efforts on Montgomery, while pinning his hopes elsewhere on the strength of the Democratic ticket. But organized labor, once solidly behind Foley, has been lukewarm in its support since he failed to take a stand on the Landrum-Griffin bill while a member of Congress in 1959. The bill offers protection for rank-and-file union members against dictatorial labor leaders.

Steers Vs. Sickles

Labor has given its 100 per cent backing to Carlton R. Sickles, the Democratic candidate for congressman-at-large. But Steers has been gaining ground in a hard campaign, and members of both parties feel he does best when campaigning alone.

Steers is rated ahead of Sickles in the GOP strongholds of Allegany and Garrett, and neck-and-neck in Washington and Frederick counties.

As in the race for governor, the trend in Montgomery isn't clear. It is the home county of Steers, but Sickles is popular with the liberal element and drew a heavy vote in the primary. GOP leaders hope that Sickles, the only member of the Mahoney ticket to win, may not be acceptable to Tawes' supporters.

The Democratic registration majority could well be the deciding factor in a race considered by most observers to be the most difficult to predict.

HAUGERS EXPAND — This new storeroom which doubles the size of the business quarters of Ward N. Electrical Fire Sends Firemen To White Oaks

South End firemen had their first call to the new White Oaks Shopping Center at 7:26 p. m. yesterday when an electrical fire developed in the building which eventually will house the Acme Market.

Firemen were at the scene nearly an hour, returning to their station at 8:23 p. m. but part of the delay was waiting for the arrival of a Potomac Edison crew.

The fusebox at the new store was ruined but it was understood there was little other damage. However, the parking lot at the shopping center was plunged into darkness because the fire affected the outside lights there.

205 Couples Get Licenses To Marry During October

Some 205 marriage licenses were issued during October in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

That total was nine more than the 196 obtained in October 1961. After 10 months, the 1962 total of 2,081 is running 4.1 per cent ahead of the 1,995 issued in the same period of 1961.

The monthly totals, with 1961 figures listed first in each case:

January — 150 and 164; February — 141 and 163; March — 158 and 176; April — 168 and 166; May — 200 and 220; June — 273 and 273; July — 209 and 236; August — 271 and 292; September — 229 and 186, and October — 196 and 205.

the Fifth District. Eight precincts in South Baltimore were transferred from the Fifth District to the Third District.

Because of the petitions for referendum, Chapter 206 never became effective. Pending the results of this referendum, the seven existing districts have remained the same for the 1962 Congressional elections and Maryland's eighth representative is being elected from the state at large.

The League of Women Voters of Maryland has been a leader in the campaign against Question No. 6.

The League of Women Voters points out that Maryland's population in 1960 was 3,100,689. If the districts could be divided equally, the average district would contain just under 400,000 in population.

Although it is not feasible to divide the population into eight mathematically equal districts, the women voters' group argues that an attempt should be made to create districts with approximately equal populations. The Sixth District embracing Western Maryland has 608,666, ranking just behind the Second District.

The Coordinating Council of Republican Clubs of Allegany County also opposes Question No. 6.

The Republican Statewide Ticket

In assessing the relative merits of the various candidates for statewide office in next Tuesday's general election we find a combination of age and youth and a great variety of experience among the representatives of both parties. We believe, however, that the shortcomings of the Tawes administration in the past four years justify serious consideration of Republican candidates for statewide office by all the voters.

Frank Small Jr., 66-year-old former Congressman, former motor vehicle commissioner and former member of the Racing Commission, has the experience and the qualifications of a good governor. He won easily in the Republican primary last spring and has proved a capable challenger to Governor Tawes. A former businessman and farmer, Mr. Small now is a bank president in Prince Georges County, and has the necessary background to give Maryland an efficient, businesslike administration.

Edward T. Miller, Republican candidate for U. S. Senator, is unquestionably qualified for the office, having served six terms in the House of Representatives. A lawyer, he is a veteran of both World Wars, including a tour as a major general in the Chinese Army during World War II.

Martin A. Ferris III, 37-year-old former assistant U. S. attorney for Maryland and present assistant counsel for the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia, likewise is qualified by training and experience for the office of Attorney General, now held by Thomas B. Finan, Allegany County Democrat.

David C. Champion of Greenbelt should be a good state comptroller. He is a 35-year-old industrial analyst experienced in accounting and auditing, now serving in his first elective office on the Greenbelt city council.

These Republican candidates, given the support of the voters next Tuesday, can return responsible, businesslike government to the State of Maryland.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Next Step

President Kennedy has estbalished three facts:

1. The United States is mighty and ready and will fight if need be;
2. The United States will not trade under a muzzle;
3. The United States seeks peace and will negotiate with anybody who is sincerely desirous of peace.

What comes next?

There is no key in the correspondence between President Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev to indicate what will happen next except that disarmament questions are left to the NATO powers and the Warsaw powers which could mean prolonged conversations. To me that clue means little more than the United States will not act alone and arbitrarily and will consult with its allies.

What about Castro? Is it possible to permit Fidel Castro to remain a nuisance in the Caribbean? Castro was ignored by both the United States and Soviet Russia. His name was not even mentioned. The United States acted as though Cuba were a possession of Soviet Russia; Khrushchev accepted the role of suzerain. Whether he consulted Castro at any point is not known. Essentially, the Cuban situation remains a Russo-American affair. But Castro is there.

The question arises in everyone's mind why Khrushchev should have reached a decision which includes an element of humiliation. Perhaps the answer can be found in President Kennedy's disinclination to make Cuba an issue for war or peace. We chose Berlin. Khrushchev attempted to divert us from Berlin to Cuba and succeeded in forcing our hand. We established the blockade around Cuba but also exposed our readiness to fight anywhere. We established that the "soft" period in our history is over. This applies to Berlin as it does to Cuba. Both President Kennedy and U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson emphasized the significance of Berlin. What is called "accommodation" is nonsense.

Khrushchev's defeat in Cuba strengthens our position among the NATO powers and gives courage to both West Germany and France concerning Berlin. Just as Mao Tze-tung tested our purpose and strength in the Korean War which we lost, so Khruschev tested our purpose and strength in Cuba. There we won.

Khrushchev's position was a weak one. Mao Tze-tung's war on India has upset the Communist World. Whereas India is not a satellite of Soviet Russia, it has nevertheless through Krishna Menon, permitted itself to be closely related to Russia so that Nehru's neutralism has become an impediment for a decent settlement of world affairs. Now India is being attacked viciously by Red China and Khrushchev is in serious difficulties.

If he supports his ally, Red China, he must oppose his friends Nehru and Krishna Menon; if he supports India, he violates the union of Communist countries, including the Warsaw Pact. If he remains neutral, it amounts to indecisiveness and a violation of the Warsaw Pact. What will Tito do? What will the East Germans do? Khrushchev's power is based upon decisions but he can make no decision with regard to India.

At such a moment, the United States chooses to expose to the world the Cuban missile build-up and to take warlike measures. It was splendid timing for the United States but very bad for Khrushchev. If he pursued the war with the United States, unless it were settled in a day, Mao Tze-tung would move on Turkestan and Siberia, completing his effort to reach the Chienlung line. From this Khrushchev backed away. The combination of forces was too much. He undoubtedly felt that sound statesmanship required that he live another day.

But there is more to be said. The Revolution has beyond doubt achieved more in 45 years than Lenin or anyone else expected. An atomic war, whatever it did to the United States, would wipe out the fruits of the Revolution. It would throw Russia back to 1917 and its industrial potential would disappear. It is doubtful if the Communist International, now held together by the Warsaw Pact, could survive a massive atomic attack.

A month from now, it will probably be seen that Khrushchev has not lost prestige within Soviet Russia. There the people believe "let you and him fight, but keep the war away from us."

Peaceful Coexistence

Cuba Victory Reward Of Stoutheartedness

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

In any historic drama like the Cuban crisis, it is always necessary to wait for the epilogue to be sure there is nothing misleading in the last act. But with this proviso, one may already say that President Kennedy appears to have won a remarkable victory.

It is, to be sure, a limited victory. Fidel Castro has been taught a bitterly sharp lesson, about the value of his Soviet connection among other things. But he has not yet been destroyed or driven from power; and if the Khrushchev-Kennedy agreement holds, Castro will even be guaranteed against invasion from American soil.

On this point, it is well to bear in mind the first rule of the earliest military theorist in history, who is also one of those who are still most worth reading. Nearly 25 centuries ago, the great Chinese, Sun Tzu, wrote in his classic work, "On War," that the victor's worst error was to drive the vanquished into a corner; since the victory might then be marred or lost by a desperate counterattack.

Sun Tzu's rule still applied to the Cuban crisis. This was the first confrontation involving the naked use of force of the two giant powers of the new era, whcih opened when the Soviets acquired a full panoply of nuclear weapons. It reduced Quemoy to the status of a semi-crisis, and the Lebanon landing to a Madison Avenue-style pother. Yet the voice from the remote past had something true to say about this fearful modern turning point.

Maybe we could have gone on to eliminate Fidel Castro, with perfect impunity. Yet the two successive Soviet messages, naming altogether different terms for settlement, were a warning as well as a proof of disarray in the Kremlin. It was better to gain our stated objective and to stop there, than to ignore the warning and to risk an irrational response from a cornered Soviet government which was already showing symptoms of irrationality.

Furthermore, if the ballistic launching sites are indeed dismantled, as the Soviets have promised, there will be no question that we have gained a victory without a real precedent in the grim story of the cold war.

The blockade of Berlin was relaxed. The attack on Quemoy was suspended. The Korean War ended in truce. But although the Communists abandoned these adventures when they encountered stiff opposition, they have never before retreated from any position already solidly occupied, with the possible exception of Azerbaijan in 1946. The retreat from the Cuban missile sites is therefore an enormous event, if only for this reason.

It is also a highly indicative event, in two quite different ways. One of its indications needs to be weighed by those who always want to be negotiating. They are already beginning to raise the cry, "Now we can negotiate again."

But in the first place, the American willingness to negotiate endlessly, sometimes in fairly humiliating circumstances, was clearly one of the factors that persuaded the masters of the Kremlin they could get away with their trick in Cuba because of America's supposed softness. Then, too, negotiation certainly ought to be approached with skepticism, after this viciously Machiavellian Soviet attempt to subvert the world power balance by a clandestine trick.

On the other hand, the Cuban experience also points to a more hopeful future, if we only bear in mind the lesson concerning the rewards of stoutheartedness.

In the aftermath of their remarkable victory, the White House and its attendant demonologists are naturally a little apprehensive. The argument is made that after losing so much face in Cuba, the masters of the Kremlin may be driven to true up by some particularly ugly action somewhere else. It is prudent to weigh this argument, and it is also prudent to remember that the point of greatest danger, free Berlin, is within the physical sphere of Soviet conventional power, whereas Cuba presented special difficulties for the Soviets because it was and is within the American power-sphere.

The Kremlin hot-heads, whose existence is now proven, may well argue that the Cuban experience actually shows the safety of aggressive action at a place like Berlin, where Soviet conventional power predominates. But Berlin's freedom has always been protected, not by the conventional power of NATO, but by American nuclear power.

The greatest danger to Berlin, moreover, has been the Kremlin's evident belief, again proven by the Cuban experience, that the U. S. was too soft and weak-willed to stand up to a direct challenge. That gravely dangerous false conviction, we may now hope, has been abruptly shattered. And this is a gain that gives the strongest insurance against future Kremlin ugliness, if we can only avoid implanting new doubts in Moscow about our stoutheartedness.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

MORE ABOUT 'EGGHEADS'—Presidential Advisers Schlesinger, Rostow and Heller have a common denominator — liberalism — that is the basis of the hue and cry against them. Republican office-seekers have found it profitable to attack the principles and policies pursued by these men as a means of depicting what they claim is the ultra-liberalism and "big spending" tendencies of Kennedy himself.

Heller, particularly, comes under attack because of his application of liberal economic theories to such concrete matters as federal taxes and revenues. It is notable to recount that so far, Heller has lost all of the tax battles—that the advice of Kennedy's more traditional fiscal experts—Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon and Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney Martin—has prevailed.

The attacks on Schlesinger and Rostow are more subtle. They depend, in part, on the public image of them as "liberals" or "left-wingers." Schlesinger, for example, is prominent in the ADA — Americans for Democratic Action—that has been under such prolonged attacks as being the "radical fringe" of the Democratic Party that large chunks of the voting public have come to believe it.

Rostow's image has been created largely by one event, his authorship of a secret report on long-range U. S. foreign policy goals which, opponents charge, is the blueprint for a "no win" policy in the cold war with Russia.

Underlying the success of the assault on Schlesinger, Rostow and Heller is the fact that they are "eggheads," the kind of college-oriented intellectuals that generally are believed to be divorced from the world of reality.

Both President Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, have largely escaped the snide attacks that have been leveled against some of their predecessors in the White House. Even rumors of Kennedy's supposed prior marriage, when they finally found their way into print via the debunking route, served to gain sympathy for the President rather than hurt him. And "Jackie" has succeeded remarkably well in projecting herself as a dignified, cultured First Lady, despite her extreme youth and obvious shyness.

Oblique attacks on the President through his advisers, his family, his background of wealth, are bound to take their toll at the polls. But to political experts in Washington the sum total will have only a slight effect on the outcome.

Raynaud's Disease From Cold Or Emotions

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Cooler weather means trouble for the millions of people who have circulatory disorders. Victims of Raynaud's disease, for example, will develop the same degree of coldness of the hands and feet that occurs in normal individuals at freezing temperatures.

They have a poorly understood, inherited disturbance that makes the blood vessels in the extremities over-react to cooling. A slight chill causes the small arterioles at the ends of the fingers and toes to clamp down in a state of spasm. The skin over the digits becomes numb, cold, and blue or white in color. Shaking or rubbing the hands or feet does not help.

Relief comes only on getting warm. Heat relieves spasm and when blood surges into the affected parts, the skin turns red and may burn and tingle for some time thereafter. The feeling is comparable to taking a hot bath or shower immediately after being out of doors in sub-zero weather.

The nervous system controls the blood vessels and blanching of the fingers often is linked with anger or other emotional outbursts. This means Raynaud's syndrome can be brought on in the susceptible by periods of anxiety or frustration as well as by exposure to cold. This is an important consideration when considering treatment and also explains why those with this disease are not cured simply by moving to a warm climate.

Victims of polio, neuritis, frostbite, and trench foot also develop symptoms similar to Raynaud's disease. In these instances, the small blood vessels and nerves have been damaged and are hypersensitive to cold. As a rule, this type of circulatory trouble is more annoying than serious. The tissues suffer from a deficiency of blood in a small percentage of Raynaud's suffers, leading to painful ulcers at the end of the fingers. Gangrene of an entire finger rarely if ever occurs.

Most individuals with this condition remain comfortable by wearing warm clothes, including gloves and wool hose, and avoiding overexposure to extreme cold. The removal of certain nerves (sympathectomy) in the back helps some, whereas others need psychiatric care. Drugs that relax the victim and his blood vessels usually are recommended.

INHERITED DEAFNESS

D. K. writes: A mother and her two children wear hearing aids. The father and husband has perfect hearing. Will the grandchildren develop this bony growth that causes deafness?

REPLY

There is a greater chance that these grandchildren will develop otosclerosis than if there were no family history of the disease.

SALT AND BLOOD PRESSURE

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Sylvia Kaye tells of a Palm Springs matron who has her desert mansion redecorated every winter. The precise shade that each room is to be painted is an obsession with her. Last fall she covered ping-pong paddles with the exact colors she wanted and left them for the painters to match.

When the job was finished, the painters had done such a faithful job, that the gratified matron gave them a substantial bonus. "Best painters I've ever found," she enthused. They departed without telling her that they had made numerous mistakes, but had carefully covered them up by repainting the ping-pong paddles to match the walls.

"Nails" Flanagan's wife turned up for the first time in months to see him on visitors' day at a federal penitentiary. "Nails," she said earnestly, "you been in this jail now for two full years and the children are starting to ask questions." "Yeah?" mumbled Nails suspiciously. "What kind of stuff do they want to know?" "Mainly," said Mrs. Flanagan, "where you stashed the loot."

A golfing pal of Peter Lind Hayes confides that his wife uses gunpowder on her face instead of talcum powder. "And that," he concludes, "is why she always looks half shot."

Geography Influences GOP Politics In Pennsylvania And Nebraska

By Drew Pearson

EDITOR'S NOTE — Drew Pearson has been making a political survey of the hottest election battles and today reports on two of them.)

En Route Through The Midwest—Geography may be dull and prosaic, but it has a highhanded influence on politics.

It's largely responsible for the fact that the Republican Party is giving the brush-off to one of its most experienced gubernatorial candidates, Former Secretary of the Interior Fred Seaton in Nebraska, while concentrating on an inexperienced glamor boy, Congressman Bill Scranton, to be governor of Pennsylvania. The reason is very simple: geography.

The reason is that the unpopulated prairies of Nebraska haven't put up a presidential candidate since William Jennings Bryan, while populous Pennsylvania is a good springboard for the presidential nomination.

So young Scranton of the old coal-mining family for which Scranton, Pa., is named, gets the headlines and big GOP push, while Seaton gets the GOP back-of-the-hand.

Seaton served as U. S. Senator and as an able aide to President Eisenhower. As secretary of the interior, he was quietly competent, honest, effective. He knows government machinery as he knows the printing press of his own newspaper. But he doesn't know how to scratch a back or press the flesh.

His opponent, Gov. Frank "press-the-flesh" Morirson, homey as a Nebraska corn husk, is one of the champion backslappers of Nebraska. Though a Democrat, he is running on a platform of being more Republican than the Republicans.

In a state whose homeopathic politics has forgotten the fiery days of Bryan and George Norris, Gov. "press-the-flesh" Morrison will probably win.

Contrasting Personalities

Pennsylvania offers some direct contrasts to Nebraska. There, ex-Mayor of Philadelphia Dick Dilworth, as highly skilled in government as Fred Seaton of Nebraska, is being opposed by the new GOP glamor boy, Bill Scranton, as pleasing in personality and as highly skilled in flesh-pressing as Democrat Frank Morrison.

Scranton, a new GOP congressman, comes from the old anthracite aristocracy which helped to found Scranton, Pa., but which hasn't done much to rescue the city from the anthracite doldrums since.

Scranton is a great campaigner, and has been accumulating terrific publicity, but when you scratch below the headlines you find the picture isn't quite so rosy.

Time Magazine, for instance, published a front-cover story of Bill Scranton the other day.

He was signaled out as a new GOP potential for president, obviously a big boost in his race for governor of Pennsylvania.

But when you look backstage you find that Scranton's sister married the president of Time Magazine, James A. Linen. You also find, if you examine the records of Jupiter Island, that most exclusive of all exclusive winter colonies at Hobe Sound, Florida, that William W. Scranton, trustee, deeded one-sixth interest in lots 214, 215 and 216, block 87 of Jupiter Island to his sister, Mrs. Sara Linen on May 3, 1961, together with an agreement that the was "subject to any restrictions that may be now in force and effect."

This referred to a restrictive covenant previously accepted by the Scranton family which has made Jupiter Island out of bounds to both Negroes and Jews. No Jewish families have been accepted at Hobe Sound, and no Negroes unless they are servants. The Hobe Sound property owned by the Scrantons is assessed at $64,750, and its actual value is at least twice that much.

Behind Headlines

Again if you look behind the headlines in the hot Pennsylvania election race, you find that Scranton was picked for governor at the home of Pennsylvania political boss John J. McClure and has conferred with him since.

John McClure, notorious leader of Delaware County (where, incidentally, I used to live) was sentence dto 18 months in jail and fined $10,000 in a rum-running conspiracy while serving as state senator. He got out of serving when the Prohibition Act was repealed.

Another look behind the headlines is worth taking, in regard to the Republican appointment of Maurice Pliner, an ex-police inspector, to probe alleged corruption under Mayor Dilworth of Philadelphia.

Nobody could be less qualified to investigate alleged Philadelphia corruption. Pliner was fired by the Dilworth Administration for using two policemen to build a paneled recreation room in the basement of his home.

It so happens that Dilworth was one of the greatest mayors in Philadelphia history and has been so recognized by many leading Republicans. He was the first mayor in the USA to work out a new commuter system with the railroads to prevent downtown streets from being clogged with auto traffic; and his face-lifting of Philadelphia has given that elderly city new enterprise and energy.

In contrast to the personal segregation practices of the Scranton family, Dilworth was the first Philadelphia lawyer to take a Negro into his law firm as a full partner, and as district attorney he broke down previous color barriers to appoint Thomas Reed, a Negro attorney, as court room prosecutor.

Yet with Republican propaganda playing up Scranton in Pennsylvania as much as it has played down Seaton in Nebraska, the glamor boy of the anthracite may well win. Geography does strange things to politics.

Fair Harvard

By John Crosby

PARIS

Richard Bissell (Harvard '36) has written a book called "You Can Always Tell a Harvard Man." On the back of the book jacket, there's a picture of Bissell on a motorcycle, beady eyes almost concealed behind gold-rimmed spectacles the like of which have not been seen since around 1904, heavy jowls, bulbous nose, scraggly mustache, deeply-indented wrinkles around the mouth which turns down at the corners like Mr. Dithers's in "Blondie."

All I can say, studying this photograph, is that Harvard '36 doesn't weather as well as Yale '36. (I suppose I ought to warn you I'm Yale '36, because a certain amount of bias is going to creep in here, only slightly tempered by the fact I went to Exeter with this seedy Harvard specimen.)

I don't know what the rest of Harvard '36 or even Harvard '96 is going to make of "You Can Always Tell a Harvard Man." Very funny book. But do Harvard men think Harvard ought to be funny? I always thought Harvard was pretty funny, but then I never went there (except briefly in 1932 when I was hiding from my mother who was mad at me for being tossed out of Yale, but that's another story).

Bissell, who also wrote "The Pajama Game," "Say, Darling," and other entertainments, strings his narrative loosely. For instance, he's complaining about Theodore Roosevelt's literary pronouncements. (Tolstoy: "A moral and sexual pervert." "Thackeray was a gentleman, Dickens was not.") The next minute you're stupefied by some marvelous quotes from "Dick Merriwell's Colors, or All For the Blue" ("'Oh, Charley,' said the little girl, trembling in his arms, 'isn't it fine that you're a Yale man?' 'Finest thing in the world,' he answered." Bissell's going to get drummed out of the Harvard Club for writing such a sentence, even if he is quoting somebody else).

When I picked up the book, I said to myself I bet he starts boasting about all those Harvard men becoming Presidents of the U. S. in the first chapter. First chapter! Practically the first word. Page 3 says: "This constant parade of Harvard Presidents is getting to be embarrassing." And continues intermittently right through to the second last chapter which is called "Jack at Harvard, or One Minute to Play."

Did you know that Teddy Roosevelt made Porcellian but neither Jack Kennedy nor F. D. R. did? Did you know that Dean Bender recently stated in regard to the increasingly high admission standards that "neither of the Roosevelts nor John F. Kennedy could have gained admission to Harvard under present requirements."

There are many, many goodies in the book, from Franklin Roosevelt Jr.'s press campaign against the Harkness Plan to the fact that in 25 years President Lowell never granted a press interview. I was particularly enriched to learn about the two Mathers, Cotton and Increase, one of whom was president of Harvard and the other of whom tried to become president all his life and never made it.

"It was at this point the Mathers entered from stage left and caused more confusion than Clara Bow at a Methodist convention." Increase Mather—this is a gas—hated college life, had a great contempt for college students whom he called "children," and rarely saw Cambridge in the 16 years he was president. Cotton Mather suggested naming that other place Yale. Is this true?

Bissell's style, like that of Robert Benchley, another Harvard, is boneless and ful lof little surprises, showing the tortuous turns of that twisted Harvard brain. A sentence like: "And there was the Civil War, that grim struggle which pitted brother against brother and has sold over 300 million copies as well as keeping Raymond Massey almost continuously employed."

As an example of Benchley's style, there's a quote from "Things I Learned Freshman Year": "By placing one paper bag inside another paper bag, you can carry home a milkshake in it."

Yale men will discover with astonishment that you don't have to go to classes at Harvard. "I had a friend who went skiing in Switzerland every winter term. No one noticed his absence." How did Teddy Kennedy get tossed out of Harvard if things are so lax up there?

Bissell's book teems with footnotes from his cavernous mind like this one about Scituate (Mass.): "There is no correct pronunciation of this word." (There isn't, either.) There are dizzy chapter headings like "Hail to Thee, O Alma Mater, and My Check Is In the Mail."

I heartily recommend it to all Yale men who, I think, will be vastly entertained. I don't think the Harvard crowd is ready for it.

The Republican Statewide Ticket

In assessing the relative merits of the various candidates for statewide office in next Tuesday's general election we find a combination of age and youth and a great variety of experience among the representatives of both parties. We believe, however, that the shortcomings of the Tawes administration in the past four years justify serious consideration of Republican candidates for statewide office by all the voters.

Frank Small Jr., 66-year-old former Congressman, former motor vehicle commissioner and former member of the Racing Commission, has the experience and the qualifications of a good governor. He won easily in the Republican primary last spring and has proved a capable challenger to Governor Tawes. A former businessman and farmer, Mr. Small now is a bank president in Prince Georges County, and has the necessary background to give Maryland an efficient, businesslike administration.

Edward T. Miller, Republican candidate for U. S. Senator, is unquestionably qualified for the office, having served six terms in the House of Representatives. A lawyer, he is a veteran of both World Wars, including a tour as a major general in the Chinese Army during World War II.

Martin A. Ferris III, 37-year-old former assistant U. S. attorney for Maryland and present assistant counsel for the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia, likewise is qualified by training and experience for the office of Attorney General, now held by Thomas B. Finan, Allegany County Democrat.

David C. Champion of Greenbelt should be a good state comptroller. He is a 35-year-old industrial analyst experienced in accounting and auditing, now serving in his first elective office on the Greenbelt city council.

These Republican candidates, given the support of the voters next Tuesday, can return responsible, businesslike government to the State of Maryland.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Next Step

President Kennedy has estbalished three facts:

1. The United States is mighty and ready and will fight if need be;
2. The United States will not trade under a muzzle;
3. The United States seeks peace and will negotiate with anybody who is sincerely desirous of peace.

What comes next?

There is no key in the correspondence between President Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev to indicate what will happen next except that disarmament questions are left to the NATO powers and the Warsaw powers which could mean prolonged conversations. To me that clue means little more than the United States will not act alone and arbitrarily and will consult with its allies.

What about Castro? Is it possible to permit Fidel Castro to remain a nuisance in the Caribbean? Castro was ignored by both the United States and Soviet Russia. His name was not even mentioned. The United States acted as though Cuba were a possession of Soviet Russia; Khrushchev accepted the role of suzerain. Whether he consulted Castro at any point is not known. Essentially, the Cuban situation remains a Russo-American affair. But Castro is there.

The question arises in everyone's mind why Khrushchev should have reached a decision which includes an element of humiliation. Perhaps the answer can be found in President Kennedy's disinclination to make Cuba an issue for war or peace. We chose Berlin. Khrushchev attempted to divert us from Berlin to Cuba and succeeded in forcing our hand. We established the blockade around Cuba but also exposed our readiness to fight anywhere. We established that the "soft" period in our history is over. This applies to Berlin as it does to Cuba. Both President Kennedy and U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson emphasized the significance of Berlin. What is called "accommodation" is nonsense.

Khrushchev's defeat in Cuba strengthens our position among the NATO powers and gives courage to both West Germany and France concerning Berlin. Just as Mao Tze-tung tested our purpose and strength in the Korean War which we lost, so Khruschev tested our purpose and strength in Cuba. There we won.

Khrushchev's position was a weak one. Mao Tze-tung's war on India has upset the Communist World. Whereas India is not a satellite of Soviet Russia, it has nevertheless through Krishna Menon, permitted itself to be closely related to Russia so that Nehru's neutralism has become an impediment for a decent settlement of world affairs. Now India is being attacked viciously by Red China and Khrushchev is in serious difficulties.

If he supports his ally, Red China, he must oppose his friends Nehru and Krishna Menon; if he supports India, he violates the union of Communist countries, including the Warsaw Pact. If he remains neutral, it amounts to indecisiveness and a violation of the Warsaw Pact. What will Tito do? What will the East Germans do? Khrushchev's power is based upon decisions but he can make no decision with regard to India.

At such a moment, the United States chooses to expose to the world the Cuban missile build-up and to take warlike measures. It was splendid timing for the United States but very bad for Khrushchev. If he pursued the war with the United States, unless it were settled in a day, Mao Tze-tung would move on Turkestan and Siberia, completing his effort to reach the Chienlung line. From this Khrushchev backed away. The combination of forces was too much. He undoubtedly felt that sound statesmanship required that he live another day.

But there is more to be said. The Revolution has beyond doubt achieved more in 45 years than Lenin or anyone else expected. An atomic war, whatever it did to the United States, would wipe out the fruits of the Revolution. It would throw Russia back to 1917 and its industrial potential would disappear. It is doubtful if the Communist International, now held together by the Warsaw Pact, could survive a massive atomic attack.

A month from now, it will probably be seen that Khrushchev has not lost prestige within Soviet Russia. There the people believe "let you and him fight, but keep the war away from us."

Peaceful Coexistence

Cuba Victory Reward Of Stoutheartedness

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

In any historic drama like the Cuban crisis, it is always necessary to wait for the epilogue to be sure there is nothing misleading in the last act. But with this proviso, one may already say that President Kennedy appears to have won a remarkable victory.

It is, to be sure, a limited victory. Fidel Castro has been taught a bitterly sharp lesson, about the value of his Soviet connection among other things. But he has not yet been destroyed or driven from power; and if the Khrushchev-Kennedy agreement holds, Castro will even be guaranteed against invasion from American soil.

On this point, it is well to bear in mind the first rule of the earliest military theorist in history, who is also one of those who are still most worth reading. Nearly 25 centuries ago, the great Chinese, Sun Tzu, wrote in his classic work, "On War," that the victor's worst error was to drive the vanquished into a corner; since the victory might then be marred or lost by a desperate counterattack.

Sun Tzu's rule still applied to the Cuban crisis. This was the first confrontation involving the naked use of force of the two giant powers of the new era, whcih opened when the Soviets acquired a full panoply of nuclear weapons. It reduced Quemoy to the status of a semi-crisis, and the Lebanon landing to a Madison Avenue-style pother. Yet the voice from the remote past had something true to say about this fearful modern turning point.

Maybe we could have gone on to eliminate Fidel Castro, with perfect impunity. Yet the two successive Soviet messages, naming altogether different terms for settlement, were a warning as well as a proof of disarray in the Kremlin. It was better to gain our stated objective and to stop there, than to ignore the warning and to risk an irrational response from a cornered Soviet government which was already showing symptoms of irrationality.

Furthermore, if the ballistic launching sites are indeed dismantled, as the Soviets have promised, there will be no question that we have gained a victory without a real precedent in the grim story of the cold war.

The blockade of Berlin was relaxed. The attack on Quemoy was suspended. The Korean War ended in truce. But although the Communists abandoned these adventures when they encountered stiff opposition, they have never before retreated from any position already solidly occupied, with the possible exception of Azerbaijan in 1946. The retreat from the Cuban missile sites is therefore an enormous event, if only for this reason.

It is also a highly indicative event, in two quite different ways. One of its indications needs to be weighed by those who always want to be negotiating. They are already beginning to raise the cry, "Now we can negotiate again."

But in the first place, the American willingness to negotiate endlessly, sometimes in fairly humiliating circumstances, was clearly one of the factors that persuaded the masters of the Kremlin they could get away with their trick in Cuba because of America's supposed softness. Then, too, negotiation certainly ought to be approached with skepticism, after this viciously Machiavellian Soviet attempt to subvert the world power balance by a clandestine trick.

On the other hand, the Cuban experience also points to a more hopeful future, if we only bear in mind the lesson concerning the rewards of stoutheartedness.

In the aftermath of their remarkable victory, the White House and its attendant demonologists are naturally a little apprehensive. The argument is made that after losing so much face in Cuba, the masters of the Kremlin may be driven to true up by some particularly ugly action somewhere else. It is prudent to weigh this argument, and it is also prudent to remember that the point of greatest danger, free Berlin, is within the physical sphere of Soviet conventional power, whereas Cuba presented special difficulties for the Soviets because it was and is within the American power-sphere.

The Kremlin hot-heads, whose existence is now proven, may well argue that the Cuban experience actually shows the safety of aggressive action at a place like Berlin, where Soviet conventional power predominates. But Berlin's freedom has always been protected, not by the conventional power of NATO, but by American nuclear power.

The greatest danger to Berlin, moreover, has been the Kremlin's evident belief, again proven by the Cuban experience, that the U. S. was too soft and weak-willed to stand up to a direct challenge. That gravely dangerous false conviction, we may now hope, has been abruptly shattered. And this is a gain that gives the strongest insurance against future Kremlin ugliness, if we can only avoid implanting new doubts in Moscow about our stoutheartedness.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

MORE ABOUT 'EGGHEADS'—Presidential Advisers Schlesinger, Rostow and Heller have a common denominator — liberalism — that is the basis of the hue and cry against them. Republican office-seekers have found it profitable to attack the principles and policies pursued by these men as a means of depicting what they claim is the ultra-liberalism and "big spending" tendencies of Kennedy himself.

Heller, particularly, comes under attack because of his application of liberal economic theories to such concrete matters as federal taxes and revenues. It is notable to recount that so far, Heller has lost all of the tax battles—that the advice of Kennedy's more traditional fiscal experts—Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon and Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney Martin—has prevailed.

The attacks on Schlesinger and Rostow are more subtle. They depend, in part, on the public image of them as "liberals" or "left-wingers." Schlesinger, for example, is prominent in the ADA — Americans for Democratic Action—that has been under such prolonged attacks as being the "radical fringe" of the Democratic Party that large chunks of the voting public have come to believe it.

Rostow's image has been created largely by one event, his authorship of a secret report on long-range U. S. foreign policy goals which, opponents charge, is the blueprint for a "no win" policy in the cold war with Russia.

Underlying the success of the assault on Schlesinger, Rostow and Heller is the fact that they are "eggheads," the kind of college-oriented intellectuals that generally are believed to be divorced from the world of reality.

Both President Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, have largely escaped the snide attacks that have been leveled against some of their predecessors in the White House. Even rumors of Kennedy's supposed prior marriage, when they finally found their way into print via the debunking route, served to gain sympathy for the President rather than hurt him. And "Jackie" has succeeded remarkably well in projecting herself as a dignified, cultured First Lady, despite her extreme youth and obvious shyness.

Oblique attacks on the President through his advisers, his family, his background of wealth, are bound to take their toll at the polls. But to political experts in Washington the sum total will have only a slight effect on the outcome.

Raynaud's Disease From Cold Or Emotions

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Cooler weather means trouble for the millions of people who have circulatory disorders. Victims of Raynaud's disease, for example, will develop the same degree of coldness of the hands and feet that occurs in normal individuals at freezing temperatures.

They have a poorly understood, inherited disturbance that makes the blood vessels in the extremities over-react to cooling. A slight chill causes the small arterioles at the ends of the fingers and toes to clamp down in a state of spasm. The skin over the digits becomes numb, cold, and blue or white in color. Shaking or rubbing the hands or feet does not help.

Relief comes only on getting warm. Heat relieves spasm and when blood surges into the affected parts, the skin turns red and may burn and tingle for some time thereafter. The feeling is comparable to taking a hot bath or shower immediately after being out of doors in sub-zero weather.

The nervous system controls the blood vessels and blanching of the fingers often is linked with anger or other emotional outbursts. This means Raynaud's syndrome can be brought on in the susceptible by periods of anxiety or frustration as well as by exposure to cold. This is an important consideration when considering treatment and also explains why those with this disease are not cured simply by moving to a warm climate.

Victims of polio, neuritis, frostbite, and trench foot also develop symptoms similar to Raynaud's disease. In these instances, the small blood vessels and nerves have been damaged and are hypersensitive to cold. As a rule, this type of circulatory trouble is more annoying than serious. The tissues suffer from a deficiency of blood in a small percentage of Raynaud's suffers, leading to painful ulcers at the end of the fingers. Gangrene of an entire finger rarely if ever occurs.

Most individuals with this condition remain comfortable by wearing warm clothes, including gloves and wool hose, and avoiding overexposure to extreme cold. The removal of certain nerves (sympathectomy) in the back helps some, whereas others need psychiatric care. Drugs that relax the victim and his blood vessels usually are recommended.

INHERITED DEAFNESS

D. K. writes: A mother and her two children wear hearing aids. The father and husband has perfect hearing. Will the grandchildren develop this bony growth that causes deafness?

REPLY

There is a greater chance that these grandchildren will develop otosclerosis than if there were no family history of the disease.

SALT AND BLOOD PRESSURE

J. D. writes: Can a woman use salt on her food after medicine has brought her blood pressure down to 150?

REPLY

It is not advisable, especially if the medicine decreases the blood pressure by encouraging the kidneys to eliminate sodium.

TOMORROW: Keep fit with exercise and diet.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Sylvia Kaye tells of a Palm Springs matron who has her desert mansion redecorated every winter. The precise shade that each room is to be painted is an obsession with her. Last fall she covered ping-pong paddles with the exact colors she wanted and left them for the painters to match.

When the job was finished, the painters had done such a faithful job, that the gratified matron gave them a substantial bonus. "Best painters I've ever found," she enthused. They departed without telling her that they had made numerous mistakes, but had carefully covered them up by repainting the ping-pong paddles to match the walls.

"Nails" Flanagan's wife turned up for the first time in months to see him on visitors' day at a federal penitentiary. "Nails," she said earnestly, "you been in this jail now for two full years and the children are starting to ask questions." "Yeah?" mumbled Nails suspiciously. "What kind of stuff do they want to know?" "Mainly," said Mrs. Flanagan, "where you stashed the loot."

A golfing pal of Peter Lind Hayes confides that his wife uses gunpowder on her face instead of talcum powder. "And that," he concludes, "is why she always looks half shot."

N. Y. Wine Country 'Old World, U.S.A.'

By OTTO E. STURM

NAPLES, N.Y. (UPI)—There's an autumn nip in the air as you leave the city of Rochester, N.Y., and head south along a state highway.

Soon the suburbs are left behind and your'e out in the country. The peak brilliance of the fall foliage has passed but there's enough color left to make an enchanting view.

Gradually the scene changes and the country becomes hilly. You no longer pass truck or dairy farms. Now, wherever you turn, your eyes rest on serried ranks of trellises bearing grape vines, the leaves now brown under the autumn sun.

Occasionally the road winds between straight rows of tall, slender poplars. You glance down a slope to your left and a blue-green body of water comes into view.

Suddenly you feel that you're in another world—the Old World. Those poplars are right smack from a French landscape. These vinceclad hills could be rising above the Rhine.

A Beauty Spot

But that body of water tapering to a point parallel to the road is not the Rhine. It's Lake Canandaigua, which the Seneca Indians called "the Chosen Place." And this is not the Rhine Valley, but the Naples Valley in the beautiful Finger Lakes county of New York state.

Here, in 1882, John Jacob Widmer, a young immigrant from Switzerland, found the same climate, the same peculiar blend of shale soil and natural drainage as those of the famous vineyards of Europe. He planted his first vines and laid the foundation for an American wineland that would produce Rieslings, champagnes and sherries equal to those of the Old World.

But it is not only in geography and topography that this land of the grape is comparable to the Rhine Valley.

Wine is the lifeblood of this area. Its cultivation, from the vine to the bottle, is the way of life of its people.

Back To Europe

They have been so successful that their vines have been transplanted in European vineyards. And a leader of the local wine industry can say confidently:

"This is potentially the greatest wine country in the world."

The grape is the King of Wineland and this is his day. You're on your way to the annual Naples Grape Festival. The harvest is in, the long, hard days of climbing up the steep, winding vineyard trails to pick the grapes are over. This is the day for bands, speeches, crowning of a festival King and Queen, trophy awards, street dancing and fireworks.

A gala mood is in the air as you enter the little village of Naples. Flags and bunting drape the buildings on Main Street and the homes of villagers. People in costumes gather for a parade. It's the first sunny day in more than a week and the ordinarily sparsely traveled road is crowded with a steady stream of cars. This day will see Naples' population of 1,200 swelled to 10 times that number.

Use Solero System

An odd sight greets you from the road. Stacked on the roof of a winery are tier upon tier of barrels. There are some 10,000 of them and each holds 50 gallons of sherry. Here, under sun, rain, snow and wind, the wine ages and mellows for four years before it is bottled. It's an Old World touch because this is the same sherry-making process as the famous solero system used in Spain.

At the winery the old World crops up again when you talk to "Will" Widmer, 70-year-old son of John Jacob. He is said to be able to identify by year any wine he has tasted.

A tour of the winery is a unique blend of the Old and New Worlds. In the sweet - smelling pressing room, huge modern mechanical presses squeeze the juice from the grapes.

Traditional oak fermentation vats have been replaced in the pungent and yeasty fermentation room with glass-lined stainless steel tanks, towering 20 to 30 feet high and holding as much as 10,000 gallons.

Lunch in the old-fashioned dining room of the little Naples Hotel is a real trip to the Old World. There is entertainment by a group of Swiss yodelers, on a tour of the United States. You're not surprised to hear one of them comment that they never felt so much at home.

People Await Festivities

Now Main Street in front of the hotel is lined with an eager throng awaiting the parade. This is their big day, the culmination of a year of work. Springtime saw them covering the hills, tying vines in umbrella fashion to wires between cedar stakes.

Appropriately, one of the leaders of the parade is a portly gent dressed in ancient garb. A sign identifies him as "Bacchus—God of Wine."

At nightfall, a band takes over the parade-reviewing platform in front of the hotel. Traffic is blocked off and the street dancing begins. With such Old and New World variations as the Schottische and the Twist.

The dancing is called off at ten o'clock and the people flock to a fireworks display to end their festival. It's obvious they're happy in the thought that they have earned its theme: "Honor the Keepers of the Vines."

You head back for the trip of about 40 miles north to Rochester. The valley and the lake now are bathed in the soft light of a full harvest moon. When the lights of the city come into view, you find it hard to realize you haven't been in the valley of the Rhine.

Old World, U.S.A., you might call it.

Song

SMITH CENTER, Kan. (UPI)—Dr. Brewster M. Higley, who lived in a log cabin in this county, wrote "Home on the Range" which became the Kansas state song. His cabin, on Beaver creek, is a state memorial and still stands.

Political Families

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois is the son of a former Illinois attorney general. Kerner's wife is the former Helena Cermak, whose father, Anton Cermak, was the mayor of Chicago slain by an assassin's bullet meant for President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Alaska is the northernmost state of the United States.

Mrs. Gormer Succeeds Holzshu As Bank Secretary

Mrs. Anne Gormer has been elected by the Board of Directors of the Liberty Trust Company to the office of secretary of the bank. She succeeds the late Charles G. Holzshu.

Mrs. Gormer formerly was assistant to president and assistant secretary at the bank.

A native of Berlin, Pa., she has been associated with the Liberty Trust Company since 1948 and has been an officer since 1960.

She formerly was an employe of banks in Berlin, Pa., and Ithaca, N. Y.

Mrs. Gormer is the wife of Robert R. Gormer, a lieutenant with the Cumberland Fire Department.

N. Y. Wine Country 'Old World, U.S.A.'

By OTTO E. STURM

NAPLES, N.Y. (UPI)—There's an autumn nip in the air as you leave the city of Rochester, N.Y., and head south along a state highway.

Soon the suburbs are left behind and your'e out in the country. The peak brilliance of the fall foliage has passed but there's enough color left to make an enchanting view.

Gradually the scene changes and the country becomes hilly. You no longer pass truck or dairy farms. Now, wherever you turn, your eyes rest on serried ranks of trellises bearing grape vines, the leaves now brown under the autumn sun.

Occasionally the road winds between straight rows of tall, slender poplars. You glance down a slope to your left and a blue-green body of water comes into view.

Suddenly you feel that you're in another world—the Old World. Those poplars are right smack from a French landscape. These vinceclad hills could be rising above the Rhine.

A Beauty Spot

But that body of water tapering to a point parallel to the road is not the Rhine. It's Lake Canandaigua, which the Seneca Indians called "the Chosen Place." And this is not the Rhine Valley, but the Naples Valley in the beautiful Finger Lakes county of New York state.

Here, in 1882, John Jacob Widmer, a young immigrant from Switzerland, found the same climate, the same peculiar blend of shale soil and natural drainage as those of the famous vineyards of Europe. He planted his first vines and laid the foundation for an American wineland that would produce Rieslings, champagnes and sherries equal to those of the Old World.

But it is not only in geography and topography that this land of the grape is comparable to the Rhine Valley.

Wine is the lifeblood of this area. Its cultivation, from the vine to the bottle, is the way of life of its people.

Back To Europe

They have been so successful that their vines have been transplanted in European vineyards. And a leader of the local wine industry can say confidently:

"This is potentially the greatest wine country in the world."

The grape is the King of Wineland and this is his day. You're on your way to the annual Naples Grape Festival. The harvest is in, the long, hard days of climbing up the steep, winding vineyard trails to pick the grapes are over. This is the day for bands, speeches, crowning of a festival King and Queen, trophy awards, street dancing and fireworks.

A gala mood is in the air as you enter the little village of Naples. Flags and bunting drape the buildings on Main Street and the homes of villagers. People in costumes gather for a parade. It's the first sunny day in more than a week and the ordinarily sparsely traveled road is crowded with a steady stream of cars. This day will see Naples' population of 1,200 swelled to 10 times that number.

Use Solero System

An odd sight greets you from the road. Stacked on the roof of a winery are tier upon tier of barrels. There are some 10,000 of them and each holds 50 gallons of sherry. Here, under sun, rain, snow and wind, the wine ages and mellows for four years before it is bottled. It's an Old World touch because this is the same sherry-making process as the famous solero system used in Spain.

At the winery the old World crops up again when you talk to "Will" Widmer, 70-year-old son of John Jacob. He is said to be able to identify by year any wine he has tasted.

A tour of the winery is a unique blend of the Old and New Worlds. In the sweet - smelling pressing room, huge modern mechanical presses squeeze the juice from the grapes.

Traditional oak fermentation vats have been replaced in the pungent and yeasty fermentation room with glass-lined stainless steel tanks, towering 20 to 30 feet high and holding as much as 10,000 gallons.

Lunch in the old-fashioned dining room of the little Naples Hotel is a real trip to the Old World. There is entertainment by a group of Swiss yodelers, on a tour of the United States. You're not surprised to hear one of them comment that they never felt so much at home.

"EG" – THE PLACE TO GO . . . FOR THE BRANDS YOU KNOW!

Ranch House Bread Pudding

3 cups soft bread cubes
⅓ cup butter or margarine
6 medium-size apples
½ cup crunchy peanut butter
¾ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ cup seedless raisins
⅓ cup peanuts, chopped
½ cup hot water

Melt butter in a large skillet that can go into the oven. Add bread cubes and stir to brown lightly. Peel and slice apples thin. Blend peanut butter and brown sugar thoroughly. Stir in fruit juices, grated rind and cinnamon. Remove two-thirds of the browned bread cubes from the skillet and scatter half the apple slices and half the raisins over the remaining bread, then spread half the peanut butter mixture over the apples. Continue with a second layer of bread, then the rest of the apples, raisins and peanut butter mixture. Add the last of the bread cubes. Sprinkle with chopped peanuts, hot water and cinnamon. Bake uncovered in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) 30 to 45 minutes or until apples are soft and flavors blended. Serve warm with cream or Lemon Nutmeg Sauce. Makes 8 to 10 servings. For a smaller pudding, cut recipe by one-third or one-half and bake in an uncovered casserole.

LEMON NUTMEG SAUCE

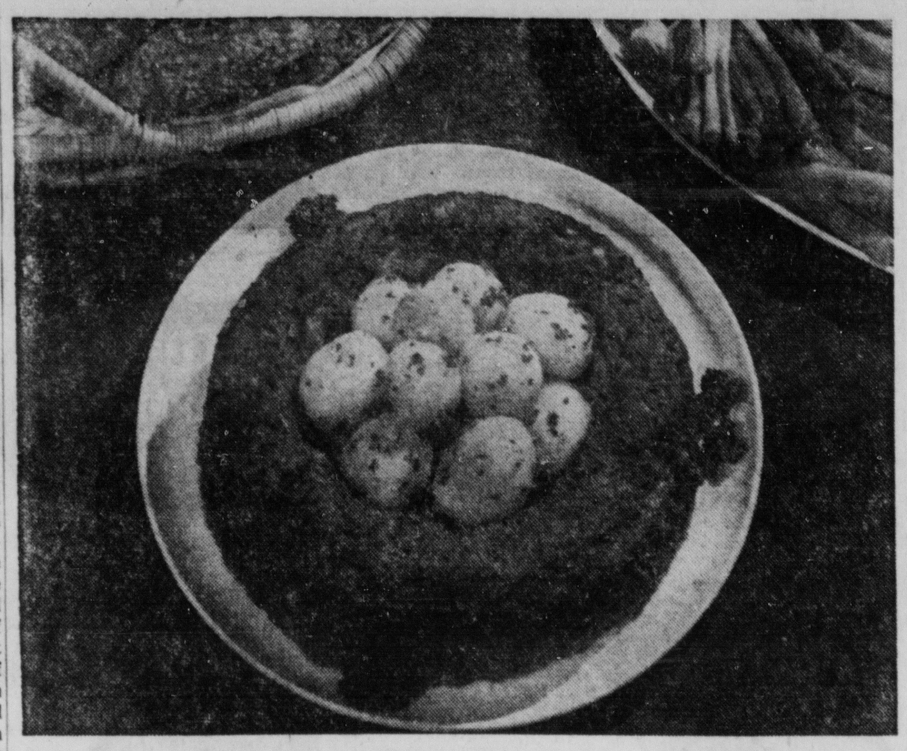
1½ tablespoons corn starch
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups boiling water
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 to 3 tablespoons lemon juice, to taste

Mix sugar, corn starch, salt and nutmeg in a saucepan. Blend in hot water gradually and cook over very low heat, stirring constantly, until clear and thickened. Add butter or margarine and lemon juice. Serve warm.

Smoooooocin!

Make a smooth frosting with nutty flavor by adding peanut butter to frosting mix. Add ½ cup of peanut butter thinned with ½ cup of water to chocolate fudge frosting mix. Blend as label directs. Use for chocolate of white layer cake or cup-cakes.

A few drops of kerosene and a little bluing added to warm, soapy water will give window panes an added sparkle when washed.



An Easy Meat Loaf Recipe: Regal Meat Ring

There's always a spot in any homemaker's recipe repertoire for a really good meat loaf. Here's an Easy Meat Loaf recipe that combines ground beef with sausage and presents you with a perfect mingling of flavors.

To add an artistic touch to your meal, serve the ground meat mixture not as a loaf at all, but rather bake the mixture in a ring mold. When ready to serve, unmold it on a favorite colorful platter and fill the ring with parsleyed potatoes or with whipped potatoes sprinkled with paprika.

While speaking of meat loaves it might be well to point out that there are many cuts of meat that may be used for ground meat. There is often a tendency, when buying ground beef, to ask for "ground round." Actually, it is hardly fat enough to make a tender, flavorful loaf without the addition of extra ground fat. Then, too, round steak is often in demand for Swiss steaks and other braised dishes and is less economical for ground beef.

Other cuts which might be used for a meat loaf include the chuck, fresh brisket, shank or plate. These contain more fat and they are cuts which are in less demand. You'll likely save from 10 to 25 cents per pound.

Even though these meats are from the less-tender parts of the animal they are just as flavorful and nutritious as the more demanded cuts. They've been made tender by grinding and for that reason they can be cooked by the dry heat method of roasting. However, as in all meats, the roasting temperature for meat loaves must be low to moderate to provide the best possible dish.

Here is the recipe for the Easy Meat Loaf. Combine 1½ pounds of ground beef with ½ pound of bulk pork sausage. To this meat mixture add ½ cup of grated carrot. Season with 1 teaspoon of salt, ¼ teaspoon of pepper, 1 tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce and ¼ cup of chipped onion.

Next, add to the meat mixture 2 slightly beaten eggs. Mix thoroughly. Then pack the mixture into a 1-quart ring mold or into a 9x5-inch long pan. Bake in a moderate oven, 350° F., 1½ hours. This makes 8 generous servings.

Easy Meat Loaf

1½ pounds ground beef
½ pound fresh pork sausage
½ cup grated carrots
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup chopped onion, if desired
2 eggs, slightly beaten

Combine ground beef, pork sausage, carrots, seasonings, Worcestershire sauce, onion and beaten eggs. Mix thoroughly in a 9x5 inch loaf pan or 1-quart ring mold. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 1½ hours. 8 servings.

Cranberry Spreads

CRANBERRY MARMALADE
(Wonderful on Breakfast Toast or Muffins)

Beat 1 lb. can Jellied Cranberry Sauce until smooth with rotary beater. Stir in ¾ cup orange marmalade. Keep in refrigerator for a welcome spread for breakfast toast.

CRANBERRY APPLESAUCE

1 lb. can Jellied Cranberry Sauce
½ cup applesauce
¼ cup raisins
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

DIXIE SPECIAL

Spread cranberry sauce on buttered bread, sprinkle generously with brown sugar and cinnamon (¼ to ½ teaspoon with ¼ cup brown sugar).

Always Delicious

Chocolate Milk Shakes offer flavor versatility. For each tall glassful, combine a cup of chocolate milk and 2 scoops of a favorite flavored ice cream. Beat until foamy. You can transform a milk shake into an ice cream float by letting an extra scoop of ice cream "float" on top of the shake. For an extra nutritious shake, simply add one fresh egg to any milk shake, blend thoroughly.

A Choco-Melon Fluff is a sweet, light favorite. Crush 1 cup of diced honeydew melon. Add 3 cups chocolate milk and ½ cup whipped cream. Mix well. Serve with a fresh berry-whipped cream crown. Yields 5 cups.

For an easy-to-eat dessert, try Chocolate Custard. Beat 3 eggs with ⅓ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla just until blended. Scald 2 cups chocolate milk and slowly add to the eggs, stirring rapidly. Add a pinch of salt. Pour into a buttered casserole dish. Place in a pan of hot water and bake until the custard "sets," 35 to 45 minutes in a 325° F. oven. Cool and serve with a cinnamon garnish. Serves 4 to 6.

You can combine your chocolate milk with fruit juices of all kinds, too. A topping of marshmallow or whipped cream is often a good choice, but you can also finish off the drink by adding a sprig of mint, some crushed peppermint candy, a dash of cinnamon, or other favorite.

Soup Diet

Soap flavors are the newest thing in low calorie liquid diets. Cream of tomato is available from two packers. Cream of chicken is an exclusive with one firm, and clam chowder and split pea with ham, exclusive with another. (Sego, Metracel.)

Ranch House Bread Pudding

3 cups soft bread cubes
⅓ cup butter or margarine
6 medium-size apples
½ cup crunchy peanut butter
¾ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ cup seedless raisins
⅓ cup peanuts, chopped
½ cup hot water

Melt butter in a large skillet that can go into the oven. Add bread cubes and stir to brown lightly. Peel and slice apples thin. Blend peanut butter and brown sugar thoroughly. Stir in fruit juices, grated rind and cinnamon. Remove two-thirds of the browned bread cubes from the skillet and scatter half the apple slices and half the raisins over the remaining bread, then spread half the peanut butter mixture over the apples. Continue with a second layer of bread, then the rest of the apples, raisins and peanut butter mixture. Add the last of the bread cubes. Sprinkle with chopped peanuts, hot water and cinnamon. Bake uncovered in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) 30 to 45 minutes or until apples are soft and flavors blended. Serve warm with cream or Lemon Nutmeg Sauce. Makes 8 to 10 servings. For a smaller pudding, cut recipe by one-third or one-half and bake in an uncovered casserole.

LEMON NUTMEG SAUCE

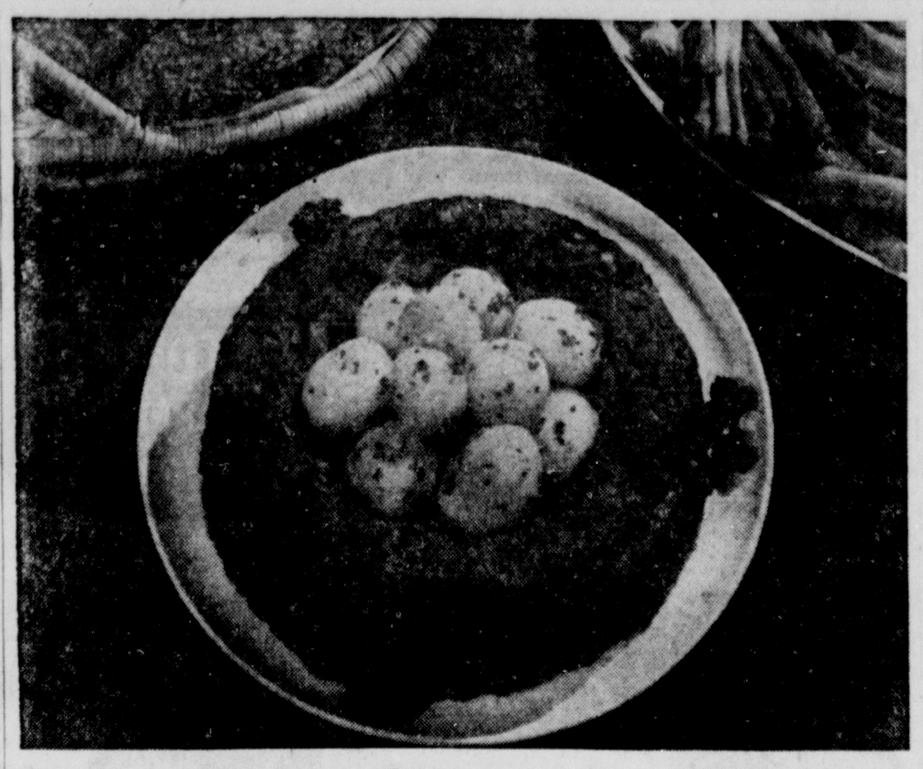
¾ cup sugar
1½ tablespoons corn starch
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups boiling water
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 to 3 tablespoons lemon juice, to taste

Mix sugar, corn starch, salt and nutmeg in a saucepan. Blend in hot water gradually and cook over very low heat, stirring constantly, until clear and thickened. Add butter or margarine and lemon juice. Serve warm.

Smoooooocin!

Make a smooth frosting with nutty flavor by adding peanut butter to frosting mix. Add ½ cup of peanut butter thinned with ½ cup of water to chocolate fudge frosting mix. Blend as label directs. Use for chocolate of white layer cake or cup-cakes.

A few drops of kerosene and a little bluing added to warm, soapy water will give window panes an added sparkle when washed.



An Easy Meat Loaf Recipe: Regal Meat Ring

There's always a spot in any homemaker's recipe repertoire for a really good meat loaf. Here's an Easy Meat Loaf recipe that combines ground beef with sausage and presents you with a perfect mingling of flavors.

To add an artistic touch to your meal, serve the ground meat mixture not as a loaf at all, but rather bake the mixture in a ring mold. When ready to serve, unmold it on a favorite colorful platter and fill the ring with parsleyed potatoes or with whipped potatoes sprinkled with paprika.

While speaking of meat loaves it might be well to point out that there are many cuts of meat that may be used for ground meat. There is often a tendency, when buying ground beef, to ask for "ground round." Actually, it is hardly fat enough to make a tender, flavorful loaf without the addition of extra ground fat. Then, too, round steak is often in demand for Swiss steaks and other braised dishes and is less economical for ground beef.

Other cuts which might be used for a meat loaf include the chuck, fresh brisket, shank or plate. These contain more fat and they are cuts which are in less demand. You'll likely save from 10 to 25 cents per pound.

Even though these meats are from the less-tender parts of the animal they are just as flavorful and nutritious as the more demanded cuts. They've been made tender by grinding and for that reason they can be cooked by the dry heat method of roasting. However, as in all meats, the roasting temperature for meat loaves must be low to moderate to provide the best possible dish.

Here is the recipe for the Easy Meat Loaf. Combine 1½ pounds of ground beef with ½ pound of bulk pork sausage. To this meat mixture add ½ cup of grated carrot. Season with 1 teaspoon of salt, ¼ teaspoon of pepper, 1 tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce and ¼ cup of chipped onion.

Next, add to the meat mixture 2 slightly beaten eggs. Mix thoroughly. Then pack the mixture into a 1-quart ring mold or into a 9x5-inch long pan. Bake in a moderate oven, 350° F., 1½ hours. This makes 8 generous servings.

Easy Meat Loaf

1½ pounds ground beef
½ pound fresh pork sausage
½ cup grated carrots
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup chopped onion, if desired
2 eggs, slightly beaten

Combine ground beef, pork sausage, carrots, seasonings, Worcestershire sauce, onion and beaten eggs. Mix thoroughly in a 9x5 inch loaf pan or 1-quart ring mold. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 1½ hours. 8 servings.

Cranberry Spreads

CRANBERRY MARMALADE
(Wonderful on Breakfast Toast or Muffins)

Beat 1 lb. can Jellied Cranberry Sauce until smooth with rotary beater. Stir in ¾ cup orange marmalade. Keep in refrigerator for a welcome spread for breakfast toast.

CRANBERRY APPLESAUCE

1 lb. can Jellied Cranberry Sauce
½ cup applesauce
¼ cup raisins
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

DIXIE SPECIAL

Spread cranberry sauce on buttered bread, sprinkle generously with brown sugar and cinnamon (¼ to ½ teaspoon with ¼ cup brown sugar).

Always Delicious

Chocolate Milk Shakes offer flavor versatility. For each tall glassful, combine a cup of chocolate milk and 2 scoops of a favorite flavored ice cream. Beat until foamy. You can transform a milk shake into an ice cream float by letting an extra scoop of ice cream "float" on top of the shake. For an extra nutritious shake, simply add one fresh egg to any milk shake, blend thoroughly.

A Choco-Melon Fluff is a sweet, light favorite. Crush 1 cup of diced honeydew melon. Add 3 cups chocolate milk and ½ cup whipped cream. Mix well. Serve with a fresh berry-whipped cream crown. Yields 5 cups.

For an easy-to-eat dessert, try Chocolate Custard. Beat 3 eggs with ⅓ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla just until blended. Scald 2 cups chocolate milk and slowly add to the eggs, stirring rapidly. Add a pinch of salt. Pour into a buttered casserole dish. Place in a pan of hot water and bake until the custard "sets," 35 to 45 minutes in a 325° F. oven. Cool and serve with a cinnamon garnish. Serves 4 to 6.

You can combine your chocolate milk with fruit juices of all kinds, too. A topping of marshmallow or whipped cream is often a good choice, but you can also finish off the drink by adding a sprig of mint, some crushed peppermint candy, a dash of cinnamon, or other favorite.

Soup Diet

Soap flavors are the newest thing in low calorie liquid diets. Cream of tomato is available from two packers. Cream of chicken is an exclusive with one firm, and clam chowder and split pea with ham, exclusive with another. (Sego, Metracel.)

Chocolate Sundae Pie Creation

Compliment - collecting dessert. That's our Chocolate Sundae Pie. A tender, flaky pie crust boasts a smooth, rich filling and is topped off with a billowy trim of whipped cream and shaved unsweetened chocolate.

Naturally you want the pie crust to be perfect — just like grandma used to make. You can produce the same fine tender, tasty results by using the shortening she used. That shortening is lard.

Here are the steps to follow for pie crust success. Mix together 1 cup of sifted enriched flour and ½ teaspoon of salt. Cut 4 to 6 tablespoons of lard into the flour until the crumbs are about the size of small peas. Then add 2 to 4 tablespoons of cold water, a little at a time. Mix quickly and evenly through the flour with a fork until dough just holds in a ball. Use as little water as possible.

Roll to about ⅛ inch thickness and line a 9-inch pie pan, allowing ½ inch of crust to extend over edge. Crimp edges, then prick pastry with a fork. Bake in a very hot oven, 450° F., 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Allow to cool.

For the Chocolate Sundae filling heat ½ cup milk and ½ cup cream, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg and ⅛ teaspoon of salt in the top of a double boiler over hot, but not boiling water.

In the meantime, beat 2 egg yolks and 3 tablespoons of sugar until light and lemon-colored. Pour some of the hot milk into the egg yolk mixture and return to the double boiler. Cook until mixture coats a spoon, then remove from heat.

Next, soften 2 teaspoons of gelatin in 2 tablespoons of cold water and add to the hot milk. Then beat 2 egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold in 3 tablespoons of sugar. Carefully fold the egg whites into the cooled custard. Add 1 teaspoon of vanilla, then pour into baked pie crust and chill until set. When set, top pie with whipped cream and sprinkle with shaved unsweetened chocolate.

Chocolate Sundae Pie

- 1 9-inch baked pie shell
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup cream
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, separated
- ⅓ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons gelatin
- 2 tablespoons cold water
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ pint whipping cream, whipped
- 1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar
- ½ square unsweetened chocolate, shaved

Heat milk, cream, nutmeg and salt in top of double boiler over hot, not boiling water. Beat egg yolks and half the sugar until light and lemon-colored. Pour some of the hot milk into the egg yolk mixture and return to double boiler. Cook until mixture coats spoon. Remove from heat. Soften gelatin in cold water and add to hot milk. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold in remaining sugar. Fold into cooled custard. Add vanilla. Pour into crust and chill until set. Top with whipped cream and sprinkle with shaved chocolate.

Prune Mousse Pie

A froth of a filling in a sweet crumb crust.

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup prune juice*
- ⅓ cup sugar
- 1 cup plumped, chopped prunes
- 1 cup crushed pineapple, well-drained
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1 10-inch cornflake crust
- ⅛ cup slivered toasted almonds
- Maraschino cherries

Soak gelatin in prune juice 5 minutes. Heat over hot water until gelatin is dissolved. Add sugar. Cool. Add prunes and pineapple. Whip cream until light and fluffy; fold into prune mixture. Pour into cornflake crust; sprinkle with almonds. Chill until set. Just before serving garnish with diced maraschino cherries.

Cornflake Crust

- 1 cup finely crushed cornflakes
- ⅓ cup butter or margarine, melted
- ¼ cup sugar

Mix together cornflakes, sugar and butter or margarine. Press into bottom and on sides of 10" pie plate. Chill.

Pineapple Cheese Cake

Velvety smooth and delicately flavored.

Crumb Crust:

- 1 cup fine graham cracker crumbs
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ cup melted butter

Combine all ingredients. Press crumb mixture onto bottom of 9 inch springform pan. Chill while making filling.

Filling:

- 2 tablespoons plain gelatin
- ¾ cup sugar
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs, separated
- ¾ cup milk
- 1 cup crushed pineapple with juice (1 8¾¾ ounce can)
- 3 cups cottage cheese, sieved (24 oz.)
- ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1½ tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 cup whipping cream, whipped
- ½ cup dairy sour cream

In top of double boiler mix together gelatin, sugar and salt. Add beaten egg yolks, milk and crushed pineapple with the juice; mix well. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved, and mixture thickens slightly, about 10 minutes. Remove from heat and allow to cool slightly. Add sieved cottage cheese, lemon rind and lemon juice. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Fold stiffly beaten egg whites and whipped cream into chilled cottage cheese mixture. Pour into crumb lined springform pan. Chill until set then spread sour cream thinly over top. Continue to chill until ready to serve. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

A coating of liquid wax will help make stubborn zippers slide easily.

Cranberry Crunch

- 1 cup uncooked rolled oats
- ½ cup flour
- 1 cup brown sugar
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1 pound can Cranberry Sauce (Jellied or Whole Berry)

Mix oats, flour and brown sugar. Cut in butter or margarine until crumbly. Place half of this mixture in an 8x8-inch greased baking dish. Cover with cranberry sauce. Top with balance of mixture. Bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees F. Serve hot in squares topped with scoops of vanilla ice cream. Serves 6 to 8.

Cranberry Relish

Fresh cranberry-orange relish does double duty as a relish with meat or poultry, or as a salad, in avocado halves.

To make the relish, wash 1 pound (4 cups) of fresh cranberries and 1 seedless, unpeeled orange. Put fruit through a food chopper, using medium blade. Add 2 cups of sugar and ¼ cup of toasted, silvered blanched almonds. Mix well and chill 2 to 3 hours. Makes 3 cups.

If you serve it in avocado halves, brush the cut edges of the avocado with fresh lemon juice to prevent discoloration.

Skewered Baby Beef And Mushrooms

1½ lbs. veal round (cut ¼ inch thick)
1 clove garlic, mashed
1 Tbsp. minced onion
1½ Tbsps. A.1 Steak Sauce
1 Tsp Worchestershire Sauce
⅔ c. catsup
Dash of pepper
¼ Tsp. Salt
3 Tbsps. Sherry wine
12 squares green pepper (1½x 1½ inches)
12 slices onion (¼ inch thick)
36 mushroom crowns, fresh or canned

Cut veal in 1½ inch squares. (There should be 36.) Add to sauce made by mixing next 8 ingredients; stir; let stand several hours. Parboil green pepper, onion and fresh mushrooms separately in small amounts of lightly salted water; drain. On 6 skewers string meat and vegetables, beginning and ending each skewer with green pepper. Broil slowly until browned on all sides. Serve on beds of hot cooked rice with a hot green vegetable, and garnish of tomato wedges (or tiny plum tomatoes in season), and parsley. Serves 6.

Feast On A Perfect Baked Ham

Absolutely the world's best cook! Wouldn't you like to hear those words from your family? There are definite steps you can take toward having those words spoken. For instance, there are simple facts and rules of meat cookery you can easily master for serving perfection.

Take a ham, for instance. It is simple to have it come from the oven perfectly baked. But, first you must know what type ham you have purchased.

Perhaps in the past you have been confused by the labels on ham. They may have "ready to eat", "fully cooked," "ready to serve" or some other description. This situation has changed. Most packers today are labeling ham so you can tell at a glance what kind you are buying and approximately how much cooking time will be required.

Most of today's hams are labeled either "fully cooked" or "cook before eating." Those labeled "fully cooked" may be eaten without further cooking. If you wish to serve it hot you simply reheat it for a comparatively short length of time. Canned hams also fit into this category.

To heat a "fully cooked" ham, place it on a rack in an open roasting pan. If you have a roast meat thermometer insert it so the bulb reaches the center of the thickest part. Heat in a 300°F. to 325°F. oven until the thermometer registers 125 to 130° F.

Here is a time-table for heating "fully cooked" hams using a 300° F. oven.

	Minutes per pound
Whole ham	10
Half ham	14
Roll-Shaped Boned ham	12-15
Canned, 8-13 pounds	10-15
Canned, 6 pounds	15-20

Hams labeled "cook before eating" require additional cooking time. However, they are roasted exactly the same way as the "fully cooked" ham. Here is the roasting time-table for "cook before eating" hams. The thermometer should register 160° F.

	Minutes per pound
Whole ham	18-20
Half ham	22-25
Shank or Butt	35-40

For that finishing touch you'll want to give the ham a glistening glaze. To do this remove the ham from the oven about 30 minutes fore it is done. Pour off the drippings. Then top with a glaze mixture such as 1 cup brown sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon dry mustard and 2 to 4 tablespoons of vinegar. Return ham to the oven to finish cooking and to set the glaze.

Ham-Stuffed Pork Chops

3 cups fresh bread crumbs
1 cup chopped cooked ham
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 egg
1 10½-ounce can condensed beef broth, undiluted
6 pork chops, 1½ inches thick, with pocket in each
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground sage
¼ teaspoon dried thyme salad oil water
Crisp Potato Squares (page 100)
2 tablespoons cornstarch few sprigs water cress few lemon slices

About 1 hour and 45 minutes before serving:

1. To make filling, thoroughly combine bread crumbs, chopped cooked ham, pepper, nutmeg, egg and ½ cup beef broth. Start heating oven to 450 degrees F.
2. Trim pork chops of excess fat, then rub with salt, sage and thyme. Now stuff them with ham-bread filling. Brush on all sides with salad oil, then place, side by side, in large baking pan. Bake uncovered about 30 minutes or until done.

now it's Pepsi
for those who think young

Today parties are more informal, more fun. They reflect the big change to a youthful new outlook. It's a modern state of mind and all ages are involved. Call it thinking young. And what a life for Pepsi—light, bracing, clean-tasting Pepsi. So think young. In stores, buy an extra carton. At fountains, say "Pepsi, please!"

Skewered Baby Beef And Mushrooms

1½ lbs. veal round (cut ¼ inch thick)
1 clove garlic, mashed
1 Tbsp. minced onion
1½ Tbsps. A.1 Steak Sauce
1 Tsp Worchestershire Sauce
⅔ c. catsup
Dash of pepper
¼ Tsp. Salt
3 Tbsps. Sherry wine
12 squares green pepper (1½x 1½ inches)
12 slices onion (¼ inch thick)
36 mushroom crowns, fresh or canned

Cut veal in 1½ inch squares. (There should be 36.) Add to sauce made by mixing next 8 ingredients; stir; let stand several hours. Parboil green pepper, onion and fresh mushrooms separately in small amounts of lightly salted water; drain. On 6 skewers string meat and vegetables, beginning and ending each skewer with green pepper. Broil slowly until browned on all sides. Serve on beds of hot cooked rice with a hot green vegetable, and garnish of tomato wedges (or tiny plum tomatoes in season), and parsley. Serves 6.

Feast On A Perfect Baked Ham

Absolutely the world's best cook! Wouldn't you like to hear those words from your family? There are definite steps you can take toward having those words spoken. For instance, there are simple facts and rules of meat cookery you can easily master for serving perfection.

Take a ham, for instance. It is simple to have it come from the oven perfectly baked. But, first you must know what type ham you have purchased.

Perhaps in the past you have been confused by the labels on ham. They may have "ready to eat", "fully cooked," "ready to serve" or some other description. This situation has changed. Most packers today are labeling ham so you can tell at a glance what kind you are buying and approximately how much cooking time will be required.

Most of today's hams are labeled either "fully cooked" or "cook before eating." Those labeled "fully cooked" may be eaten without further cooking. If you wish to serve it hot you simply reheat it for a comparatively short length of time. Canned hams also fit into this category.

To heat a "fully cooked" ham, place it on a rack in an open roasting pan. If you have a roast meat thermometer insert it so the bulb reaches the center of the thickest part. Heat in a 300°F. to 325°F. oven until the thermometer registers 125 to 130° F.

Here is a time-table for heating "fully cooked" hams using a 300° F. oven.

	Minutes per pound
Whole ham	10
Half ham	14
Roll-Shaped Boned ham	12-15
Canned, 8-13 pounds	10-15
Canned, 6 pounds	15-20

Hams labeled "cook before eating" require additional cooking time. However, they are roasted exactly the same way as the "fully cooked" ham. Here is the roasting time-table for "cook before eating" hams. The thermometer should register 160° F.

	Minutes per pound
Whole ham	18-20
Half ham	22-25
Shank or Butt	35-40

For that finishing touch you'll want to give the ham a glistening glaze. To do this remove the ham from the oven about 30 minutes fore it is done. Pour off the drippings. Then top with a glaze mixture such as 1 cup brown sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon dry mustard and 2 to 4 tablespoons of vinegar. Return ham to the oven to finish cooking and to set the glaze.

Ham-Stuffed Pork Chops

3 cups fresh bread crumbs
1 cup chopped cooked ham
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Food Shopping Guide

WASHINGTON (UPI) A wide variety of attractive buys in meat, poultry, fruits, and vegetables awaits shoppers this weekend.

Best meat buys include beef roasts and steaks, and pork roast. Broiler-fryers and turkeys are in ample supply and reasonably priced.

A cornucopia of vegetable choices includes cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, onions, potatoes, and squash.

A special feature on fruit counters will be apples, while grapes, grapefruit, cranberries, and oranges will also be in good supply.

Many stores are offering an ample amount of reasonably priced dairy products.

Good buys for fish shoppers include canned Maine sardines, canned tuna, fish sticks and fish portions.

Best fruit buys are apples, avocados, and red grapes.

Dairy products continue in good supply.

Virtually all beef cuts will be featured — porterhouse, rib, and sirloin steaks, and round, rib, and boneless chuck roasts. Among the pork items expected to be featured are loin roasts and smoked hams.

Abundant supplies of fillets, clams, lobsters, whiting and oysters will be available at fish counters this weekend.

Sparkling Fruit Salad

(Makes 6 (6-oz.) molds)
1 envelope plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
¼ cup sugar
Few grains salt
½ cup California Rose wine
1 cup chilled gingerale
2 cups sliced fresh peaches, strawberries, or melon balls
Salad greens
Commercial sour cream

Soften gelatin in cold water, lemon juice and vinegar. Dissolve by placing over hot water. Add sugar, salt and Rose, and stir until sugar is dissolved. Cool. Blend in gingerale. Fold in fruit, and spoon into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp salad greens. Serve with sour cream, or any desired dressing.

A New Version: Sweet-Sour Frankfurters

"I resolve to introduce my family to new versions of old standby dishes to make my meals more exciting and different." Have you ever made this resolution?

For years children have sung the praises of frankfurters. There's just nothing like a frankfurter roasted over an open fire and popped into buns. Of course, you've served franks with sauerkraut and with hot potato salad. But here's a new indoor cookery idea for frankfurters. They are Sweet-Sour Frankfurters.

Here's how to prepare this dish. You'll need 1 pound of frankfurters for 4 servings. First, for the Sweet-Sour sauce to be served over the franks, heat ½ cup of water to the boiling point. Then add 1 beef bouillon cube and stir until dissolved.

Next, mix 5 teaspoons of cornstarch with ½ cup of water. Slowly add to the bouillon. Then add 2 tablespoons of chopped pimiento, 1 tablespoon of chopped dill pickle, ½ cup vinegar and 1 tablespoon of brown sugar. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.

In the meantime you can be preparing the frankfurters. Simply simmer them in water to cover for 10 minutes. Actually, frankfurters are completely cooked ready to eat when you purchase them. They need only to be heated through to serve hot. Arrange the hot franks on a platter and serve the Sweet-Sour sauce over them.

For still another idea for frankfurter serving fun, prepare Bacon-Cheese Frankfurters. The bacon and cheese are "stuffing" for the franks. To prepare the stuffing, cook strips of bacon until crisp and drain on absorbent paper. Then break the bacon into bite-sizes pieces and combine with grated sharp cheese.

Next, cut frankfurters lengthwise, but not quite through—just enough so they may be opened. Then generously top each frankfurter with the stuffing.

Arrange the stuffed franks on your broiler rack and broil them at a moderate temperature until the cheese is bubbly. This takes only 5 or 6 minutes. Serve them with buns if you wish.

Sweet-Sour Frankfurters
1 pound frankfurters
1 cup water
1 beef bouillon cube
5-teaspoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon chopped dill pickle
½ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt

Heat ½ cup water to boiling, add bouillon cube and stir until dissolved. Mix cornstarch and remaining ½ cup water. Combine all ingredients except frankfurters. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Simmer frankfurters in water to cover for 10 minutes. Serve sauce over frankfurters. 4 servings.

Cranberry Holiday Slices

1 package Orange Muffin Mix (both envelopes) (14 oz.)
¾ cup Whole Berry Cranberry Sauce
1 cup finely chopped nuts

For fancy slices at tea parties, collect 6 (6 oz.) empty frozen juice concentrate cans. Wash, dry and grease sides and bottoms thoroughly. Preheat oven to 375° F. Prepare muffin mix (using both envelopes) according to directions on package. Fold in whole cranberry sauce and nuts. Spoon batter into greased cans, filling ⅔ full. Bake at 375° F. for 30 to 35 minutes. Cool on rack 5 minutes. Ease out of cans with spatula. Cool. Slice to serve. For very thin slices, cool thoroughly, wrap in aluminum foil. Wait 'til second day to slice. Or freeze wrapped rolls to keep for later.

Supper Suggestion

How many times have you wished for a new "go-with" for the evenings' meat course? Planning three meals a day around your family budget and food preference takes a lot of creative talent. But even the most imaginative homemaker has days when she wishes a genie would solve her constant problem—"what to serve, with what".

We've rubbed our magic lantern and come up with these Tomato Broilers, a vegetable dish we think everyone will enjoy. The tomatoes are halved and topped with a mixture of creamy salad dressing and shredded Parmesan. They're then broiled and served bubbly hot on crisp toast squares. The lively flavored dressing is the same one the youngsters like so well as a sandwich spread: the same velvety dressing you use to top your favorite salads. Combined with the Parmesan it makes a peppy topping for your tomatoes and gives them the new look you wanted, too.

Partner the Tomato Broilers with golden corn to serve with meat or perhaps that fish you'd frozen and saved from vacation. A mixed green salad completes the menu, topped off with a dessert of chocolate sundaes and homemade cookies.

TOMATO BROILERS
*½ cup salad dressing
¼ cup shredded Parmesan cheese
4 tomatoes, cut in half
8 slices white bread, crusts trimmed and toasted

Combine salad dressing and cheese; mix well. Top each tomato half with salad dressing and broil 10 minutes until bubbly and slightly browned. Serve on toast.

8 servings
*Miracle Whip Salad Dressing
Kraft Shredded Parmesan Cheese

Week's Food Economies

With cooler weather, shoppers select pork with greater frequency than at other times of the year. Plenty of pork is coming to market as hog slaughter reaches a seasonal peak. Pork is a good choice for the market basket and for tasty meals, says Virginia L. McLuckie, food economist in the Baltimore office of the University of Maryland Department of Markets.

Shoppers will find more pork from lean-type hogs at meat counters than in the past. Today's shopper seems to prefer lean cuts and demands closer trimming of fat on pork cuts.

When shopping for pork look for the following signs of quality: lean meat that is grayish-pink in color with streaks of fat among the lean; lean that is firm, fine-grained and with a smooth velvety appearance; fat that is white and moderately firm; bones that are porous with red or pink.

Cook pork thoroughly. Be sure all the pink is cooked out so that when served the meat is grayish-white. Because pork is tender, almost any cut of fresh and cured pork may be roasted. Place the roast in an uncovered shallow pan, fat side up, so it is self-basting. Add no water. Season either before or after cooking. For roasting, an oven temperature of 325 F. is recommended. Braising and pan-frying such cuts as spare ribs and pork chops are favorite ways of cooking these selections.

Nutritively speaking, pork is one of the richest sources of Vitamin B, along with protein and other minerals.

As you shop you will note a number of seasonal vegetables that go well with pork and other meats. The best buys include cabbage, broccoli, white and sweet potatoes, and mushrooms. Specials on canned and frozen vegetables are attractive.

Cranberry receipts are increasing. Apples are the leading fruit value. There are Staymans, Delicious, McIntosh and Jonathans awaiting your selection. Frozen orange juice supplies are still heavy and prices attractive.

Democratic Rally Staged At Cresaptown; Schindler Strikes Out At Republicans

Julius E. Schindler, local attorney, inquired at Tuesday's Restaurant in Cresaptown just what programs the two Democratic county commissioners have started that their Republican opponents would eliminate.

Schindler said the GOP candidates for commissioners have been critical of the Democrats, John J. Rowan and John T. Mason, but so far have not informed the people of Allegany County what they intend to do regarding a long list of programs which these men inaugurated.

"Do they intend to eliminate the $400 annual pay raise given county workers, the salary increases given school teachers, the Planning and Zoning Commission, Sanitary Commission, investing of monies, Allegany County Community College, County Library with its bookmobile program, the water feasibility survey for Savage River Dam, Schindler asked.

The rally was celebrated as "Tucker Mason Night" as he is a resident of the Cresaptown area.

Milton Gerson, treasurer for the county campaign, spoke on behalf of the statewide ticket. He cited the outstanding record set by Gov. Tawes and his running mates, Attorney General Thomas B. Finan and Comptroller Louis Goldstein.

Gerson pointed to the benefits derived in Allegany County in large appropriations for Frostburg State Teachers College, numerous road projects, particularly on U. S. Route 40 between here and Hancock. The added monies for Dan's Mountain Recreation Area and $100,000 for land acquisitions for the new Rocky Gap State Park were also mentioned as progressive steps.

Gerson said that in Daniel Brewster the state has an outstanding legislator for the U. S. Senate. The candidacies of Carlton R. Sickles for Congressman-at-large, and John Foley for Congress from the Sixth District also gives the electorate two outstanding men to work with President Kennedy in his program.

John J. Long, a candidate for county commissioner, told the group that "if elected I will work for expansion and advancement of educational facilities and will cooperate with the Board of Education in such projects".

Long also said he favors a recreation program for all ages and geographically established throughout the county. He also said that efforts must be made to promote industry and provide jobs for high school graduates

Edward J. Ryan, local attorney, spoke in behalf of the three Democratic commissioner candidates and recounted the accomplishments of the two incumbents and the record established by John J. Long as a city councilman in Cumberland.

Speaking in their own behalf were Del. Thomas F. Conlon, who seeks re-election; John Hutzell, George Boch, James S. Stafford and George Walters, candidates for House of Delegates. Conlon pointed out that the Democratic delegate candidates are all hard-working men in their own fields and that Allegany County would benefit from their services in Annapolis.

Having Democrats in Annapolis would result in progress for the county, Conlon said, as they would be working with a Democratic legislature and governor. It was brought out by Walters that last winter at a meeting in Lonaconing the Dan's Mountain Rec Area project was discussed and when it came time to decide on someone to bring the matter to Gov. Tawes' attention it was William Walsh who was picked.

"And he saw the governor and in a short time the Dan's Mountain project was allotted $25,000 by Gov. Tawes", Walters pointed out.

Others who spoke were Clarence Myers, for sheriff; Judge Howard P. Loughrie, and Samuel T. Weatherholt for judge of Orphans Court; Carl Ruffo, for county treasurer and William B. Orndorf, for clerk of Circuit Court.

The general theme of all the speakers was that the job done by the two Democrats in the county commissioners' office and in the Legislature by Walsh and Conlon merited the support of Allegany County voters regardless of party affiliation.

James Conlon, a member of the Democratic State Central Committee, was master of ceremonies.

West Berliners Busy Living For Today

By RALPH VILLERS

BERLIN (UPI)—This one-time capital of Germany, now situated 110 miles behind communism's Iron Curtain in Europe, almost compels a visit by any American traveling on the Continent.

Aside from the Wall dividing East and West Berlin, which in itself has become a lure for travelers, Berlin offers an atmosphere unable to be found anywhere else in Europe, and approximated elsewhere only in Hong Kong, which sits virtually surrounded by Red China in the Far East.

It's hard to escape an impression of frantic living for today, if you take even a brief plunge into the city's night life. In some of the "hotter" spots, it almost looks as if money is going out of style, what with a drink of scotch going at prices up to $5 or more.

But neither is it necessary to "go for broke" to catch a glimpse of Berlin's famed, frantic night life. Young, and not too wealthy, West Berliners flock to a place called the Resi, as unique a fun and dance spot as is found anywhere. Guys and gals go in stag groups to the Resi and settle down around the hundreds of tables—all linked to each other by dial telephones and a pneumatic tube system.

Real Twisters

Never have you seen more heart or hips put into the Twist than in the Twist room, one of many little rooms in a club called the Eden, where the younger set lives it up at a moderate price by nursing one beer through most of the night.

The night life comes in all varieties and price ranges—from a corner beer restaurant right up to Latin background music in El Panorama, high atop the Berlin Hilton, where you can sit and contrast the bright glow of the lights of West Berlin with the relative darkness of the Communist sector of the city.

But Berlin is fully as alive in daylight as at night. When the sun is up, the Western sector of this largest of German cities is busy and prosperous looking. The streets, many of them broad, modern boulevards, are heavy with traffic.

Sidewalks and sidewalk cafes, neatly glassed in and heated against the chill of winter, are crowded. The stores of the Kurfuerstendamm, that most famous of Berlin shopping streets, are filled with anything you want to buy from smart clothes to expensive silverware and cameras.

Berlin Transforms

Berlin, once known as an architecturally heavy city, has taken on a modern look. Broad expanses of glass and trim lines mark the new buildings. The Kongresshalle, the convention center which was the gift of the people of America, is just about the most futuristic of buildings to be found anywhere, and has been dubbed both "the pregnant oyster," which it may look like, and "the baby scales," which its roof line definitely resembles.

The hardest part about visiting Berlin is in leaving. It can even verge on the weepy, if, in that great semi-circle that is the Templehof Airport terminal, the air suddenly is filled with the loudspeaker-blared words and music of "Auf Wiedersehen" as you walk to your plane.

Monkey Needs 'Pals' More Than Mother

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — A monkey needs a playmate more than he needs a mother, a team of psychologists said Tuesday.

Two University of Wisconsin psychologists said a monkey can be happy without a mother so long as he has plenty of friends around.

If all the monkey has is his mother, the psychologists said, he's apt to be moody, unhappy and socially retarded.

Psychologists Harry and Margaret Kuenne Harlow reported in the current issue of Scientific American that laboratory studies of normal and abnormal development in monkeys have shed new light on the mysteries of human development.

U. S., Indonesia Learn From Youth Exchange Plan

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The author of the following is a 17-year-old senior at Phillips Academy in Andover, Mass. He spent two months this summer in the island republic of Indonesia, living with an Indonesian family under American Field Service sponsorship. Admission to the program is competitive.)

Relations between the young Republic of Indonesia and the United States have been improved by a high school exchange program initiated in 1956 by the American Field Service (AFS).

During a reception at the presidential palace at Bogor in 1961, President Sukarno expressed amazement at the fact that U.S. pupils had learned the Indonesian language and lived exclusively with Indonesian families during their stay in the country.

Turning to the American ambassador, Sukarno remarked that for the first time he believed that "there can be some understanding between our countries."

A Twofold Purpose

This reaction was encountered throughout the island republic in the summer of 1962 as people saw American teen-agers able to achieve a thorough adjustment to the Indonesian way of life. Thus the program serves to foster not only friendship but an increased understanding of American character which is often distorted, both by propaganda and an influx of trashy magazines, books and movies from the United States.

This summer the 16 pupils, representing almost as many states, arrived in Indonesia June 21 and remained until Aug. 27. All spent the first week in Djakarta for the purpose of orientation and to make courtesy calls on local and national officials, the latter being on important facet of Indonesian etiquette.

They were slowly accustomed to a diet of rice, tea, fruits and spiced meats and learned some of the customs — taking a siesta in the afternoon to escape the torrid heat; bathing by sloshing unheated but lukewarm water on themselves from an oversized basin and making their first halting steps in the direction of language proficiency.

Then it was on to the different cities and towns where each spent five weeks with an Indonesian family, learning the language and trying to penetrate beneath the surface in an effort to fathom the national character. We became members of our respective families, made speeches before groups, went shopping and constantly made the rounds of the town, sipping hot tea at any and all formal stops.

Answers Their Queries

In turn, we answered questions about President Kennedy, segregation, the American Indian, Hollywood movie stars and other aspects of life in the United States.

Early in August the Americans assembled in Surabaja and began an 11-day trip through Central Java, staying two days in five different cities with new families and being exposed to the variation in Indonesian character from region to region. The final week was spent back in Djakarta.

Bali, also known as Pulau De-Wata or "Island of the Gods," is a delight to the senses and must be reckoned as one of the world's most exotic places.

This ancient island just east of Java is free of superficial tourist-trapping devices. The tourist who comes here will find much to stimulate his aesthetic senses in the form of graceful dances, delicate wood carvings and century-old Hindu temples.

The tourist is told that Bali is the property of the gods, but that it is given in trust to the people. Who can doubt it after being exposed to this tropical land east of Java where mythology and ancient heroes rule the minds of a carefree island people?

East German Suicide Rate Is Highest

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — Communist East Germany has the highest suicide rate of all countries on which such statistics are available, the German Institute of Industry reported Tuesday.

The institute said that 5,185 persons, or .03 per cent of the population, committed suicide in East Germany in 1960, according to official East German statisticians.

Montreal is the world's second largest French-speaking city. Most of its million residents speak French and many know no English.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE

FOR

STATE SENATOR

Bill Walsh has been a member of the Maryland House of Delegates since 1959, and during his four years of service more State funds have been appropriated for various purposes in Allegany County than in any prior four year period.

For example, almost three million dollars more was appropriated for Frostburg State Teachers' College than was appropriated during the preceding four year period when his opponent was minority floor leader in the House of Delegates with a Republican Governor as Chief Executive of the State.

Forty thousand dollars was appropriated for the Dan's Mountain Recreation area, as against ten thousand in the preceding adminstration, 1955 to 1958, and one hundred thousand dollars was appropriated for a park at Rocky Gap as against nothing from 1955 to 1958.

Allegany County needs even increased help from the State in the future to promote its continued progress, and a Democratic State Senator at Annapolis, working with and not against the Democratic majority in the Legislature, would best insure getting this help. Vote to continue progress in Allegany County by electing Bill Walsh as your State Senator.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—What a break for Capucine. The one-name beauty replaces Ava Gardner in "The Pink Panther" after Ava, for some reason, bowed out of the jewel thief thriller which will be made in Rome starring David Niven, Bob Wagner and Claudia Cardinale.

I'm beginning to wonder, however, how producer Blake Edwards is going to square himself about playing favorites between Capucine and Claudia, his two beautiful co-stars? In a burst of generosity a few weeks ago, Edwards said he was going to give Claudia a gift of the $60,000 diamond which is the title of the film. If I know glamor girls, he's going to have to come up with something equally good for the other dear charmer.

Geraldine Page paid me a visit and brought a message from Rip Torn. He wanted me to know that he had never met Henry Willson and that his real name is Elmore Torn, Jr. Since he was a child his family has called him "Rip" and the name stuck like glue. When he went into "Sweet Bird of Youth" Elia Kazan begged him to change his name but after so many years he just couldn't.

Geraldine, whom I met for the first time when she paid me a visit, is a fascinating woman. She comes from the middle West and is so reticent about her personal life that I was surprised when she asked me to say something about Rip Torn.

Anita Ekberg is down to 128 pounds and considering that she's a big gal, that's pretty skinny for the voluptuous Swede. But Anita has threatened to bar London reporters off the movie she's making with Bob Hope, "Call Me Bwana," if they don't stop "making up" stories of how she lost her weight. The most circulated story is that she locked herself in a hotel room and drank only tea until she had dropped 30 pounds.

"That's not true," she says indignantly, "I lost the weight under the care of a doctor who had me on a balanced diet."

Oh, yes—Anita would like to make it very plain also that she has no further romantic interest in Rod Taylor. So there.

It was a foolhardy risk taken by Jim Mitchum (Bob's son) when he left the set of Carl Foreman's "The Victors" to accompany a radio reporter to the American Embassy site in London during the height of the Communist agitation protesting our action on Cuba.

The hostile group immediately spotted him and the reporter as Americans. Before young Mitchum and his Yankee pal could push and shove their way out of the mob, the commie sympathizers acquired a few souvenirs planted by the 192-pound, six-foot-four young Mitchum.

However, with the London police having their hands full in perilous situations such as this, visiting foreigners have been asked to stay out of explosive danger zones in the future.

Edward Albee Isn't 'The New O'Neill'

By JACK GAVER
UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The big dramatic noise of the season so far has been made by a young playwright named Edward Albee with a work entitled "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?," current at the Billy Rose Theatre.

The reviews were by no means unanimous in praise, but some were on the ecstatic side, and it is a work that will have both staunch supporters and detractors. It is one of those controversial items that, because of several factors, is likely to do well at the box office and possibly pick up a prize or two next spring.

Albee is the lad who gained a big reputation with several one-act plays in off-Broadway theaters in the past three years. His "The Zoo Story" has been produced in many countries to general acclaim. But people kept on asking when he was going to write a full-length play — or could he?

It is almost as though Albee finally got tired of this and said to himself, "I'll show them." With the result that "Who's Afriad of Virginia Woolf?" is not merely what is generally accepted as full length; it goes on for well over three hours.

Who does he think he is, Eugene O'Neill? Well, sir, you hear talk around that this is "the new O'Neill," and may those who utter same be forgiven.

Touch Similar Themes

The comparison has been drawn not simply because Albee has written an extra-long play, but because he specializes in the dark inner turmoil of distressed humans. O'Neill did that, too, much of the time.

But O'Neill, in both his good plays and bad — and he had some bad ones, believe me — managed to come up with interesting characters. Not necessarily persons you could like or love — more often to the contrary — but characters about whom you could be made to care. If that sounds like doubletalk, I can only say that to me, in plays, I can care about characters without really liking them.

So far, Albee hasn't presented in any of his plays a single character who really arouses my interest. And that was never truer than in the case of his newest work.

Four Characters

There are four characters in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Wolff?" They are a middleaged college professor of history and his wife, and a young professor of biology and his wife. The first two apparently have been engaged in a bitter battle of the sexes since they married; the second pair turns out to have some unsavory traumata of their own.

All of this hate and these quirks — there is much accent on sex and foul language — are spewed out in dialogue that is often brilliant enough in itself — the man can write but has little judgment in certain vital dramatic areas — although it soon falls into a predictable and repetitious pattern that is harmful to the overall dramatic effect.

Uta Hagen, Arthur Hill, George Grizzard and Melinda Dillon constitute an excellent cast under the able direction of Alan Schneider.

If you are a genuine theater fan, you'll have to go see it to discover your own reaction. But don't say I sent you.

THE ROMAN TOUCH — Actress Susan Strasberg admires a new gown in Rome during a visit to the salon of Italian designer Renato Balestra. The dress tops a long skirt of corrugated blue silk with a bodice of white organza-and-satin petals which spring from a wide belt around the midriff.

Bob Horton Wants To Be Singer

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bob Horton, an actor who spent five years riding television's "Wagon Train" chose a much faster mode of travel for a tour of personal appearances.

Leaving behind horse, saddle and pistols, Horton took off in his own private airplane for a trip which covered 10,000 miles. For company he had two passengers, Mrs. Horton and their poodle.

Horton was gone from Hollywood four months, performing and visiting in Boston, Charlotte, N.C., Atlanta, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Tulsa, and Columbus, Warren, Springfield and Cleveland, Ohio.

Outside a little cloudy weather, Horton made the long trip without a mishap. Even the poodle was comfortable.

Although he's proud of his flying ability, Horton didn't make the trip to prove he could pilot an airplane. He wanted to prove he was a singer.

Does Musicals

When he was on the ground during his recently completed trip Horton appeared in a pair of musicals, "Pajama Game" and "Oklahoma," and two plays.

"I'm not known as a singer," said Horton. "But I'm interested in the musical theater and think there's a need for actors who can sing.

"Too many times I've gone to a musical and seen a guy who could sing well but was a bad actor, or he could act but let the singing down. I want to bring the two together and believe I'm having success at it. Those two musicals I did called for a lot of singing. You couldn't talk those songs."

Horton is serious about his vocalizing and spends much time and money perfecting his voice.

Form Popular Series

Horton and the late Ward Bond started "Wagon Train" on its westward television trek and the series became one of the most popular.

Last year Horton decided to leave the series. His decision caused television executives to make him a fat financial offer amounting to a reported $1 million if he would remain.

He turned them down, saying he wanted to widen his acting career.

Horton has often been asked if he feels it was a mistake to leave "Wagon Train" and all that money.

"As far as having any regrets about leaving the series, I don't have any," he said. "The future is filled with bright opportunities."

Denies Arrest Charges

Remember Veronica Lake? She's Back

By HARRY MILLICAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Veronica Lake, the tiny actress who used to peer at movie audiences from behind a long lock of blonde hair obscuring her right eye, has started a comeback on television, just one year after becoming a grandmother.

The hair is short and neatly coiffured now. A tinge of red has replaced the stark blondeness of 22 years ago, when she first electrified motion picture fans in "I Wanted Wings." But television viewers in Baltimore are discovering that time has not dimmed her bubbling personality.

"Isn't it wonderful?" she said during an interview in the plush New York apartment she uses between trips to Baltimore. "For years all my friends tried to shut me up, and now somebody is paying me to talk!"

Her role on the Saturday night "Festival of Stars" program on Station WJZ-TV is to introduce old movies, chat, and tell amusing or interesting anecdotes about the stars, most of whom she knew personally.

Owns One Movie

The station sponsoring Miss Lake owns the rights to only one of her old movies, "I Married A Witch," and is using it for the fourth of the series. (Its rival station has all the others and understandably isn't likely to use them right now.)

In taping her opening commentary on "I Married A Witch," Miss Lake — her friends call her "Ronnie" — ended by naming the cast, giving her own name last, and then, believing she was off-mike, adding a remark the station decided to leave in the tape. It was: "Whatever happened to her?"

Among the things that have "happened to her," she related, was a recent newspaper story indicating that the erstwhile Hollywood glamour queen had been reduced to eking out a living by working as a hostess in a cocktail bar.

Story Was Wrong

"It was all wrong," Miss Lake said, "but I was just amused and didn't mind at first. But then I began to get letters from all over the world, in care of the bar, where I had just filled in for a few days to help out a friend. They came from everywhere, even from Australia.

Miss Lake explained that, while not "really wealthy," she is "comfortably fixed."

Miss Lake (she is single again after three marriages that "just didn't take") made her last movie, an independent, Spanish-English language epic called "Stronghold," in Mexico in 1951.

She said she has no ambition ever to return to making movies, an occupation she abandoned partly because of her children, Elaine, 21; Michael, 17, and Diana, 15. Elaine, now Mrs. Dale Witt of New York, became a mother last October, providing the actress with her first grandchild, Jennifer. Michael and Diana are in school, the latter in Switzerland.

Kansas RR's

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (UPI) — The first railroad track was laid in Kansas in 1857, but rails did not boom until after the Civil War. Then 200 companies vied for right-of-way and 15 per cent of the land in Kansas was given to railroads by the federal government.

'Three Creeps' In New Horror Flick

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Boris Karloff, carrying his 75 years like a proud set of antlers, crept stealthily into the scene of a new movie to scare hell out of Vincent Price and Peter Lorre — a pair that doesn't scare easily.

After the shot, and still dressed in the costume of a 14th Century sorcerer, Karloff repaired to the small lunch room at Producers Studio and immediately ruined the appetites of several diners.

Who could enjoy a steak sandwich with a guy like that casing the joint for ghouls, zombies, werewolves and monsters?

A man of enormous dignity and professional pride, Karloff rejected the idea that he frightens people off-screen. This despite suspicious glances from nearby tables.

The gray-haired, sonorous voiced actor is delighted that he has been type-cast as an archvillain all his life. His contempt for young method types who fight against establishing themselves in a particular acting mold is genuine and frequently expressed.

Proud Of Trademark

"I'm jolly lucky to have built a trademark of horror," he said. "That is what every manufacturer is trying to do, establish his product through a familiar trademark.

"If it weren't for being typecast I might be driving a truck by now, which I did in the early 1920s."

Proud as he is of his screen reputation for terror, Karloff does resent being thought of as having played only monsters.

"I only played Frankenstein's monster three times," he said, "and I'm grateful for having done so. But most of my work has involved mad scientists rather than three-headed monstrosities."

In his new movie for American-International, "The Raven," the English star meets his usual grisly end — this time at the hands of Price and Lorre.

"Creeps" Team Up

"They've gotten the three creeps together in one movie," he chuckled. "It is tremendously interesting to work with both of those gentlemen. They are fine actors and we have an excellent script.

"I call the picture a fairytale, or fantasy-horror film. There are almost as many laughs as there are thrills. It contains real humor which makes the terror all the more effective."

Karloff makes his home in London now, explaining that Englishmen may spend their lives traveling throughout the world, or settling in a far-off land, but eventually they are drawn back to their roots in England. His sincerity and depth of feeling for Blighty was downright touching.

In addition to working in movies in England Karloff played host this year on a live television series titled "Out of This World," which proved as successful as his American video series, "Thriller."

Karloff is spry for his age and devoted to his work. Checking his watch the actor noted he still had 15 minutes to spare before reporting to the set. No matter, he was determined to return early.

"I dislike having the director send out looking for me," he said. "Actors should be on the set and ready to go. It is unprofessional to do otherwise."

Then, rolling his eyes ominously, Boris Karloff rumbled toward the sound stage.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—What a break for Capucine. The one-name beauty replaces Ava Gardner in "The Pink Panther" after Ava, for some reason, bowed out of the jewel thief thriller which will be made in Rome starring David Niven, Bob Wagner and Claudia Cardinale.

I'm beginning to wonder, however, how producer Blake Edwards is going to square himself about playing favorites between Capucine and Claudia, his two beautiful co-stars? In a burst of generosity a few weeks ago, Edwards said he was going to give Claudia a gift of the $60,000 diamond which is the title of the film. If I know glamor girls, he's going to have to come up with something equally good for the other dear charmer.

Geraldine Page paid me a visit and brought a message from Rip Torn. He wanted me to know that he had never met Henry Willson and that his real name is Elmore Torn, Jr. Since he was a child his family has called him "Rip" and the name stuck like glue. When he went into "Sweet Bird of Youth" Elia Kazan begged him to change his name but after so many years he just couldn't.

Geraldine, whom I met for the first time when she paid me a visit, is a fascinating woman. She comes from the middle West and is so reticent about her personal life that I was surprised when she asked me to say something about Rip Torn.

Anita Ekberg is down to 128 pounds and considering that she's a big gal, that's pretty skinny for the voluptuous Swede. But Anita has threatened to bar London reporters off the movie she's making with Bob Hope, "Call Me Bwana," if they don't stop "making up" stories of how she lost her weight. The most circulated story is that she locked herself in a hotel room and drank only tea until she had dropped 30 pounds.

"That's not true," she says indignantly, "I lost the weight under the care of a doctor who had me on a balanced diet."

Oh, yes—Anita would like to make it very plain also that she has no further romantic interest in Rod Taylor. So there.

It was a foolhardy risk taken by Jim Mitchum (Bob's son) when he left the set of Carl Foreman's "The Victors" to accompany a radio reporter to the American Embassy site in London during the height of the Communist agitation protesting our action on Cuba.

The hostile group immediately spotted him and the reporter as Americans. Before young Mitchum and his Yankee pal could push and shove their way out of the mob, the commie sympathizers acquired a few souvenirs planted by the 192-pound, six-foot-four young Mitchum.

However, with the London police having their hands full in perilous situations such as this, visiting foreigners have been asked to stay out of explosive danger zones in the future.

Edward Albee Isn't 'The New O'Neill'

UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The big dramatic noise of the season so far has been made by a young playwright named Edward Albee with a work entitled "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?," current at the Billy Rose Theatre.

The reviews were by no means unanimous in praise, but some were on the ecstatic side, and it is a work that will have both staunch supporters and detractors. It is one of those controversial items that, because of several factors, is likely to do well at the box office and possibly pick up a prize or two next spring.

Albee is the lad who gained a big reputation with several one-act plays in off-Broadway theaters in the past three years. His "The Zoo Story" has been produced in many countries to general acclaim. But people kept on asking when he was going to write a full-length play — or could he?

It is almost as though Albee finally got tired of this and said to himself, "I'll show them." With the result that "Who's Afriad of Virginia Woolf?" is not merely what is generally accepted as full length; it goes on for well over three hours.

Who does he think he is, Eugene O'Neill? Well, sir, you hear talk around that this is "the new O'Neill," and may those who utter same be forgiven.

Touch Similar Themes

The comparison has been drawn not simply because Albee has written an extra-long play, but because he specializes in the dark inner turmoil of distressed humans. O'Neill did that, too, much of the time.

But O'Neill, in both his good plays and bad — and he had some bad ones, believe me — managed to come up with interesting characters. Not necessarily persons you could like or love — more often to the contrary — but characters about whom you could be made to care. If that sounds like doubletalk, I can only say that to me, in plays, I can care about characters without really liking them.

So far, Albee hasn't presented in any of his plays a single character who really arouses my interest. And that was never truer than in the case of his newest work.

Four Characters

There are four characters in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Wolff?" They are a middleaged college professor of history and his wife, and a young professor of biology and his wife. The first two apparently have been engaged in a bitter battle of the sexes since they married; the second pair turns out to have some unsavory traumata of their own.

All of this hate and these quirks — there is much accent on sex and foul language — are spewed out in dialogue that is often brilliant enough in itself — the man can write but has little judgment in certain vital dramatic areas — although it soon falls into a predictable and repetitious pattern that is harmful to the overall dramatic effect.

Uta Hagen, Arthur Hill, George Grizzard and Melinda Dillon constitute an excellent cast under the able direction of Alan Schneider.

If you are a genuine theater fan, you'll have to go see it to discover your own reaction. But don't say I sent you.

Bob Horton Wants To Be Singer

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bob Horton, an actor who spent five years riding television's "Wagon Train" chose a much faster mode of travel for a tour of personal appearances.

Leaving behind horse, saddle and pistols, Horton took off in his own private airplane for a trip which covered 10,000 miles. For company he had two passengers, Mrs. Horton and their poodle.

Horton was gone from Hollywood four months, performing and visiting in Boston, Charlotte, N.C., Atlanta, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Tulsa, and Columbus, Warren, Springfield and Cleveland, Ohio.

Outside a little cloudy weather, Horton made the long trip without a mishap. Even the poodle was comfortable.

Although he's proud of his flying ability, Horton didn't make the trip to prove he could pilot an airplane. He wanted to prove he was a singer.

Does Musicals

When he was on the ground during his recently completed trip Horton appeared in a pair of musicals, "Pajama Game" and "Oklahoma," and two plays.

"I'm not known as a singer," said Horton. "But I'm interested in the musical theater and think there's a need for actors who can sing.

"Too many times I've gone to a musical and seen a guy who could sing well but was a bad actor, or he could act but let the singing down. I want to bring the two together and believe I'm having success at it. Those two musicals I did called for a lot of singing. You couldn't talk those songs."

Horton is serious about his vocalizing and spends much time and money perfecting his voice.

Form Popular Series

Horton and the late Ward Bond started "Wagon Train" on its westward television trek and the series became one of the most popular.

Last year Horton decided to leave the series. His decision caused television executives to make him a fat financial offer amounting to a reported $1 million if he would remain.

He turned them down, saying he wanted to widen his acting career.

Horton has often been asked if he feels it was a mistake to leave "Wagon Train" and all that money.

"As far as having any regrets about leaving the series, I don't have any," he said. "The future is filled with bright opportunities."

Postmaster General To Dedicate Romney Post Office

ROMNEY, W. Va. —Postmaster General J. Edward Day will head a list of guests Saturday as the new post office building is dedicated.

Dedication ceremonies are scheduled at 10 a. m. Saturday at the new post office site, 39 Marsham Street, according to Harold L. Welker, who has been sworn in as the postmaster.

Scheduled to attend the ceremony, along with the postmaster general, are Sen. Jennings Randolph, Rep. Harley O. Staggers, of West Virginia's second congressional district, and Howard R. Barker, assistant regional post office director.

The new facility is part of the Post Office Department's commercial leasing plan, under which investment financing is used to obtain needed facilities which remain under private ownership, pay local taxes, and are leased to the Federal Government.

Postmaster General Day, a former vice president with the Prudential Insurance Company, directs the operations of 580,000 postal workers and is responsible for the largest single service establishment and the biggest civilian department of the federal government.

A native of Jacksonville, Ill., Day was graduated from the University of Chicago in three years in 1935 and received his law degree cum laude from the Harvard Law School in 1938.

He subsequently entered law practice in Chicago with the firm of Sidley, Austin, Burgess and Smith, a firm in which Adlai E. Stevenson, U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations, was a partner.

When Stevenson became governor of Illinois, he appointed Day to his staff and later named him insurance commissioner of Illinois.

Later moving to California, Day was appointed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown to the governor's Business Advisory Council and vice chairman of the commission on metropolitan area problems, and eventually served on numerous other committees and state programs.

Married, Day and his wife are the parents of three children aged 19, 15 and 13.

Welker, the new postmaster, is a native of Keyser and a former resident of Fort Ashby. He was graduated in 1932 from Allegany High School.

A former building contractor in Romney, where he has been residing for 29 years, Welker took his oath of office in June and his appointment was confirmed by the Senate in August.

He is active in civic affairs and is a past state commander of the VFW and a past president of the West Virginia Farmer's Association. Welker is a member of the official board of Romney Methodist Church and is committee chairman for Troop 32, Boy Scouts of America. He has been a member of the Romney Lions Club 34 years.

Married to the former Miss Floellen Shawen, the couple has one child, Harold Welker Jr., 16, a student at Romney High School. They reside at 115 North Bolton Street, Romney.

Hardy County Reviews CD Procedures

MOOREFIELD—County School Superintendent Kenneth Frye explained the procedure to be followed in the county schools at the special meeting of the Civil Defense Saturday night at the Court House. Frye was called on by Weldon Neff, Hardy County Civil Defense coordinator, to present the current plans for the handling of the school children in the event of a national emergency.

Frye said that drivers of school busses are instructed to take all children home as soon as possible and that school principals had the responsibility of evacuation measures and assignments of duties of all employes at individual schools.

Mr. Frye said that the board office would remain open and would get in touch with all schools if possible. Bus drivers are instructed to keep gas tanks filled and the busses in the best possible mechanical condition. Only in an extreme emergency will the school teachers drive the busses on the routes and only if the regular drivers are not available. Frye explained that instructions sent to the schools are subject to revision by official government agency instructions.

It was obvious at the Civil Defense meeting that most county agencies and the public in general are unacquainted with procedures and responsibilities in the event of an emergency. All information will be sent through the Conelrad radio frequencies of 640 and 1240 and all stations will be on those frequencies. Agencies whose duties have been delineated by the state Civil Defense organization are the State Police, the Civil Air Patrol, State Road department heads, both paid and volunteer fire companies and the welfare agencies in all counties.

Tri-Towns Key Note Club Formed

WESTERNPORT — Key Note Junior Music Club has been organized an inaugurated by a group of piano students of Mrs. Madeleine Elliott.

The officers were installed at the October meeting by Mrs. Evelyn Schraum of the Maryland Federation of Music Clubs, in an impressive candlelight ceremony.

This club, the first one organized in the Tri-Towns area, is a member of the National Federation of Music Clubs and a chapter of the Maryland Federation.

The Key Note Club has adopted the colors of blue and gold and will meet once each month for study and discussion.

There are twenty charter members.

Committee chairmen will be named at the next meeting, November 29 at 6:30 p. m. in the Piedmont Library.

Moorefield Plans Holiday Activities

MOOREFIELD—A meeting of the Moorefield Merchants Association has been called for Monday afternoon November 5 at 3 o'clock at the Masonic Lodge hall dining room. R. E. Fisher, chairman of the group, said the meeting was called to determine holiday closing hours and to decide on holidays for next year.

The merchants will also determine how many additional Christmas light strings will be added this year to the present stock of holiday lights. Last year's decorations installed by the Moorefield Volunteer Firemen were considered the best ever displayed in Moorefield. All merchants are requested to be present at the meeting or have a representative there.

Bruce High School Elects First Homecoming Queen

WESTERNPORT — Miss Dorothy Sarfino, the first Homecoming Queen chosen by the Bruce High School football team, will be crowned by senior football captain, Vernon Courtney, Saturday afternoon between halves of the game between Bruce and Musselman High, Beckley County, W. Va.

Miss Sarfino is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sarfino, 213 Poplar Street.

Her senior attendants, selected by the team, are Sharon Pattison and Mary Ann Bever, both of Bloomington.

The other members of the queen's court are Joyce Strathers, and Rosalind Lambert, juniors; Judy Dawson and Linda Ack, sophomores; Jane Oates and Judy Keller, freshmen; Jean Malcolm and Loretta Domenic, eighth grade; Rhonda Liller and Patricia Zais, seventh grade. These girls were selected by their classmates.

There will be a parade preceeding the homecoming game, which will form at the Westernport Elementary School grounds and march to the high school at 12:30 p. m.

The parade will include the high school band under the direction of William Simpson and the homecoming float with the Queen and her Court.

District Game Wardens Cite 15 Violators

MOOREFIELD — Sergeant Bart Townsend, conservation officer for this district, reports a total of 15 arrests since the opening of the hunting season October 13.

Six Virginians and two persons from Clarksburg were arrested and fined for spotlighting deer. The fines totaled $646.50 and the miscreants were confined two days in jail while raising the money for the fines. Sentence was pronounced by Justice Maurice Beall, Wardensville. Townsend was assisted in the arrests by Conservation Officer Ernie Sayres.

Total fines levied against game law violators during the two week period was $797.50 and in addition to the spotlighting charges one man was arrested for hunting with no license, one for hunting in a closed season, two for having uncased guns in a car after dark and two for exceeding creel limit on trout.

Townsend also reported a hunter from Broadway, Va., bagged an adult doe while bow hunting.

Turkey kills are below expectation. Only five reports have been checked at the Variety Sports Center, Moorefield checking station, since the beginning of the season. Felix Poling bagged a 16-pound four-ounce gobbler and Ralph F. Fisher, Moorefield and Hubert E. Davis, Charleston reported turkey hens.

Postmaster General To Dedicate Romney Post Office

ROMNEY, W. Va. —Postmaster General J. Edward Day will head a list of guests Saturday as the new post office building is dedicated.

Dedication ceremonies are scheduled at 10 a. m. Saturday at the new post office site, 39 Marsham Street, according to Harold L. Welker, who has been sworn in as the postmaster.

Scheduled to attend the ceremony, along with the postmaster general, are Sen. Jennings Randolph, Rep. Harley O. Staggers, of West Virginia's second congressional district, and Howard R. Barker, assistant regional post office director.

The new facility is part of the Post Office Department's commercial leasing plan, under which investment financing is used to obtain needed facilities which remain under private ownership, pay local taxes, and are leased to the Federal Government.

Postmaster General Day, a former vice president with the Prudential Insurance Company, directs the operations of 580,000 postal workers and is responsible for the largest single service establishment and the biggest civilian department of the federal government.

A native of Jacksonville, Ill., Day was graduated from the University of Chicago in three years in 1935 and received his law degree cum laude from the Harvard Law School in 1938.

He subsequently entered law practice in Chicago with the firm of Sidley, Austin, Burgess and Smith, a firm in which Adlai E. Stevenson, U. S. Ambassador to the United Nations, was a partner.

When Stevenson became governor of Illinois, he appointed Day to his staff and later named him insurance commissioner of Illinois.

Later moving to California, Day was appointed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown to the governor's Business Advisory Council and vice chairman of the commission on metropolitan area problems, and eventually served on numerous other committees and state programs.

Married, Day and his wife are the parents of three children aged 19, 15 and 13.

Welker, the new postmaster, is a native of Keyser and a former resident of Fort Ashby. He was graduated in 1932 from Allegany High School.

A former building contractor in Romney, where he has been residing for 29 years, Welker took his oath of office in June and his appointment was confirmed by the Senate in August.

He is active in civic affairs and is a past state commander of the VFW and a past president of the West Virginia Farmer's Association. Welker is a member of the official board of Romney Methodist Church and is committee chairman for Troop 32, Boy Scouts of America. He has been a member of the Romney Lions Club 34 years.

Married to the former Miss Floellen Shawen, the couple has one child, Harold Welker Jr., 16, a student at Romney High School. They reside at 115 North Bolton Street, Romney.

Hardy County Reviews CD Procedures

MOOREFIELD—County School Superintendent Kenneth Frye explained the procedure to be followed in the county schools at the special meeting of the Civil Defense Saturday night at the Court House. Frye was called on by Weldon Neff, Hardy County Civil Defense coordinator, to present the current plans for the handling of the school children in the event of a national emergency.

Frye said that drivers of school busses are instructed to take all children home as soon as possible and that school principals had the responsibility of evacuation measures and assignments of duties of all employes at individual schools.

Mr. Frye said that the board office would remain open and would get in touch with all schools if possible. Bus drivers are instructed to keep gas tanks filled and the busses in the best possible mechanical condition. Only in an extreme emergency will the school teachers drive the busses on the routes and only if the regular drivers are not available. Frye explained that instructions sent to the schools are subject to revision by official government agency instructions.

It was obvious at the Civil Defense meeting that most county agencies and the public in general are unacquainted with procedures and responsibilities in the event of an emergency. All information will be sent through the Conelrad radio frequencies of 640 and 1240 and all stations will be on those frequencies. Agencies whose duties have been delineated by the state Civil Defense organization are the State Police, the Civil Air Patrol, State Road department heads, both paid and volunteer fire companies and the welfare agencies in all counties.

To Erect Town Markers To Erect Town Marker

MT. SAVAGE — Mt. Savage Homemakers Club has embarked upon a project to publicize a point of historic significance for the community. The club will sponsor and erect two signs on State Route 36, one at each entrance to the town, calling attention to the fact that the first steel rail was made at the old Rolling Mill in Mt. Savage.

Mrs. Maude Holsinger presided at the meeting. Mrs. Margaret Haus, music chairman read the history of the hymn of the month, "For All the Saints." Club members memorized the second verse of "Maryland My Maryland."

Members responded to the roll call with meal planning ideas. Mrs. DeNoma Yutzy gave a demonstration on the proper cutting and fitting of a pattern. Mrs. Bernarda Winner showed smocked pillows and stuffed dolls which she had made. At the next business meeting members will make smocked pillows. A $5 donation was given to the Mt. Savage High yearbook.

An invitation to attend achievement night was received from the county council. Mrs. Adam Baer, county council president, spoke. Mrs. Hager from the Frostburg Homemakers Club also spoke on attitudes. She pointed out that children get their attitudes from their environment, conversation, and type of reading.

Mrs. Mary Deffenbaugh will give a demonstration at the November meeting.

The nominating committee composed of Mrs. Thomas Adams, Mrs. DeNoma Yutzy, Mrs. Doris Crowe, Mrs. Belva Miller and Mrs. Sara Carter was selected to obtain candidates for the office of secretary and vice president.

Mrs. Haus suggested the club remember patients at the County Infirmary at times other than Christmas.

Morgan County School Board To Sell Lots

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va. — The Morgan County Board of Education met in adjourned session on October 29. It was decided to advertise for sale the Spohrs school property consisting of two lots and the school building.

The superintendent, R. S. Dispanet, reported that ventilation of girls shower rooms at Berkeley Springs is in process of being finished and this will complete the project.

The board set its regular monthly meeting for November 19 in order to work in a visiting day during American Education Week. Accordingly, the board and county staff will visit schools on Wednesday, November 14. The superintendent reported also that during the month of November, special emphasis will be placed on classroom visitation of all principals in the county and the county staff.

A delegation from the Parent-Teachers Association from Berkeley Springs Elementary School appeared and pointed out the need for additional classroom space for the future and the need for surfacing the upper level of the playground.

A school philosophy statement was formulated by the combined teaching staff of the county in their meeting on October 22. This was reviewed by the county staff and Board of Education and after slight modification was approved for Morgan County schools.

The Board of Education had more than a year ago, authorized the development of a Written Statement of School Policy for Morgan County. The State School Boards Association is this year proposing this as a top priority item for all counties.' Its basic purpose shall be to give information and direction.

Potomac State Chapter AHE To Hear Swadley

KEYSER — James H. Swadley Jr., president of the West Virginia University Board of Governors, and a local attorney, will address the Potomac State Chapter of the West Virginia Association of Higher Education at its regular meeting this evening at 7:30 in the Science Hall Assembly Room.

Prof. Kenneth F. Haines, president of the group, has announced that following the business meeting Mr. Swadley will speak on the subject: "The Ten-Year Development Program at West Virginia University and Potomac State College."

He was first named to the board on July 1, 1958, by former Governor Cecil H. Underwood and was later named vice-president.

A native of Keyser, Swadley was graduated from Keyser High School and Potomac State College and later received his degrees from West Virginia University and its College of Law. He is presently senior member of the law firm of Swadley and Smith and is a member of Gov. W. W. Barron's Joint Committee on Higher Education.

Word "Fair" Is True Question In W. Va. House Representation Amendment

Editor's Note: Following is the fourth of five dispatches on the constitutional amendments to be voted on Nov. 6, outlining the proposed changes, the debates on their merits and their legislative background.

By J. RICHARD TOREN

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The debate over one of the five amendments up for ratification turns on the question of whether it's truly "fair."

The Legislature tried to answer the question in the affirmative when it hung the tag "Fair Representation Amendment" on the proposal. Opposition groups contend that "unfair representation" would have been more accurate.

It doesn't help much to go to a dictionary, whose multiple definitions include "just; characterized by impartiality; conforming to the established rules."

This amendment would make only one basic change in the Constitution — guarantee that every county would be represented by at least one member in the House of Delegates no matter how small its population. It would also strengthen the requirement that the Legislature reapportion itself after each census.

What's so new or startling about this. Doesn't it provide for exactly what West Virginia has been doing for the past 60 years?

The answer, of course, is Yes. But it must be qualified by stating that for the past 41 years, West Virginia has apportioned its House of Delegates in violation of the Constitution.

This amendment can perhaps be best understood by examining the history of legislative apportionment in West Virginia.

The state's original Constitution of 1863 and the present Constitution dating back to 1872 both provided that counties which failed to meet certain population minimums could no have their own House member. They had to be joined with one or more other adjoining counties into a "delegate district."

Used Until 1901

The minimum set by the 1872 Constitution — and the one still imbedded in the Constitution — was three-fifths of the average delegate - population, the state's population divided by the number of House seats.

Delegate districts were used until the 1900 census showed that all counties had more than the required "three - fifths," although Hancock surpassed it by only five. The same thing happened after the 1910 census, meaning that the lack of delegate districts from 1901 to 1921 was perfectly constitutional.

But it was also habit-forming. And when the 1920 census showed that four counties had dropped below the minimum requirement, based on the then 94-member House, the Legislature could not bring itself to strip those counties of their individual delegates. It passed no reapportionment bill at all.

By the time of the 1930 census nine counties no longer qualified. The House passed a bill in 1931 including them in delegate districts but the Senate let it die in committee.

In 1934 an apportionment bill was finally enacted, passing the House 44-18 and the Senate 19-8. But it disregarded the delegate-district provision in violation of the express provisions of the Constitution.

No changes were made in the House following the 1940 census and only minor adjustments were made in six counties after the 1950 census, while House membership was increased to 100.

The measure was challenged in the Supreme Court, but on the question of delegate districts, the court said it had to presume that the Legislature "made a finding as to all necessary facts warranting the enactment of the legislation, including the population of each county."

The census two years ago showed that 13 counties did not qualify for representation by their own delegate, falling short of the three-fifths figure of 11,162. An apportionment bill without delegate-districts was introduced in the 1961 session but was laid aside after Atty. Gen. Donald Robertson said any bill without provision for such districts would be plainly unconstitutional.

The Legislature's answer, approved at the next session, was to propose that the Constitution be changed. This is the issue now before the voters.

U. S. Court Intervenes

It appeared at the time to be a fairly cut-and-dried issue. Did West Virginia want to make special allowances for its smallest counties?

But just 46 days after the Legislature answered Yes, the U. S. Supreme Court complicated matters.

It held for the first time, in a case originating in Tennessee, that federal courts would assume jurisdiction in apportionment matters where violations of the 14th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution (the "equal protection" clause) were claimed.

If West Virginia voters approve the amendment, a suit testing its validity under the federal constitution is considered a sure bet. It's outcome can't be predicted, but the weight of informed opinion seems to be that it would likely succeed — and West Virginia would be back where it started.

Backers of the amendment contend that since the county is the major subdivision of the state, its interest should be protected by its own delegate. That rural interests ought not be weighed down by sheer weight of numbers. That the U. S. Constitution itself allows each state at least one Congressman, and the same number of Senators as the biggest states.

Opponents quote the state Consitution, that "Every citizen shall be entitled to equal representation in the government, and, in all apportionments of representation, equality of numbers of those entitled thereto, shall as far as practical be preserved."

They point to statistics showing that under the 1951 apportionment, Hancock with 34,388 and Wirt with 5,119 population each had one delegate. And that Kanawha County's 239,000 persons had 11 delegates while the 13 small counties with a total of about 110,000 were represented by 13 House members.

Area Firemen Complete Ten Weeks Training

MOOREFIELD — Moorefield and Petersburg volunteer firemen will complete a ten-week course of instruction Monday night with a dinner and the presentation of the graduating certificates. The meeting, held alternately at Moorefield and Petersburg with 23 taking the course, will be at the Moorefield firemen's hall with the ladies of the auxiliary serving the meal.

Ray A. Simpson, field instructor with the School of Mines Extension Service of West Virginia University, has conducted the 30-hour academic course. Simpson also works with the state fire marshall's office. He has been conducting the extension course classes at Fort Ashby, Harman, Mt. Storm-Bayard, Piedmont and at Allegany Ballistics, Rocket Center, in addition to the Moorefield-Petersburg unit.

Those completing the course from Moorefield are C. C. Hesen, L. L. McConnell, Harold Southerly, Grover C. Charlton, June Black, Jan Schmutz, Freeman See, Charles Kuykendall, Orval Riggleman and Jack Smith. Subjects covered in the course include hydralics, care and operation of pumps, pump pressures, maintenance, fog nozzles and other related subjects.

Joint Birthday Party Is Held

MT. SAVAGE — Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Carner entertained at the latter's home with a joint birthday party for their daughters, Karen Jones and Mary Alice Carney, who were born October 20, 1954. They are third grade pupils at St. Patrick's School.

Attending were Debra Norris, Marian Logsdon, Vickie Werner, Daniel Emerick, Timothy Carter, John Gaughan, Daniel Miller, Michael Frankenberry, James Dickel, Joseph Carter, Henry Gaughan, Daniel Meade, Stephen Carter, Timothy Carney, John Shaffer, Wesley Rice, William Brailer, Gary Miller, Ruth Malloy, Mary Sue Robinson, Patricia Fabbri, Linda Roach, Joyce Sue Emerick, Marsha Williams, Cathy Kilduff, Mary Ann Blank, Marjorie Robinson, Roseann Porter, Mary Lilly and Susan Jones.

A treasure hunt featured the entertainment. Prizes were won by Marsha Williams, John Shaffer, Joseph Carter, James Dickel and Henry Gaughan. Refreshments were served.

Word "Fair" Is True Question In W. Va. House Representation Amendment

Editor's Note: Following is the fourth of five dispatches on the constitutional amendments to be voted on Nov. 6, outlining the proposed changes, the debates on their merits and their legislative background.

By J. RICHARD TOREN

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The debate over one of the five amendments up for ratification turns on the question of whether it's truly "fair."

The Legislature tried to answer the question in the affirmative when it hung the tag "Fair Representation Amendment" on the proposal. Opposition groups contend that "unfair representation" would have been more accurate.

It doesn't help much to go to a dictionary, whose multiple definitions include "just; characterized by impartiality; conforming to the established rules."

This amendment would make only one basic change in the Constitution — guarantee that every county would be represented by at least one member in the House of Delegates no matter how small its population. It would also strengthen the requirement that the Legislature reapportion itself after each census.

What's so new or startling about this. Doesn't it provide for exactly what West Virginia has been doing for the past 60 years?

The answer, of course, is Yes. But it must be qualified by stating that for the past 41 years, West Virginia has apportioned its House of Delegates in violation of the Constitution.

This amendment can perhaps be best understood by examining the history of legislative apportionment in West Virginia.

The state's original Constitution of 1863 and the present Constitution dating back to 1872 both provided that counties which failed to meet certain population minimums could no have their own House member. They had to be joined with one or more other adjoining counties into a "delegate district."

Used Until 1901

The minimum set by the 1872 Constitution — and the one still imbedded in the Constitution — was three-fifths of the average delegate - population, the state's population divided by the number of House seats.

Delegate districts were used until the 1900 census showed that all counties had more than the required "three - fifths," although Hancock surpassed it by only five. The same thing happened after the 1910 census, meaning that the lack of delegate districts from 1901 to 1921 was perfectly constitutional.

But it was also habit-forming. And when the 1920 census showed that four counties had dropped below the minimum requirement, based on the then 94-member House, the Legislature could not bring itself to strip those counties of their individual delegates. It passed no reapportionment bill at all.

By the time of the 1930 census nine counties no longer qualified. The House passed a bill in 1931 including them in delegate districts but the Senate let it die in committee.

In 1934 an apportionment bill was finally enacted, passing the House 44-18 and the Senate 19-8. But it disregarded the delegate-district provision in violation of the express provisions of the Constitution.

No changes were made in the House following the 1940 census and only minor adjustments were made in six counties after the 1950 census, while House membership was increased to 100.

The measure was challenged in the Supreme Court, but on the question of delegate districts, the court said it had to presume that the Legislature "made a finding as to all necessary facts warranting the enactment of the legislation, including the population of each county."

The census two years ago showed that 13 counties did not qualify for representation by their own delegate, falling short of the three-fifths figure of 11,162. An apportionment bill without delegate-districts was introduced in the 1961 session but was laid aside after Atty. Gen. Donald Robertson said any bill without provision for such districts would be plainly unconstitutional.

The Legislature's answer, approved at the next session, was to propose that the Constitution be changed. This is the issue now before the voters.

U. S. Court Intervenes

It appeared at the time to be a fairly cut-and-dried issue. Did West Virginia want to make special allowances for its smallest counties?

But just 46 days after the Legislature answered Yes, the U. S. Supreme Court complicated matters.

It held for the first time, in a case originating in Tennessee, that federal courts would assume jurisdiction in apportionment matters where violations of the 14th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution (the "equal protection" clause) were claimed.

If West Virginia voters approve the amendment, a suit testing its validity under the federal constitution is considered a sure bet. It's outcome can't be predicted, but the weight of informed opinion seems to be that it would likely succeed — and West Virginia would be back where it started.

Backers of the amendment contend that since the county is the major subdivision of the state, its interest should be protected by its own delegate. That rural interests ought not be weighed down by sheer weight of numbers. That the U. S. Constitution itself allows each state at least one Congressman, and the same number of Senators as the biggest states.

Opponents quote the state Consitution, that "Every citizen shall be entitled to equal representation in the government, and, in all apportionments of representation, equality of numbers of those entitled thereto, shall as far as practical be preserved."

They point to statistics showing that under the 1951 apportionment, Hancock with 34,388 and Wirt with 5,119 population each had one delegate. And that Kanawha County's 239,000 persons had 11 delegates while the 13 small counties with a total of about 110,000 were represented by 13 House members.

Underdog Flintstone Booters Hold Valley To Scoreless Tie

Black Knights Miss Chance To Grab Top Spot

Big Game Between Beall And Valley Slated Tomorrow

GAMES TOMORROW
Beall at Valley
Flintstone at Bruce

Flintstone's Aggies, winners of only one game this season in the WMI Soccer League, played the "spoiler" role yesterday afternoon by battling Valley's championship aspirants to a scoreless deadlock at Flintstone.

A Valley triumph yesterday would have moved the Black Knights into first place in the five-team circuit with a 4-0-3 record and 11 points. Instead, they now share the lead with Beall's Mountaineers.

Something should give tomorrow at Lonaconing when the Knights play host to the Mountaineers (4-0-2). Conceivably, of course, that game could wind up in a tie. Tomorrow's contest will be the last of the campaign for Valley, while Beall has another game left with Bruce's Bulldogs, who are tied for last place.

Yesterday's struggle at Flintstone was purely a defensive battle between two teams who, in their last outing, waged a similar fight before Valley finally edged out a 1-0 decision.

Outstanding players for Flintstone yesterday were goalie Bob Martin, fullbacks Larry Haines and Carl Thomas, and center halfback Don Kinton. Valley's standouts were James Smith, Phil Shockey, Fred Sloan and Fred Metz.

The tie gave Flintstone one point under the league's scoring system, and enabled the Aggies to relinquish sole possession of the cellar spot. They are now tied with Bruce, each with three points, and meet the Bulldogs tomorrow at Westernport.

The lineups:

Pos.	Flintstone (0)	Valley (0)
G	Martin	Creighton
RF	Haines	Kimble
LF	Thomas	Smith
RH	Wilson	P. Shockey
CH	Don Kinton	F. Sloan
LH	Duvall	Metz

Canadiens Defeat Maple Leafs, 4-3

TORONTO (UPI) — The Montreal Canadiens scored their first two power play goals of the season and then held off a third period Maple Leaf comeback to defeat Toronto, 4-3, Wednesday night in a National Hockey League game.

Henri Richard set up both goals when the Leafs were shorthanded in the first period to end the Canadiens' power play famine.

Bernie Geoffrion also assisted on both and sent the Canadiens into a 4-1 lead early in the third period with his fourth goal of the season.

WVU's Yeater Ready

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI)—West Virginia University football coach Gene Corum said Wednesday that halfback Tom Yeater would be able to play against William & Mary Saturday.

Yeater suffered a badly bruised hand in the 51-22 loss to Oregon State. Corum put the squad through offensive and defensive drills Wednesday.

Stoneham's Biggest Deals Come At Winter Meetings

HORACE STONEHAM
His Fortunes Changed

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Ever since 1958, when big league baseball moved to California, Horace Stoneham has been regarded as the man who latched onto Walter O'Malley's coat tails.

It was O'Malley, as Brooklyn Dodger president, who sold Stoneham, as president of the New York Giants, on baseball in the west.

Since the San Francisco Giants beat the Los Angeles Dodgers in a three-game National League pennant playoff and took the Yankees down to the last out in the World Series, baseball men no longer refer to the Giant boss as "Good Old Horace."

Some officials laughed at Stoneham because he told his managers who to play. As long as his managers played "his boys," managers held their jobs. When he tired of Bill Rigney he made Tom (Clancy) Sheehan, former detective and scout, his manager.

The laughter was greater than ever over that move.

Stoneham has no general manager for he makes all deals himself.

But two years ago when Stoneham named Alvin Dark his manager the laughter subsided. Baseball men now take the Giant boss as a sound and serious man who knows how to deal.

At the winter meetings to be held Nov. 26-28 in Rochester, N. Y., he will shake more hands than anyone, and accept congratulations humbly. For it has been at these meetings over the last four years that Stoneham was able to put together the team that looked so great in the World Series, even in losing.

Here are Stoneham's deals made, at the last four winter meetings:

1958 at Washington — Obtained Jack Stanford from the Phils for Ruben Gomez and Valmy Thomas. (Sanford won 24 games last season and battled series ace Ralph Terry in three tight series games).

1959 at St. Petersburg — Obtained Billy O'Dell and Billy Loes from Baltimore for Jackie Brandt, Gordon Jones and Roger McCardell. (O'Dell won 19 this year and led the Giants in innings pitched with 281).

1961 at Tampa — Obtained Billy Pierce and Don Larsen from the White Sox for Ed Fisher, Dom Zanni and Bob Farley.

(Pierce won 16 games this year, including a shutout in the playoff opener, plus a big win to force the World Series to seven games. Larsen finished 24 games in 48 relief efforts and picked up a Series win).

Stoneham has made other deals, such as getting catcher Ed Bailey from Cincinnatti and pitcher Stu Miller from St. Louis. But he seems to have a penchant for operating best at the winter meetings.

Don't be surprised if Stoneham comes up with Bill Monboquette, who tossed a no-hitter this year, and second baseman Chuck Schilling of the Boston Red Sox. Reports are that slugging first baseman Orlando Cepeda may go in the deal.

Giant Prexy Spikes Cepeda Trade Rumors

Claims No Deals Ever Discussed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, cheered by word there was nothing wrong with Orlando Cepeda's eyesight, said Wednesday there is "absolutely no truth to rumors that we were going to trade Orlando."

"I've been more than a little irked by these rumors," Stoneham said. "We have never once discussed trading Cepeda and we certainly haven't any plans to deal him off to another club.

"Frankly, I doubt there's a club in the league that could offer us enough for a player of Orlando's caliber even if we entertained such an idea. But I can tell you there is absolutely no truth to these rumors."

When asked about Cepeda's late season slump, Stoneham said he felt it was brought on because he was at low ebb physically and exhausted from playing too much baseball.

"He enjoyed his biggest year in 1961 when he hit 46 home runs and was batting .311. He played more than 100 games of winter league ball in Puerto Rico prior to the '62 season.

"This was bound to catch up to him sooner or later," said Stoneham, "and he lost his batting eye at a crucial time during the pennant race."

There will be no winter baseball for Orlando during the off season, this year, except for a half dozen games he'll play prior to reporting to spring training at Phoenix next year.

Stoneham said trades that will strengthen his club are always a possibility, but he noted how fortunate the Giants were not to have traded off Willie McCovey last spring.

Fears that Cepeda's eyesight was impaired by a cataract were removed Tuesday following an examination by Dr. George Campion, San Francisco oculist.

Grady Hatton Gets Managerial Post

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) —Former major league infielder Grady Hatton was named Wednesday to manage the Oklahoma City 89ers of the American Association in 1963, replacing Connie Ryan.

Hatton, 40, was director of player personnel for the Colts during their initial season in the National League this year.

Boston Celtics Cop 6th Straight

DETROIT (UPI) — The Boston Celtics manhandled Detroit in a National Basketball Association contest Wednesday night, 115-100, pasting the Pistons for their sixth loss without a win this season.

Detroit led only twice in the rout. The last time was at the start of the second quarter when Willie Jones dropped in a basket to make it 26-24. After that the Pistons never got close enough to threaten. In t he next five minutes the Celtics outscored Detroit 16-6.

The Celtics, who are now 4-1 in the NBA, were led by Tom Heinshon, who dropped in 24 points. Detroit's high scorer was Bailey Howell who scored 16 points.

Two Terrapins Get All America Consideration

Shiner And Brown Highly Regarded

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—The University of Maryland's quarterback Dick Shiner, a passer, and halfback Tom Brown, a receiver, are highly regarded by members of this region's Associated Press All America Board.

Both Shiner, a junior, and Brown, a senior, have helped push the Terrapins to a midseason tie with Duke at the top of the Atlantic Coast Conference standings, with a 4-0 league record and a 5-1 overall mark.

Shiner, a 6-foot, 195-pound Lebanon, Pa., product, has completed 87 passes in 131 tries, picking up 1,034 yards and five touchdowns.

Brown, a 6-foot, 185-pounder from Silver Spring, Md., has caught four of those touchdown passes. He also leads the conference with 34 pass receptions for 431 yards. In addition, he has intercepted four passes and made a 98-yard kickoff return in the Terps' loss to Miami.

Steve Guback of the Washington, D. C., Star, a member of the AP All America Board which serves the Atlantic Coast and Southern Conference area, wrote: "Whether Coach Tom Nugent (of Maryland) uses the 'I' or the 'T' formation, Shiner is still 'IT' . . . "

In the Southern Conference, two junior backs are drawing the midseason spotlight.

They are fullback Elliot Keller of Furman, ranked No. 6 nationally in rushing, and halfback Dick Drummond of George Washington University.

The Board's midseason checklist also includes halfback Len Chiaverini of Maryland.

Nats Top Hawks In NBA Contest At Baltimore

BALTIMORE (UPI)—The Syracuse Nationals blew an early 15-point lead and then came on strong in the second half to defeat the St. Louis Hawks, 126-108, in the first pro basketball ever played in the Civic Center.

The victory was the fourth in five starts for the Nats and retained their first place tie with Boston in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division.

It was the second loss against five wins for St. Louis as the Hawks dropped into second place behind San Francisco in the Western section.

Buddy Parker Asks Waivers On Three Vets

Steeler Coach Blasts Defense

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Coach Buddy Parker, in an effort to strengthen his faltering Pittsburgh Steelers, Wednesday asked waivers on John Sample, Harlon Hill and John Kapele.

Parker, who termed his defensive unit the "worst he has ever been associated with" after last Sunday's loss to the Cleveland Browns, is expected to add three more players by Thursday.

Hill, a nine year veteran of the National Football League, came to the Steelers from the Bears this year but never played up to expectations. The former Florence State Teachers College (Ala.) star holds more records than any other receiver in Bear history, having caught 226 passes for more than 4,400 yards. He played offensive end with the Steelers.

Sample came to the Steelers two years ago in a trade with the Baltimore Colts. A five-year veteran of pro ball, he intercepted eight passes last season and so far this year has failed to intercept one from his defensive halfback position.

Kapele, a defensive end, was drafted by the Steelers three years ago after an outstanding career at Brigham Young University.

Parker, still expressing disgust with the performance of his defensive unit, said the player changes were necessary in order to gain some "punch."

The Steeler mentor said he was in the market for players who could bolster his defense before Sunday's game here with the Minnesota Vikings.

The Pittsburgh defense has given up 83 points in its last two games against the Dallas Cowboys and the Browns.

Giants Move Up On Cowboys In NFL Statistics

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants, displaying a powerful offensive punch last Sunday, zoomed from ninth to a second-place tie this week in total yardage gained.

The Giants and the Philadelphia Eagles are only 119 yards behind the Dallas Cowboys, the National Football League's offense leaders.

Statistics released by the league Wednesday showed that the Giants amssed 602 yards passing and rushing in their 49-34 victory over the Washington Redskins. This output boosted their total offense to 2,492 yards, same as the Eagles.

Dallas, meanwhile, has gained 2,611 yards on the ground and in the air. The Green Bay Packers are the leading ground gainers with 1,300 yards rushing. The Eagles are tops in the air with 1,951 yards gained passing.

Defensively, the Packers are the stingiest. They have allowed the opposition just 1,480 yards. In their 17-6 triumph over the Baltimore Colts last Sunday, they stopped the Colts eight times in Green Bay territory.

Sleichter Leads Mid Atlantic Golf

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Dick Sleichter, 44-year-old Severna Park, Md., golf professional, coasted to a two-stroke victory in the Middle Atlantic PGA Tournament Wednesday as the Cascades Course refused to succumb to any sub-par shooting.

Sleichter, Tuesday's leader with a three-under-par 68, faded to a closing 73 Wednesday and a two-day 36-hole total of one-under-par 146.

His nearest competition came from Paul Haviland of Belair, Md., who finished with a 36-hole score of one-over-par 143.

Haviland, however, boasted Wednesday's best round, an even par 71, as the 41 players failed to decipher the slick Cascades greens.

Dick Tiger Not Recognized As Champ By Ring Magazine

Periodical Had Not Recognized Fullmer's Title

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ironically, the Ring Magazine Wednesday recognized Dick Tiger of Nigeria only as top contender for the middleweight crown although he is the World Boxing Association's new world champion and is managed by Jersey Jones, foreign editor of the Ring Magazine.

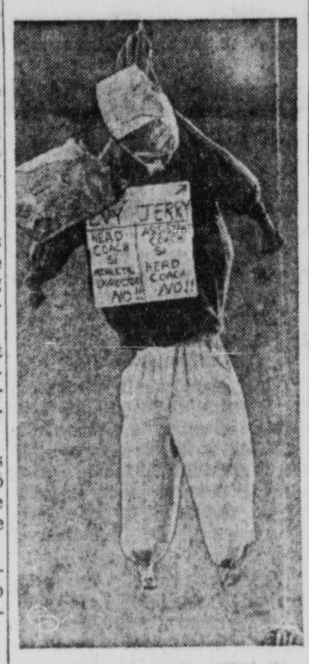
Tiger won the WBA portion of the middleweight crown from Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah on a lopsided decision at San Francisco, Oct. 23.

But the Ring Magazine could not give him recognition because it had not recognized Fullmer. Instead it recognizes Paul Pender of Brookline, Mass., as 160-pound champion—along with Europe, Massachusetts and New York.

However, the Ring did name Tiger "fighter of the month." And Fullmer was dropped from first to second among contenders.

Unbeaten Ismael Laguna of Panama rose from fourth to first among bantamweight contenders when Alphonse Halimi of France dropped from first to third because of his loss of the European title to Piero Rollo of Italy. Rollo advanced from sixth to second. Inactive Joe Medel of Mexico fell from second to fourth.

Doug Jones of New York replaced Eddie Cotton of Seattle at third place among light heavyweight contenders because of Cotton's defeat by second-ranked Mauro Mina of Peru. Cotton dropped to fourth. Jones had increased his prestige by stopping unranked Bob Foster of Washington, D. C., in the eighth round.



FOOTBALL FOLLIES—With the University of Iowa football fortunes dipping, head coach Jerry Burns finds himself the target of the effigy touch on the Iowa campus at Iowa City. Burns succeeded Forest Evashevski as head coach late in 1960 after Evy had rocketed the Hawkeyes to the tops in college football.

Gophers Lead Rush Defense

Alabama Second, Ole Miss Third

NEW YORK (AP)—Minnesota's Golden Gophers, who have made futile the running attacks of five opponents, have put together the best defense against rushing in the last 15 college football seasons.

This was disclosed Wednesday with the release of the latest statistics by the NCAA Service Bureau.

The Gopher forwards have permitted only 122 yards on 191 rushing attempts in five games for a 24.4-yard average a game and 23 inches a rush. The national champion Syracuse team of 1919 was the only major college of the past 15 years to restrict rival rushing to less than a yard per play for half a season.

Alabama is second in rushing defense with a 52.5 average followed by Mississippi 58.2, Auburn 59.8 and Dartmouth 61.2.

Underdog Flintstone Booters Hold Valley To Scoreless Tie

Black Knights Miss Chance To Grab Top Spot

GAMES TOMORROW
Beall at Valley
Flintstone at Bruce

Flintstone's Aggies, winners of only one game this season in the WMI Soccer League, played the "spoiler" role yesterday afternoon by battling Valley's championship aspirants to a scoreless deadlock at Flintstone.

A Valley triumph yesterday would have moved the Black Knights into first place in the five-team circuit with a 4-0-3 record and 11 points. Instead, they now share the lead with Beall's Mountaineers.

Something should give tomorrow at Lonaconing when the Knights play host to the Mountaineers (4-0-2). Conceivably, of course, that game could wind up in a tie. Tomorrow's contest will be the last of the campaign for Valley, while Beall has another game left with Bruce's Bulldogs, who are tied for last place.

Yesterday's struggle at Flintstone was purely a defensive battle between two teams who, in their last outing, waged a similar fight before Valley finally edged out a 1-0 decision.

Outstanding players for Flintstone yesterday were goalie Bob Martin, fullbacks Larry Haines and Carl Thomas, and center halfback Don Kinton. Valley's standouts were James Smith, Phil Shockey, Fred Sloan and Fred Metz.

The tie gave Flintstone one point under the league's scoring system, and enabled the Aggies to relinquish sole possession of the cellar spot. They are now tied with Bruce, each with three points, and meet the Bulldogs tomorrow at Westernport.

The lineups:

Pos.	Flintstone (0)	Valley (0)
G	Martin	Creighton
RF	Haines	Kimble
LF	Thomas	Smith
RH	Wilson	P. Shockey
CH	Don Kinton	F. Sloan
LH	Duvall	Metz

Canadiens Defeat Maple Leafs, 4-3

TORONTO (UPI) — The Montreal Canadiens scored their first two power play goals of the season and then held off a third period Maple Leaf comeback to defeat Toronto, 4-3, Wednesday night in a National Hockey League game.

Henri Richard set up both goals when the Leafs were shorthanded in the first period to end the Canadiens' power play famine.

Bernie Geoffrion also assisted on both and sent the Canadiens into a 4-1 lead early in the third period with his fourth goal of the season.

WVU's Yeater Ready

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI)—West Virginia University football coach Gene Corum said Wednesday that halfback Tom Yeater would be able to play against William & Mary Saturday.

Yeater suffered a badly bruised hand in the 51-22 loss to Oregon State. Corum put the squad through offensive and defensive drills Wednesday.

Stoneham's Biggest Deals Come At Winter Meetings

HORACE STONEHAM
His Fortunes Changed

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Ever since 1958, when big league baseball moved to California, Horace Stoneham has been regarded as the man who latched onto Walter O'Malley's coat tails.

It was O'Malley, as Brooklyn Dodger president, who sold Stoneham, as president of the New York Giants, on baseball in the west.

Since the San Francisco Giants beat the Los Angeles Dodgers in a three-game National League pennant playoff and took the Yankees down to the last out in the World Series, baseball men no longer refer to the Giant boss as "Good Old Horace."

Some officials laughed at Stoneham because he told his managers who to play. As long as his managers played "his boys," managers held their jobs. When he tired of Bill Rigney he made Tom (Clancy) Sheehan, former detective and scout, his manager.

The laughter was greater than ever over that move.

Stoneham has no general manager for he makes all deals himself.

But two years ago when Stoneham named Alvin Dark his manager the laughter subsided. Baseball men now take the Giant boss as a sound and serious man who knows how to deal.

At the winter meetings to be held Nov. 26-28 in Rochester, N. Y., he will shake more hands than anyone, and accept congratulations humbly. For it has been at these meetings over the last four years that Stoneham was able to put together the team that looked so great in the World Series, even in losing.

Here are Stoneham's deals made, at the last four winter meetings:

1958 at Washington — Obtained Jack Stanford from the Phils for Ruben Gomez and Valmy Thomas. (Sanford won 24 games last season and battled series ace Ralph Terry in three tight series games).

1959 at St. Petersburg — Obtained Billy O'Dell and Billy Loes from Baltimore for Jackie Brandt, Gordon Jones and Roger McCardell. (O'Dell won 19 this year and led the Giants in innings pitched with 281).

1961 at Tampa — Obtained Billy Pierce and Don Larsen from the White Sox for Ed Fisher, Dom Zanni and Bob Farley.

(Pierce won 16 games this year, including a shutout in the playoff opener, plus a big win to force the World Series to seven games. Larsen finished 24 games in 48 relief efforts and picked up a Series win).

Stoneham has made other deals, such as getting catcher Ed Bailey from Cincinnatti and pitcher Stu Miller from St. Louis. But he seems to have a penchant for operating best at the winter meetings.

Don't be surprised if Stoneham comes up with Bill Monboquette, who tossed a no-hitter this year, and second baseman Chuck Schilling of the Boston Red Sox. Reports are that slugging first baseman Orlando Cepeda may go in the deal.

Giant Prexy Spikes Cepeda Trade Rumors

Claims No Deals Ever Discussed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, cheered by word there was nothing wrong with Orlando Cepeda's eyesight, said Wednesday there is "absolutely no truth to rumors that we were going to trade Orlando."

"I've been more than a little irked by these rumors," Stoneham said. "We have never once discussed trading Cepeda and we certainly haven't any plans to deal him off to another club.

"Frankly, I doubt there's a club in the league that could offer us enough for a player of Orlando's caliber even if we entertained such an idea. But I can tell you there is absolutely no truth to these rumors."

When asked about Cepeda's late season slump, Stoneham said he felt it was brought on because he was at low ebb physically and exhausted from playing too much baseball.

"He enjoyed his biggest year in 1961 when he hit 46 home runs and was batting .311. He played more than 100 games of winter league ball in Puerto Rico prior to the '62 season.

"This was bound to catch up to him sooner or later," said Stoneham, "and he lost his batting eye at a crucial time during the pennant race."

There will be no winter baseball for Orlando during the off season, this year, except for a half dozen games he'll play prior to reporting to spring training at Phoenix next year.

Stoneham said trades that will strengthen his club are always a possibility, but he noted how fortunate the Giants were not to have traded off Willie McCovey last spring.

Fears that Cepeda's eyesight was impaired by a cataract were removed Tuesday following an examination by Dr. George Campion, San Francisco oculist.

Grady Hatton Gets Managerial Post

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) —Former major league infielder Grady Hatton was named Wednesday to manage the Oklahoma City 89ers of the American Association in 1963, replacing Connie Ryan.

Hatton, 40, was director of player personnel for the Colts during their initial season in the National League this year.

Big Deal For Giants

Two Terrapins Get All America Consideration

Shiner And Brown Highly Regarded

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—The University of Maryland's quarterback Dick Shiner, a passer, and halfback Tom Brown, a receiver, are highly regarded by members of this region's Associated Press All America Board.

Both Shiner, a junior, and Brown, a senior, have helped push the Terrapins to a midseason tie with Duke at the top of the Atlantic Coast Conference standings, with a 4-0 league record and a 5-1 overall mark.

Shiner, a 6-foot, 195-pound Lebanon, Pa., product, has completed 87 passes in 131 tries, picking up 1,034 yards and five touchdowns.

Brown, a 6-foot, 185-pounder from Silver Spring, Md., has caught four of those touchdown passes. He also leads the conference with 34 pass receptions for 431 yards. In addition, he has intercepted four passes and made a 98-yard kickoff return in the Terps' loss to Miami.

Steve Guback of the Washington, D. C., Star, a member of the AP All America Board which serves the Atlantic Coast and Southern Conference area, wrote:

"Whether Coach Tom Nugent (of Maryland) uses the 'I' or the 'T' formation, Shiner is still 'IT' . . ."

In the Southern Conference, two junior backs are drawing the midseason spotlight.

They are fullback Elliot Keller of Furman, ranked No. 6 nationally in rushing, and halfback Dick Drummond of George Washington University.

The Board's midseason checklist also includes halfback Len Chiaverini of Maryland.

Nats Top Hawks In NBA Contest At Baltimore

BALTIMORE (UPI)—The Syracuse Nationals blew an early 15-point lead and then came on strong in the second half to defeat the St. Louis Hawks, 126-108, in the first pro basketball ever played in the Civic Center.

The victory was the fourth in five starts for the Nats and retained their first place tie with Boston in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division.

It was the second loss against five wins for St. Louis as the Hawks dropped into second place behind San Francisco in the Western section.

Romney Wins Cross-Country Championship Of PVC

Pioneers' Hott Again Smashes Course Record

Covers Distance In 10:46; Elks Win In Class B

Allen Hott of Romney, the area's top cross-country runner, yesterday shattered the course record at the Fort Cumberland Golf Course layout for the second time in less than a week in leading the Pioneers to the championship of the Potomac Valley Conference.

Romney wound up with the winning low point total of 34, while Beall finished a close second in the quadrangular meet with 38 points. Elk Garden was third with 49, and Paw Paw (130) was completely out of the running. This was the third annual PVC meet, Beall having won the first two.

Elk Garden made a shambles of the Class B competition, placing the first seven finishers and scoring a possible low point total of 15. Romney (68) and Beall (72) waged a close fight for second, and Paw Paw ran fourth and last with 117 points.

Hott Undefeated

Hott, who has yet to be defeated in varsity competition and who seems to improve with every meet, raced the two-mile distance yesterday in 10 minutes and 46 seconds to cut 19 seconds off his standard-shattering pace of 11:05 set last Thursday in the meet for the area championship. The old record had been held by Fort Hill's Tom Elliott.

Actually, two other runners besides Hott bettered last week's mark. Don Fletcher and Don McKenzie of Beall finished second and third, respectively, with clockings of 10:54 and 10:59.

Tom Evans, of Elk Garden, finished in the number four position and was followed by Lionel Pepper and Paul Loy of Romney, who crossed the line a second apart. Al Kemper ran ninth and Rod Thomas 13th to round out Romney's winning quartet.

Outcome Reversed

Yesterday's meet reversed last week's outcome in which Beall defeated Romney by a four-point margin (47-51) in the area meet. Seven schools vied in that event, which was won individually by Hott.

In the Class B meet yesterday, Walter Ward crossed the finish line in 12:29, and was followed by teammates Dan Burdock, Jerry Murphy, Mel Smith, Dale Lipscomb, Doug Love and Wayne Martin. Wade Phillips of Beall broke up the Elk Garden monopoly by finishing eighth.

A total of 63 harriers participated in the two events — 32 in the Class A competition and 31 in Class B.

CLASS A

1—Allen Hott, Romney (10:46)*
2—Don Fletcher, Beall (10:54)
3—Don McKenzie, Beall (10:59)
4—Tom Evans, Elk Garden (11:13)
5—Lionel Pepper, Romney (11:18)
6—Paul Loy, Romney
7—Harry Fuller, Beall
8—Richard Pritts, Elk Garden
9—Al Kemper, Romney
10—Ernie Deal, Beall
11—Jim Bray, Elk Garden
12—John Bobo, Elk Garden
13—Rod Thomas, Romney
14—Harold Aronhalt, Elk Garden
15—Doug Skidmore, Beall
16—Lincoln Stullenbarger, Elk Garden
17—Jerry Timbrook, Romney
18—Gary Kalbaugh, Elk Garden
19—Fred Ansel, Romney
20—Gary Downton, Beall

CLASS B

1—Walter Ward, Elk Garden (12:29)
2—Dan Burdock, Elk Garden (12:36)
3—Jerry Murphy, Elk Garden (12:37)
4—Mel Smith, Elk Garden (12:46)
5—Dale Lipscomb, Elk Garden (12:48)
6—Doug Love, Elk Garden
7—Wayne Martin, Elk Garden
8—Wade Phillips, Beall
9—Tom Klosterman, Beall
10—George Shanholtz, Romney
11—Joe Hart, Elk Garden
12—Roger Fishel, Romney
13—Charles Keller, Elk Garden
14—David Harris, Romney
15—Carl Foley, Romney
16—Doug Layman, Beall
17—Bob Maphis, Romney
18—Bill Martin, Beall

Rattlers Head Small College Poll 5th Week

Florida A.&M. 5-0, Scores 224 Points

By MARTIN LADER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Florida A&M, which in pre-season estimates was considered inferior to last year's 10-0 squad, Wednesday was voted the nation's No. 1 small college football team for the fifth straight week in the United Press International board of coaches balloting.

The Rattlers went into the present campaign lacking depth in experience at all positions except halfback; their line was believed weaker than last year's and the backs were supposed to be slower. Nevertheless, they have romped to victory five times without a defeat and have scored a total of 224 points while holding the opposition to 24.

Despite its power tactics, Florida A&M has been unable to break away from Southern Mississippi in the balloting and this week its first-place margin has been reduced to a season low of eight points, 275-267.

35 Coaches Vote

The 35 coaches who comprise the UPI board of coaches gave the Rattlers 13 first place votes—three less than last week—while Southern Mississippi's number of first place ballots jumped from 10 to 14.

Southern Mississippi, which defeated Abilene Christian, 30-0, last Saturday to increase its season record to 6-1, was named on all but four ballots. The Southerners lost their only game of the campaign to Memphis State, a major college.

Florida A&M shut out Tennessee State, 20-0, last week, marking the first time it failed to register at least 36 points. The Rattlers, who finished sixth in the UPI final balloting in 1961, were named on 32 ballots this week.

Shake-Ups Noted

The rest of the top 10 teams underwent a severe shake-up in the voting with Arkansas State and Montana State joining the elite group and Southern Illinois and Pittsburg dropping out.

Southeastern Louisiana, although idle since Oct. 20, jumped from fifth to third place; Central Oklahoma advanced from sixth to fourth on the strength of a 38-0 shellacking over Northeast Oklahoma; Fresno State dropped from third to fifth; Lenoir Rhyne moved from ninth to sixth; Northern Illinois fell to seventh from fourth; Arkansas State was eighth; Delaware dropped from seventh to ninth and Montana St. held 10th place.

The second 10 is composed of Arizona (Flagstaff) St., Texas A&I, Southern Illinois, Pittsburg (Kan.), Wittenberg, Akron, South Dakto St., Lamar Tech, California Poly at Pomona and Southwest Texas.

Nation's Top 10 Teams Are Due For Shaking Up This Weekend

USC And Huskies, Mississippi And LSU In Major Contests

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The nation's top 10 teams are due for a shaking up this weekend with Southern California and Louisiana State picked to do the major shaking.

No matter who wins the games involving that pair, the ranking list of leading college football teams will undergo a change but the pick is third-ranked Southern California over eighth-ranked Washington and sixth-ranked LSU over fourth-ranked Mississippi.

Missouri (No. 14) also is the choice over Nebraska (No. 10) and defeat will knock the Cornhuskers right out of the elite group.

Around the nation:

THE EAST

Navy 21, Notre Dame 14—Middies have regrouped since early losses. Syracuse 14, Pittsburgh 7—Pitt's defense the big problem. Penn State 21, Maryland 14—Avening last year's upset. Army 21, Boston U. 7 — Cadets don't score much.

Also: Dartmouth over Yale, Princeton over Brown, Cornell over Columbia, Villanova over Detroit, Harvard over Pennsylvania, Colgate over Lehigh, Rutgers over Lafayette, Buffalo over Bucknell, Delaware over Tempe.

THE MIDWEST

Northwestern 28, Indiana 6 — Myers triggers loaded Wildcats. Michigan State 21, Minnesota 17—Saimes and Co. crack Gopher defense. Missouri 21, Nebraska 14—A flier on Tiger runners. Ohio State 21, Iowa 7—Bucks still are dangerous.

Also: Wisconsin over Michigan, Purdue over Illinois, Oklahoma over Colorado, Holy Cross over Dayton, Kansas over Kansas State, Tulsa over Cincinnati, Iowa State over Oklahoma State, Wichita over North Texas State, Miami, Ohio, over Toledo.

THE SOUTH

Louisiana State 10, Mississippi 7—Stovall and a field goal. Alabama 21, Mississippi State 7—Retaining No. 2 rating. Georgia Tech 23, Duke 21—Looks like a wild one. Auburn 20, Florida 13—Tougher on the offense.

Also: Boston College over Vanderbilt, Georgia over North Carolina State, Miami over Kentucky, Tennessee over Wake Forest, Clemson over North Carolina, Florida State over Houston, South Carolina over Virginia, Tulane over Virginia Tech, The Citadel over VMI, Furman over Davidson, George Washington over Richmond, West Virginia over William and Mary.

THE SOUTHWEST

Texas 28, Southern Methodist 14—Longhorns came back from Rice tie. Arkansas 21, Texas A. and M. 7—Razorbacks hustle up the touchdowns. Texas Christian 20, Baylor 14 — Risky business here.

Also: Rice over Texas Tech, Texas Western over Hardin-Simmons, Arizona over Idaho, Arizona State over Utah State.

THE FAR WEST

Southern California 14, Washington 7—Game of the year out that way. Oregon State 21, Washington State 7—Terry Baker to Vern Burke. UCLA 14, California 6—Cal lacks defense, Uclans not much offense. Oregon 28, Stanford 20—Plenty of offense in this one.

Also: Wyoming over Air Force, Pacific over San Jose State, New Mexico over Brigham Young, Utah over Colorado State, Drake over Idaho State.

Larry Goetz, Ex-NL Umpire, Dead At 67

CINCINNATI (AP) — Larry Goetz, a highly regarded but controversial figure during and after his 22 years as a National League umpire, died Wednesday at his home here. He was 67 years old.

Death apparently was due to a heart attack. His wife found him lying on the floor beside his bed Wednesday morning. He apparently had been in good health although he complained Tuesday night of not feeling well and of being tired.

Goetz started out as a sandlot umpire in his native Cincinnati. He broke into the pro leagues in 1920 in the old Bluegrass League and then umpired in the Piedmont League and American Association before moving into the National League.

National League President Warren Giles retired him in 1957, giving Goetz's age as the reason. That always was a sore point with Goetz. He claimed his health was excellent.

During his active years, his umpiring ability was respected widely but he often was in feuds with players and officials. Since his retirement he has dabbled a bit in radio, appearing for a time as a as a network baseball commentator and also on a local baseball program.

WVU Sets School Mark On 92-Yard Pass Play

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — A near-record output of passing yardage against Oregon State, including a school-record 92-yard play, make that department the only improvement in the latest West Virginia football statistics.

Quarterback Jerry Yost courageously passed for 227 yards and 16 points in the face of a heavy pounding from the Oregon Staters, who staged an aerial circus of their own and scored a 51-22 victory over the hitherto undefeated Mountaineers.

Capon High Opens Dec. 4

Arno Hott At Helm For Seventh Season

Capon Bridge High School will launch its 20-game basketball schedule Tuesday, December 4 by playing host to Mathias in a Potomac Valley Conference contest, it was announced yesterday by Arno Hott, who begins his seventh season as head coach at the Hampshire County school.

Home-and-home games will be played with five P.V.C. opponents, namely, Mathias, West Virginia School for the Deaf, Fort Ashby, Wardensville and Romney.

Other schools appearing on the Capon Bridge schedule are Marshall, Va., John Mosby Academy, Front Royal, Va., St. Joseph's of Martinsburg, Musselman, W. Va., and Oldtown, Md.

The schedule:

Jan. 18—Fort Ashby, home.
Jan. 22—Wardensville, away.
Jan. 25—Musselman, home.
Jan. 29—Romney, home.
Feb. 1—Marshall, away.
Feb. 5—Oldtown, home.
Feb. 8—Mathias, away.
Feb. 12—John Mosby, away.
Feb. 15—Romney, away.
Feb. 19—Musselman, away.

Gator Officials To Scout Teams

JACKSONVILLE, Fla (AP) — Gator Bowl officials will be watching the performances of 14 college football teams this weekend as possible candidates for the post-season game Dec. 29.

Gen. Manager George Olsen said President Joseph Sykora will attend the Mississippi - Louisiana State game Saturday. Other teams in which the selection committee is interested include:

Alabama, Duke, Army, Penn State, Arkansas, Miami, Florida State, Auburn, Maryland, Missouri, Oregon and Georgia Tech.

Bobcats Play Mt. St. Mary's At Frostburg

Babcock's Booters In Final Home Tilt

Frostburg State Teachers College plays its final soccer game of the season at home today, meeting Mt. St. Mary's College, of Emmitsburg, Md., on the Frostburg pitch at 3:30 p. m.

Coach Kenneth Babcock's Bobcats have won two out of three of three games at home, beating Grove City College, 3-1, and Lycoming 4-1 after suffering a 2-0 defeat at the hands of the University of Pittsburgh. On the road the Mountain City booters are 3-1, having disposed of Lock Haven, 3-1, Salisbury 3-2 and Slippery Rock 2-0 while losing to Howard U. of Washington, 2-0.

Frostburg State will be playing its 122nd game under Kenneth Babcock who has been coaching at the Mountain City school for 16 years. His teams have won 62, lost 44 and played 15 ties.

The Bobcats windup the season Saturday in Ohio with Akron University.

Church League To Meet Today

Rosters And Fees To Be Submitted

The third meeting of the Central YMCA Sunday School Basketball League will be held today at 7:30 p.m. at the Y. All fees and rosters must be turned in at the session.

There will be two divisions in the league again this year — the American for older boys and National for the younger cagers.

Thirty-three churches have indicated their intentions of participating this year. If all 33 meet tonight's deadline, there will be 17 teams in the American division and 16 in the National.

League president Floyd (Pete) Elliott will conduct a clinic for coaches and referees at the Y, beginning at 7 p.m. All boys who wish to referee this season are asked to attend.

Hornung Returns To Practice Field

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Packer halfback Paul Hornung, the National Football League scoring champion the last three years who has been sidelined with a knee injury for two weeks, returned to the practice field Tuesday.

The workout was the first for Hornung since he was hurt in the game with the Minnesota Vikings.

"We're hopeful he can play against the Bears," said coach Vince Lombardi, referring to next Sunday's game in Chicago, "but we'll know a lot better Thursday."

Field Completed For D. C. International

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — The field for the $125,000 Washington, D.C., International on Nov. 12 was completed Wednesday with the addition of horses from Germany, Peru and Venezuela.

John D. Schapiro, president of the Laurel Race Course, said Opponent would represent Germany, Porfido will represent Peru and Primordial Venezuela.

In New York, the trainer of Beau Purple — one of three U.S. horses entered in the International — said his thoroughbred would not run in the $75,000-added Trenton Handicap at Garden State Park Saturday.

Trainer Allen Jerkens said Beau Purple would be vanned to Baltimore next Monday for the International. Jerkens and owner Jack Dreyfus had considered running the 5-year-old against Mrs. Katherine Price's Carry Back in the Trenton.

Larry Goetz, Ex-NL Umpire, Dead At 67

CINCINNATI (AP) — Larry Goetz, a highly regarded but controversial figure during and after his 22 years as a National League umpire, died Wednesday at his home here. He was 67 years old.

Death apparently was due to a heart attack. His wife found him lying on the floor beside his bed Wednesday morning. He apparently had been in good health although he complained Tuesday night of not feeling well and of being tired.

Goetz started out as a sandlot umpire in his native Cincinnati. He broke into the pro leagues in 1920 in the old Bluegrass League and then umpired in the Piedmont League and American Association before moving into the National League.

National League President Warren Giles retired him in 1957, giving Goetz's age as the reason. That always was a sore point with Goetz. He claimed his health was excellent.

During his active years, his umpiring ability was respected widely but he often was in feuds with players and officials. Since his retirement he has dabbled a bit in radio, appearing for a time as a as a network baseball commentator and also on a local baseball program.

WVU Sets School Mark On 92-Yard Pass Play

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — A near-record output of passing yardage against Oregon State, including a school-record 92-yard play, make that department the only improvement in the latest West Virginia football statistics.

Quarterback Jerry Yost courageously passed for 227 yards and 16 points in the face of a heavy pounding from the Oregon Staters, who staged an aerial circus of their own and scored a 51-22 victory over the hitherto undefeated Mountaineers.

Gator Officials To Scout Teams

JACKSONVILLE, Fla (AP) — Gator Bowl officials will be watching the performances of 14 college football teams this weekend as possible candidates for the post-season game Dec. 29.

Gen. Manager George Olsen said President Joseph Sykora will attend the Mississippi - Louisiana State game Saturday. Other teams in which the selection committee is interested include:

Alabama, Duke, Army, Penn State, Arkansas, Miami, Florida State, Auburn, Maryland, Missouri, Oregon and Georgia Tech.

Babcock's Booters In Final Home Tilt

Frostburg State Teachers College plays its final soccer game of the season at home today, meeting Mt. St. Mary's College, of Emmitsburg, Md., on the Frostburg pitch at 3:30 p. m.

Coach Kenneth Babcock's Bobcats have won two out of three of three games at home, beating Grove City College, 3-1, and Lycoming 4-1 after suffering a 2-0 defeat at the hands of the University of Pittsburgh. On the road the Mountain City booters are 3-1, having disposed of Lock Haven, 3-1, Salisbury 3-2 and Slippery Rock 2-0 while losing to Howard U. of Washington, 2-0.

Frostburg State will be playing its 122nd game under Kenneth Babcock who has been coaching at the Mountain City school for 16 years. His teams have won 62, lost 44 and played 15 ties.

The Bobcats windup the season Saturday in Ohio with Akron University.

Church League To Meet Today

Rosters And Fees To Be Submitted

The third meeting of the Central YMCA Sunday School Basketball League will be held today at 7:30 p.m. at the Y. All fees and rosters must be turned in at the session.

There will be two divisions in the league again this year — the American for older boys and National for the younger cagers.

Thirty-three churches have indicated their intentions of participating this year. If all 33 meet tonight's deadline, there will be 17 teams in the American division and 16 in the National.

League president Floyd (Pete) Elliott will conduct a clinic for coaches and referees at the Y, beginning at 7 p.m. All boys who wish to referee this season are asked to attend.

Hornung Returns To Practice Field

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Packer halfback Paul Hornung, the National Football League scoring champion the last three years who has been sidelined with a knee injury for two weeks, returned to the practice field Tuesday.

The workout was the first for Hornung since he was hurt in the game with the Minnesota Vikings.

"We're hopeful he can play against the Bears," said coach Vince Lombardi, referring to next Sunday's game in Chicago, "but we'll know a lot better Thursday."

Field Completed For D. C. International

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — The field for the $125,000 Washington, D.C., International on Nov. 12 was completed Wednesday with the addition of horses from Germany, Peru and Venezuela.

John D. Schapiro, president of the Laurel Race Course, said Opponent would represent Germany, Porfido will represent Peru and Primordial Venezuela.

In New York, the trainer of Beau Purple — one of three U.S. horses entered in the International — said his thoroughbred would not run in the $75,000-added Trenton Handicap at Garden State Park Saturday.

Trainer Allen Jerkens said Beau Purple would be vanned to Baltimore next Monday for the International. Jerkens and owner Jack Dreyfus had considered running the 5-year-old against Mrs. Katherine Price's Carry Back in the Trenton.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Speedy Willie Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers, voted the National League's Sophomore of the Year, said Wednesday he had heard of a so-called jinx on players in their second year in big league baseball.

"But it didn't bother me. I didn't even think about it," said the 22-year-old outfielder, who nonetheless was delighted with the outcome of the annual poll conducted by The Associated Press.

The lanky Dodger batted around .300 all season but in the final weeks tailed off and finished with a .285 average.

Davis collected 32 of the 107 votes cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association who participated in the poll. Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs, 1961's Rookie of the Year, was next with 20 first place ballots.

PASS MASTER—Balding, 35-year-old Y. A. Tittle, the New York Giants' quarterback, is the autographing man of the hour now after throwing seven touchdown passes as the Giants knocked off the Washington Redskins in a NFL game in New York. Tittle is among those mentioned as head coach at Vanderbilt.

Dick Shiner Back In Top Condition

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—The football outlook at Maryland brightened Wednesday with the news that quarterback Dick Shiner, the nation's leading major college passer, is back in top physical condition.

Shiner has been bothered with a pulled back muscle, but has still maintained a clip that kept him atop the National Collegiate Athletic Association passing statistics.

Sophomore end Mike Funk, who injured a knee in last Saturday's game, worked out in pads with the number one unit Wednesday. Coach Tom Nugent still is not certain whether Funk will be able to play Saturday against Penn State in University Park, Pa.

The Terps went through another dummy scrimmage in preparation for the game against Penn State.

Title Contest Set In Flag Grid Loop

The championship of the Frostburg Flag Football League will be decided tomorrow night in a game preceding the Keyser High-Beall contest at Beall High Stadium, beginning at 6:45.

Competing for the title will be the Giants and the Redskins. The touch loop is comprised of grade school boys from the Frostburg area.

the GREAT PLAY in College Football

THE GREATEST PLAY in California grid history did not decide a crucial game, though it did come in a crucial game.

It was a pass play from the right end, Brick Muller, to the left end, Brodie Stephens. For record purposes it is still the longest completed pass in the record in both Rose Bowl history and California history.

The 1920 California football team was recently voted by the Helms Athletic Foundation as the greatest collegiate team of all time. The Golden Bears under Andy Smith won nine games, including their 28-0 victory in the Rose Bowl, and scored an amazing 510 points while giving up just 14—a touchdown to Nevada, while scoring 79 points, and a touchdown to the Oregon Aggies, now Oregon State.

The Bears, in their first of five seasons without a loss, defeated St. Mary's 127-0, Nevada 79-7, Washington State 49-0, the Mare Island Marines 88-0, Utah 63-0 and arch-rival Stanford 38-0.

The Big Ten champions were favored nonetheless to win this game by six points. California scored in the first quarter after recovering a Buckeye fumble and moving 28 yards for the touchdown. The conversion, a dropkick, made the score 7-0.

EARLY IN the second period one of collegiate football's phenomenal plays occurred, possibly leading the way for California's other two touchdowns and easy 28-0 victory.

Fullback Archie Nesbitt gained two yards to the Ohio State 37.

"Feigning injury, Nesbitt lay on the ground for a few moments while the rest of the Golden Bear squad appeared to be milling around. Actually they were lining up. Latham, the center, took Brick Muller's place at end. Halfback Pesky Sprott stood about six yards behind the line of scrimmage and directly behind the right guard. Ten yards behind Sprott and slightly to his right was the immortal Muller. Brodie Stephens lined up at his usual spot at left end. Suddenly Nisbet came to life, snapped the ball back to Sprott, who ran to his own right and then lateraled back to Muller.

Meanwhile, Stephens was streaking downfield, with the Ohio State secondary paying little attention to him, figuring that if a pass were coming up no one could throw the ball that far.

Brick Muller

But Ohio State did not realize the caliber of the man who opposed them. Muller took about two steps to his left, cocked his arm and let the ball fly a full 53 yards downfield, directly into the hands of Stephens running along the Ohio State goal line. The audience of 42,000 was stunned, and it took a full five seconds before they were able to break out in a thunderous ovation.

THIS WAS the Rose Bowl game of 1921. Muller became the first All-American from the West Coast the season of '21 and repeated in 1922. In the 1920 Olympic Games at Antwerp, Belgium, he won a silver medal for second place in the high jump. He never played in a losing game at California and excelled in a number of track events.

Muller put himself through Medical School playing professional football and for many years served as California's practice field physician.

Brick died of a heart attack this past May.

Redskin-Dallas Game Sold Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a brisk day of ticket sales Wednesday, the Washington Redskins were within a few tickets of a sellout for Sunday's game with the Dallas Cowboys.

This assured a crowd of about 49,000 in D.C. Stadium Sunday, ever to see a National Football League game, or any other professional sports event, in Washington.

Only 950 tickets remained when the Redskins closed their ticket office and they should go swiftly Thursday morning.

This will be the third straight sellout for Washington, after playing before packed houses in New York and Philadelphia in the two previous weeks.

The Redskins, who lead the NFL's Eastern Division, are playing for the second season in D.C. Stadium. Their largest crowd last fall was 41,062 with Baltimore.

Halloween Hunch Cops Laurel Feature

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 31 (AP)—Fat Cat, a Halloween hunch, paid off at the rate of $12.80 for $2 in the featured Major Lawrence R. Bailey Purse, featured eighth race here today, when the Jimmy Johnson mount scored over five rivals.

Smartly rated in back of a fast pace, Fat Cat overtook front-running Travel Light leaving the sixteenth pole and won by two-and-a-half lengths while completing the mile and a furlong on grass in 1.50 2/5. Travel Light held for second two lengths in front of Postward.

The event honored the Laurel (Md.) Army officer who recently was released from a Laos war prison following 17 months of confinement. Major Bailey presented a trophy to Gerald Weipert, trainer of Fat Cat.

The National Purse, seventh race and secondary attraction, went to Sweet Amen, who received a strong ride from apprentice F. W. Kratz to win by a head from Cycount. A claim of foul was lodged by Zeb Breeding, rider of Cycount, against Sweet Amen, but the officials failed to take action and backers of the winner collected $8.80 for $2.

An Amazing Series

DURHAM, N. C. — Duke and Georgia Tech, two perennial football powers, observe their 30th anniversary Saturday in Duke Stadium.

This has been called the most amazing series in Southern football history. None have been closer or have provided more thrills for football fans. The Blue Devils have won 15 games, the Engineers have been the winners on 13 occasions and there was a tie in 1951, in Duke coach Bill Murray's first season at the helm of the Blue Devils.

Beaglers To Elect

Election of officers will be the main order of business at the regular monthly meeting of the Allegany Beagle Club, scheduled for tomorrow at the clubhouse on the Barton Dairy farm, beginning at 7:30 p. m.

NCAA Places Dayton Flyers On Probation

Two Other Schools Draw Reprimands

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association slapped a two-year probationary period on the University of Dayton, 1962 National Invitation Tournament champion, Wednesday primarily for illegal transportation provided former basketball prospect Roger Brown of New York.

Brown was not identified by the NCAA, but in Dayton, the Rev. Raymond A. Roesch, university president, confirmed he was the individual involved and said the incident resulted from a trip Brown made from Dayton to New York for an appearance in traffic court.

The president added: "The athletic department was motivated by what it judged to be a hardship case and felt that it was justified. We accept the penalty imposed by the NCAA committee on infractions and will continue to make every effort to abide by all the laws and by-laws of the NCAA."

Brown enrolled at the start of the 1960-61 school year at Dayton after being one of the most sought after high school prospects in the East.

He played that year with the Dayton freshman team, which also was cited for abuses of NCAA rules, but left school after his involvement in last year's college basketball scandals.

New York District Attorney Frank Hogan said Brown admitted accepting $250 from confessed gambler Joseph Hacken, now awaiting sentencing on 18 counts of brib

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Speedy Willie Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers, voted the National League's Sophomore of the Year, said Wednesday he had heard of a so-called jinx on players in their second year in big league baseball.

"But it didn't bother me. I didn't even think about it," said the 22-year-old outfielder, who nonetheless was delighted with the outcome of the annual poll conducted by The Associated Press.

The lanky Dodger batted around .300 all season but in the final weeks tailed off and finished with a .285 average.

Davis collected 32 of the 107 votes cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association who participated in the poll. Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs, 1961's Rookie of the Year, was next with 20 first place ballots.

PASS MASTER—Balding, 35-year-old Y. A. Tittle, the New York Giants' quarterback, is the autographing man of the hour now after throwing seven touchdown passes as the Giants knocked off the Washington Redskins in a NFL game in New York. Tittle is among those mentioned as head coach at Vanderbilt.

Dick Shiner Back In Top Condition

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—The football outlook at Maryland brightened Wednesday with the news that quarterback Dick Shiner, the nation's leading major college passer, is back in top physical condition.

Shiner has been bothered with a pulled back muscle, but has still maintained a clip that kept him atop the National Collegiate Athletic Association passing statistics.

Sophomore end Mike Funk, who injured a knee in last Saturday's game, worked out in pads with the number one unit Wednesday. Coach Tom Nugent still is not certain whether Funk will be able to play Saturday against Penn State in University Park, Pa.

The Terps went through another dummy scrimmage in preparation for the game against Penn State.

Title Contest Set In Flag Grid Loop

The championship of the Frostburg Flag Football League will be decided tomorrow night in a game preceding the Keyser High-Beall contest at Beall High Stadium, beginning at 6:45.

Competing for the title will be the Giants and the Redskins. The touch loop is comprised of grade school boys from the Frostburg area.

the GREAT PLAY in College Football

THE GREATEST PLAY in California grid history did not decide a crucial game, though it did come in a crucial game.

It was a pass play from the right end, Brick Muller, to the left end, Brodie Stephens. For record purposes it is still the longest completed pass in the record in both Rose Bowl history and California history.

The 1920 California football team was recently voted by the Helms Athletic Foundation as the greatest collegiate team of all time. The Golden Bears under Andy Smith won nine games, including their 28-0 victory in the Rose Bowl, and scored an amazing 510 points while giving up just 14—a touchdown to Nevada, while scoring 79 points, and a touchdown to the Oregon Aggies, now Oregon State.

The Bears, in their first of five seasons without a loss, defeated St. Mary's 127-0, Nevada 79-7, Washington State 49-0, the Mare Island Marines 88-0, Utah 63-0 and arch-rival Stanford 38-0.

The Big Ten champions were favored nonetheless to win this game by six points. California scored in the first quarter after recovering a Buckeye fumble and moving 28 yards for the touchdown. The conversion, a dropkick, made the score 7-0.

EARLY IN the second period one of collegiate football's phenomenal plays occurred, possibly leading the way for California's other two touchdowns and easy 28-0 victory.

Fullback Archie Nesbitt gained two yards to the Ohio State 37.

"Feigning injury, Nesbitt lay on the ground for a few moments while the rest of the Golden Bear squad appeared to be milling around. Actually they were lining up. Latham, the center, took Brick Muller's place at end. Halfback Pesky Sprott stood about six yards behind the line of scrimmage and directly behind the right guard. Ten yards behind Sprott and slightly to his right was the immortal Muller. Brodie Stephens lined up at his usual spot at left end. Suddenly Nisbet came to life, snapped the ball back to Sprott, who ran to his own right and then lateraled back to Muller.

Meanwhile, Stephens was streaking downfield, with the Ohio State secondary paying little attention to him, figuring that if a pass were coming up no one could throw the ball that far.

Brick Muller

But Ohio State did not realize the caliber of the man who opposed them. Muller took about two steps to his left, cocked his arm and let the ball fly a full 53 yards downfield, directly into the hands of Stephens running along the Ohio State goal line. The audience of 42,000 was stunned, and it took a full five seconds before they were able to break out in a thunderous ovation.

THIS WAS the Rose Bowl game of 1921. Muller became the first All-American from the West Coast the season of '21 and repeated in 1922. In the 1920 Olympic Games at Antwerp, Belgium, he won a silver medal for second place in the high jump. He never played in a losing game at California and excelled in a number of track events.

Muller put himself through Medical School playing professional football and for many years served as California's practice field physician.

Brick died of a heart attack this past May.

Redskin-Dallas Game Sold Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a brisk day of ticket sales Wednesday, the Washington Redskins were within a few tickets of a sellout for Sunday's game with the Dallas Cowboys.

This assured a crowd of about 49,000 in D.C. Stadium Sunday, ever to see a National Football League game, or any other professional sports event, in Washington.

Only 950 tickets remained when the Redskins closed their ticket office and they should go swiftly Thursday morning.

This will be the third straight sellout for Washington, after playing before packed houses in New York and Philadelphia in the two previous weeks.

The Redskins, who lead the NFL's Eastern Division, are playing for the second season in D.C. Stadium. Their largest crowd last fall was 41,062 with Baltimore.

Halloween Hunch Cops Laurel Feature

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 31 (AP)—Fat Cat, a Halloween hunch, paid off at the rate of $12.80 for $2 in the featured Major Lawrence R. Bailey Purse, featured eighth race here today, when the Jimmy Johnson mount scored over five rivals.

Smartly rated in back of a fast pace, Fat Cat overtook front-running Travel Light leaving the sixteenth pole and won by two-and-a-half lengths while completing the mile and a furlong on grass in 1.50 2/5. Travel Light held for second two lengths in front of Postward.

The event honored the Laurel (Md.) Army officer who recently was released from a Laos war prison following 17 months of confinement. Major Bailey presented a trophy to Gerald Weipert, trainer of Fat Cat.

The National Purse, seventh race and secondary attraction, went to Sweet Amen, who received a strong ride from apprentice F. W. Kratz to win by a head from Cycount. A claim of foul was lodged by Zeb Breeding, rider of Cycount, against Sweet Amen, but the officials failed to take action and backers of the winner collected $8.80 for $2.

An Amazing Series

DURHAM, N. C. — Duke and Georgia Tech, two perennial football powers, observe their 30th anniversary Saturday in Duke Stadium.

This has been called the most amazing series in Southern football history. None have been closer or have provided more thrills for football fans. The Blue Devils have won 15 games, the Engineers have been the winners on 13 occasions and there was a tie in 1951, in Duke coach Bill Murray's first season at the helm of the Blue Devils.

Beaglers To Elect

Election of officers will be the main order of business at the regular monthly meeting of the Allegany Beagle Club, scheduled for tomorrow at the clubhouse on the Barton Dairy farm, beginning at 7:30 p. m.

NCAA Places Dayton Flyers On Probation

Two Other Schools Draw Reprimands

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association slapped a two-year probationary period on the University of Dayton, 1962 National Invitation Tournament champion, Wednesday primarily for illegal transportation provided former basketball prospect Roger Brown of New York.

Brown was not identified by the NCAA, but in Dayton, the Rev. Raymond A. Roesch, university president, confirmed he was the individual involved and said the incident resulted from a trip Brown made from Dayton to New York for an appearance in traffic court.

The president added: "The athletic department was motivated by what it judged to be a hardship case and felt that it was justified. We accept the penalty imposed by the NCAA committee on infractions and will continue to make every effort to abide by all the laws and by-laws of the NCAA."

Brown enrolled at the start of the 1960-61 school year at Dayton after being one of the most sought after high school prospects in the East.

He played that year with the Dayton freshman team, which also was cited for abuses of NCAA rules, but left school after his involvement in last year's college basketball scandals.

New York District Attorney Frank Hogan said Brown admitted accepting $250 from confessed gambler Joseph Hacken, now awaiting sentencing on 18 counts of bribery and conspiracy here, as a contact man for

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

In The Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, Marian B. Hite, complainant, vs. Irby R. Hite, defendant, No. 26761 Equity.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII by the complainant, Marian B. Hite, from the defendant, Irby R. Hite.

The Bill recites the marriage on June 17, 1949, in Bowling Green, Allegany County, Maryland; that five children were born to them; that the defendant has committed adultery; that the complainant has not lived or cohabited with him since she learned of his adulterous acts nor in any manner condoned the same; that complainant has been a resident of Maryland for more than one year prior to filing Bill of Complaint, and defendant a non-resident of Maryland, present address unknown.

IT IS THEREUPON ORDERED this 8th day of October, 1962, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, that the complainant, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once in each of four consecutive weeks before the 17th day of November, 1962, giving notice of the object and substance of this Bill of Complaint to the absent, non-resident defendant, warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person or by attorney, on or before the 18th day of December, 1962, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Thomas L. Plummer, who died 1 year ago, Nov. 1, 1961.
Those whom we love
Go out of sight, but
Never out of mind.
They are cherished in
The hearts of those they leave behind.
Loving & kind in all his ways,
Upright & just to the end of his days.
Sincere & true in heart & mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.
Sadly missed by—
His Wife, Daughter & Family

Card of Thanks

We take this means of extending our sincere thanks and appreciation to our friends and neighbors who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement following the death of our mother, Sarah Jane Blubaugh. We especially wish to thank Rev. E. M. Hukill, pastor Frostburg Assembly of God Church, those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their cars and all others who rendered assistance.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Thomas L. Plummer, who died 1 year ago, Nov. 1, 1961.
Those whom we love
Go out of sight, but
Never out of mind.
They are cherished in
The hearts of those they leave behind.
Loving & kind in all his ways.
Upright & just to the end of his days.
Sincere & true in heart & mind.
Beautiful memories he left behind.
Sadly missed by—
His Wife, Daughter & Family

Card of Thanks

We take this means of extending our sincere thanks and appreciation to our friends and neighbors who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement following the death of our mother, Sarah Jape Blubaugh. We especially wish to thank Rev. E. M. Hukill, pastor Frostburg Assembly of God Church, those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their cars and all others who rendered assistance.

The Blubaugh Family

100 Maryland College Leaders To Meet Here

12 Two-Year Schools Involved

About 100 students from 12 Maryland junior colleges will convene at the Allegany Community College Saturday for the general assembly meeting of the Maryland Association of Junior Colleges — Student Association.

Alan Stockholm, Student Council adviser and physical education instructor at ACC, is in charge of arangements for the meeting.

Dr. Harold D. Reese, state supervisor of teacher and higher education, will be the principal speaker at the morning session of the college leaders. He is in a sense considered the "father" of Allegany Community College because he met several times with Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster in the spring of 1961 to offer advice on the establishment of the college on Frederick Street here.

Former Secretary

Dr. Reese formerly served as secretary of the Maryland Commission for the Expansion of Public Higher Education.

Some 70 of the students attending the Saturday meeting will come from the 11 junior colleges outside Cumberland. Many of them are expected here Friday evening.

Registration for the meeting will begin at 9 a. m. Saturday. Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, president of ACC, will extend greetings, and Roy Weed, business manager of the college here, will give the invocation.

After Dr. Reese's remarks the group will be divided into five workshops to study different problems facing them.

The workshops will consider the relationship between student body and student government, social activities, publication of newspapers and yearbooks, organizations on campus and national student association.

The visitors will be taken on a tour of the college facilities and will have the opportunity of inspecting the Civil War art exhibit which will arrive here Friday.

Luncheon At Ali Ghan

Dennis Engle is president of the Allegany Community College Student Council. Other officers are Darrell Mower, vice president; Margaret Wigfield, secretary, and Mary Louise Jones, treasurer.

The 12 colleges belonging to the association are Essex Junior College, Anne Arundel Community College; Baltimore Junior College; Catonsville Community College; Charles County Junior College; Frederick Community College; Hagerstown Junior College; Harford Junior College, Montgomery Junior College, Prince George's Community College, Villa Julie College and Allegany Community College.

Rally Is Planned Tonight At GOP Frostburg Club

A Republican rally will be held in the Young Men's Republican Club of Frostburg today at 8 p. m., according to James S. Getty, GOP campaign chairman.

L. Fred Dean, a member of the Republican State Central Committee, will be in charge and Charles Broadwater, president of the club, will be host.

Del. Noel Speir Cook will be master of ceremonies during the speaking program.

Speakers will include David J. Williams, for House of Delegate candidates; Louis V. Shinnamon, for County Commissioner; Howard W. Vandegrift, Orphans Court candidates; James Roby on behalf of Sheriff Paul Haberlein, and George R. Hughes Jr. candidate for state senator.

U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall, who was scheduled to speak for the state ticket, will not be able to attend because of duties in Washington today. Donald W. Mason, assistant state's attorney, will substitute for Sen. Beall.

All Republicans and their friends are invited, Mr. Getty said. Refreshments will be served.

Street Resurfacing Job Begins Here

North Centre and North Mechanic streets are to be resurfaced, from Market Street up, with "smooth seal" bituminous concrete.

The deep ruts cut in the street by chains are being filled by the leveling course, which is being followed by a thin course of the "smooth seal" type of blacktop—the type which was used on downtown streets.

Imperial Potentate Feted Here

Potentate Says Shrine To Locate Burns Center

George M. Klepper, imperial potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, said here while on his offical two-day visit with Ali Ghan Temple that there is a possibility that the Johns Hopkins University Medical Center in Baltimore could be the location of the first of three proposed Shrine burns centers for research and treatment of third-degree burns of children.

Potentate Klepper, a 59-year-old Memphis, Tenn., attorney, explained that more than 50 American cities have filed requests to be considered for the burns centers. A decision on the first of these centers will be made when the Shrine Imperial Council meets on December 1 and 2.

A decision to develop three of these Shrine burns centers was made at the Shrine convention in Toronto, Ontario, Canada, in July. This followed some three years of study during which it was discovered that 1,700 children in the United States and Canada suffer third-degree burns every year.

Potentate Klepper said that the 830,000 Shriners of North America have for years supported 17 orthopedic hospitals for crippled childen, the nearest in Philadelphia. Maintenance of these hospitals costs about $6,000,000 annually.

It has been estimated that these burns centers will cost $3,000,000 each to construct and about $1,000,000 each annually to maintain. Each will have about 30 beds.

Potentate and Mrs. Klepper were guests of honor last night at the potentate's dinner and ball at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Some 250 persons attended this affair which included a hospitality hour, review of the uniformed units, dinner and finally the ball. C. William Gilchrist, local attorney and Shrine noble, was toastmaster.

The Shrine potentate is a man on the go. During his year as potentate he expects to travel 90,000 miles and visit 130 of the 167 Shrine temples. Of them 153 are located in continental United States, 11 in Canada, one in Mexico, one in the Canal Zone and one in Hawaii, the 50th state. He has been home only seven days since becoming imperial potentate and has not been to Memphis since Labor Day.

Becoming the imperial potentate of Shrinedom is a difficult task. To reach the top office in the Imperial Council, a Shrine noble must first be elected outer guard, the lowest of 11 elected offices. Mr. Klepper became outer guard at the Miami convention in 1952 and 10 years later reached the highest position.

He has turned over his law practice this year to his 33-year-old son, George M. Klepper Jr.

Time For Big Push, GOP Unit Tells Candidates

This is the time for the big push to win, Republican candidates were told during a Halloween party held here last night for party workers and candidates.

The pre-election party was held in South Cumberland campaign headquarters and was sponsored by the Republican Campaign committee.

Kenneth Lowe, assistant campaign chairman, told candidates to continue to pound away on "your program of positive action for Allegany County."

He urged the GOP candidates to "make sure the voters understand what you are running for."

He suggested that GOP county commissioners add to their plan a pledge to maintain a fair property tax policy.

"Don't hesitate to show that assessed valuation of real estate for fiscal year 1958-59 was $158 million compared to that of fiscal year 1962-63 at $178 million, an increase of $20 million, and that although the rate rose from $2.05 to $2.22 then back to $1.85, revenue from the real estate tax has still increased by $54,000."

All this, he said, is "in the face of a budget surplus of $462,314. I do not think this is fair to the taxpayers of Allegany County. I do not think it is fair to raise the taxes when there is a surplus at hand. The figures just given are readily available at the Assessor's Office."

Candidates present included George R. Hughes Jr., for state senator; Fred H. Anderson, J. Glenn Beall Jr., Noel Speir Cook, Lester B. Reed, Charles M. See and David J. Williams, for House of Delegates, Robert Little Ebert and Russell Carder for county commissioner, and James Roby, register of wills.

All pledged to maintain a high-level campaign through election day next Tuesday.

10 Complete First Aid Course For Instructors

Ten persons completed an American Red Cross first aid instructor's course held at Allegany Labor Temple the past two weeks and instructed by Harrison Dial, from Eastern Area headquarters, Alexandria.

Instructor certificate renewals were issued to George A. Brown, 125 Arch Street; John F. Chisholm Sr., 546 Fairview Avenue; George T. Monaghan, Ridgeley and David W. Whittington Sr., RD 5, city.

New instructor certificates were awarded to Evelyn G. Campbell, Midland; George R. Dixon, Ridgeley; Francis M. Lee and Joseph Wenrich, Cresaptown, J. W. Turner, Flintstone and David J. Lichty, 40 Humbird Street.

Truck Driver Fatally Hurt On Route 30

A Pine Bluff, Ark., truck driver was fatally injured yesterday morning when he lost control of his rig and it overturned on a sharp mountain curve about seven miles west of Schellsburg, Pa., on U. S. Route 30.

Bedford State Police said Alvin Gorman Jr., 31, died at 1:30 p. m. in Bedford Memorial Hospital of a fractured chest and internal injuries. The accident occurred at 11:30 a. m. Police are continuing investigation of the crash.

Players To Push 'Moon'

The Algonquin Players will resort to song and melodrama tomorrow night and next Friday night to publicize their next production, "The Moon Is Blue," scheduled Wednesday and Thursday, November 14 and 15, at the Maryland Theatre.

A group identified as the Fabulous Flats and another called the Pinafores will sing in downtown stores that are open on Friday nights.

The Flats are Bob Roberts, Larry Stowell, Sid Storer and Ray Robinette. The Pinafores are Beda May Riley, Amy Slough and Mary Lou Baker.

Amy Slough and Bob Roberts will present a skit called "Sadie and Leon," and the company of "The Villain Never Wins" will perform "Out of the Storm."

"Moonmen" will distribute free tickets to "The Moon Is Blue" among luck members of the audience.

Bob Boniece is director of the Hugh Herbert comedy which the players will present as part of the observance of their fifth anniversary.

ICC Ponders Issues In Speedliner Case

The Interstate Commerce Commission has notified Mayor Earl D. Chaney that hearings have been completed on the application of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to discontinue Speedliner Trains 21 and 22.

ICC officials said all facts and issues brought out in a series of hearings in cities served by the trains will be weighed before a decision is reached.

The trains will continue to operate pending a decision, the ICC said.

Mathias Brings Bus Campaign To Cumberland

Endorsed By Sun, Hagerstown Herald

Rep Charles McC. Mathias Jr., with the endorsements of the Baltimore Sunpapers and the Hagerstown Herald under his belt, brought his campaign back to Allegany County yesterday.

Mr. Mathias took time out from the campaign here to take part in the Shrine festivities welcoming the imperial potentate of the Shrine in North America.

His visit to Cumberland, where he stayed overnight, is part of a three-day bus tour of the entire Sixth District.

He toured Montgomery, Frederick and Washington counties Tuesday, completed the Washington County tour and visited Allegany and Garrett counties yesterday, and will complete his Allegany County tour and return to Washington, Frederick and Montgomery counties today.

He is scheduled to visit the Amcelle plant of Celanese Fibers Company early today, have breakfast in Cumberland and then head for North Branch, Spring Gap, Oldtown and Picardy.

The Sunpapers of Baltimore yesterday endorsed Mr. Mathias over former Rep. John R. Foley, Democrat, along with two other Republicans, Roger C. B. Morton in the First District and Mrs. Caroline R. Ramsay in the Seventh District, and three Democrats, Clarence D. Long in the Second District, George H. Fallon in the Fourth and Richard E. Lankford in the Fifth.

The Hagerstown Herald, in endorsing Mr. Mathias for re-election as Sixth District Representative, said "He has proved himself during his first two years in office and deserves to be returned to Washington."

All clinics at the Allegany County Health Department will be closed Tuesday because of election day, according to Miss Perina Grassi, senior health nurse.

The Questions:

Legislative Salaries, Redistricting On Ballot

This is the second of three articles explaining the constitutional amendments and referenda upon which Maryland voters will cast their ballots next Tuesday. Background material on the issues was provided by the State Departments of Legislative Reference.

Question No. 4 to be voted on November 6 is one great importance to the men who will be elected to the State Senate and House of Delegates on the same day for four-year terms.

A favorable vote on Question No.. 4 would raise the compensation of members of the General Assembly in Annapolis. This proposal would amend Section 15 of Article 3 of the State Constitution.

When the present Constitution was adopted in 1867, this section provided compensation of $5 per day for members of the General Assembly during the time they were in session. An amendment to the section adopted in 1942 put them on an annual salary of $1,000 and another amendment adopted in 1948 increased the annual salary to $1,800.

The present proposal would increase the annual salary of members of the General Assembly from $1,800 to $3,000. The two presiding officers, who always have received additional compensation, would have the extra amount increased from $250 to $300. This would make no changes in the expense provisions for legislators who now received $20 per day while the legislature is in session plus mileage for one round trip between home and Annapolis during the session.

Support Of Children

Question No. 5, the last of the constitutional matters, involves decrees for support of illegitimate children. This section of the Constitution long has provided that no person shall be imprisoned for debt. By an amendment adopted in 1950, it was provided that a court decree for the support of a wife or dependent children, or for alimony, does not constitute a debt within the meaning of this section.

The effect was to allow imprisonment for non-payment of a court order for the support of a wife or dependent children, or for alimony.

The present proposal would add a provision that a court decree for the support of an illegitimate child or children does not constitute a debt within the meaning of this section. Its effect would be to permit imprisonment for non-payment of such an order.

A commission appointed by Governor J. Millard Tawes to revise the laws on illegitimacy and the care of illegitimate children has pointed out that the language in the present Constitution specifying "a wife or dependent children," probably does not include illegitimate children. The commission recommends this amendment to the Constitution as a necessary basis for the revisions it suggests in the laws on illegitimacy and the care of illegitimate children.

New Congressional District

Question No. 6 is the first referendum on the November 6 ballot. It pertains to the creation of the new Eighth Congressional District in Maryland.

In Chapter 206 of the Acts of 1961, the General Assembly amended the election laws to create a new Eighth Congressional District. The act was petitioned to a referendum under provisions of Article 16 of the State Constitution.

The 1960 census gave Maryland an eighth seat in the House of Representatives. The two counties of Howard and Prince George's were placed in the Eighth District. They were removed from

Mathias Reports Celanese Gets $37,000 Contract

Rep. Charles McC. Mathias, who was in Cumberland last night, reported that his office in Washington informed him yesterday that Celanese has received a $37,000 contract from the Agency for International Development for acetate yarn.

The Republican from Frederick County said he understands that the yarn will come from the Amcelle plant here.

Rep. Mathias was here in the course of a whirlwind tour of Western Maryland to introduce George M. Klepper, imperial potentate of the Shrines of North America, at a dinner and ball at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. The Congressman is a noble of Ali Ghan.

Tawes Victory Margin Unsure In 6th District

Goldstein And Finan Considered 'Shoo-Ins'

This is one in a series of Associated Press articles surveying the Maryland political scene before the Nov. 6 election.

By GORDON BEARD

CUMBERLAND (AP) — Last-minute Republican predictions of victory may be more than mere whistling in the dark in Maryland's 6th Congressional District next week.

Even when Gov. Tawes carried the state by 207,000 votes in his thumping triumph of 1958, the governor's margin in the far-flung district was only 23,970. If he wins this time — and there are many who rate the district a toss-up — his victory margin will be considerably smaller.

Democrats admit privately that Tawes would be in serious trouble if the Republicans had a better known candidate than Frank Small Jr., who is making his first statewide pitch.

While there may be some doubt about the gubernatorial race, Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan are considered shoo-ins against relatively unknown opponents. It has been suggested the two Democratic incumbents could have quit the campaign trail long ago and gone on vacation.

Brewster "Safe"

Democratic Rep. Daniel B. Brewster is rated home safe in his U.S. Senate contest with Republican Edward T. Miller. Some observers think Brewster will lead the Democratic ticket in the 6th District.

Rep. Charles Mathias is clearly the knight-in-shining-armor candidate for the GOP. Even Democrats admit the personable congressman has built a strong following since whipping John R. Foley by 9,000 votes in 1960, and he is expected to defeat Foley again.

Republicans also are enthusiastic over the campaign being waged by Newton I. Steers for the congress-at-large seat, and they expect to pick up extra representation to the General Assembly in all five counties.

The 6th District includes the only two counties in the state—Allegany and Garrett — with Republican registration majorities. And this edge could be increased by a heavy turnout as Republicans are pushing hard in both counties to reverse upsets scored by Democrats in county and General Assembly races four years ago.

Montgomery Is Key

But curiously, it is Montgomery County, with its 22,000 Democratic registration majority, which holds the key to the 6th District. A muddled picture, which one veteran Democrat described as "the normally upset conditions of Montgomery County," has forecasters in a dither.

Montgomery contains 140,000 of the district's 259,000 voters. Tawes carried the county by 10,000 votes in 1958, but he polled only 8,700 votes in last May's primary as compared with 28,000 for his two chief rivals.

Tawes is not overly popular in Montgomery, where the savings and loan scandal hit hardest. Some Republicans predict Small will carry the county by as much as 16,000 votes.

Democrats contend that while Tawes doesn't appeal to many liberals in Montgomery, Small is even more conservative. A special "white paper" describing Small's voting record as a congressman was issued by Democrats — and they claim it has helped Tawes in Montgomery and opened the way for a slender Democratic victory.

Some prognosticators feel the vote for governor will be light in

Garrett County Man Is Killed By Falling Tree

Robert Brown Dies Of Fractured Skull

A Garrett County woodsman was killed yesterday morning when he was struck on the head by the limb of a falling tree while working in the woods near Friendsville.

He was Robert Brown, 30, who lived in Garrett County near the Pennsylvania line. His mailing address was Addison, Pa.

Mr. Brown died in Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, at 8 a.m., about an hour after he was fatally injured while working with a crew cutting logs.

Dr. James H. Feaster, deputy Garrett County medical examiner, ruled that death was accidental and resulted after he was struck on the head by the falling tree limb.

An autopsy showed that the woodsman died of a fractured skull.

He was born in Accident December 9, 1931, a son of Malin and Alice (Ringer) Brown, the Cove.

Surviving are his wife, Wilma (Smith) Brown; one son, Terry, at home; two stepsons, Ronald Smith, Pittsburgh and Roger Smith, at home ;one step-daughter, Mrs. Maxine Richter, Addison; two sisters, Mrs. Lois Gray, Mt. Rainier and Mrs. Kathryn Wagner, McHenry.

He was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church, the Cove, where a service will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. Rev. William Carlson will officiate and interment will be in the church cemetery.

The body is at the Newman Funeral Home, Grantsville. It will be taken to the church at noon on Saturday.

Jury Decides Disability At 80 Per Cent

An Allegany County Circuit Court jury yesterday afternoon deliberated about 30 minutes before deciding that Roland L. Erickson, 328 Reservoir Avenue, a Celanese employe, obtained an 80 per cent permanent partial disability to his right arm as a result of an injury while working at Amcelle.

The State Workmen's Compensation Commission had set Mr. Erickson's permanent partial disability at 75 per cent loss of the use of his right arm. The commission's award had the effect of providing Mr. Erickson with $25 a week for 189 weeks.

Both sides appealed the decision. Mr. Erickson, through his attorneys, Simon F. Reilly and Milton Gerson, contended that his disability was greater than 75 per cent. Celanese, through Attorney William H. Geppert, argued that Mr. Erickson had a pre-existing disability at the time of the accident.

Three witnesses were heard yesterday. Besides the complainant they were Dr. Lewis Brings, called by the complainant's attorneys, and Dr. Robert Feddis, called by the defense attorney.

Mr. Erickson was injured last November 29 when a bobbin of silk fell striking his right arm. It was stipulated at the close of yesterday's trial that Mr. Erickson's temporary total disability ended January 19. That left as the only issue for the 10-member jury a decision as to the percentage of permanent partial disability to the man's right arm.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris presided at the trial. Ralph F. McHenry, former county agent, was foreman of the jury of six men and four women. The Celanese insurer involved in the case was the American Motorist Insurance Company.

COLLECTION DAY TODAY

Building Conditions Here 'Nothing To Brag About'

Building conditions in the City of Cumberland are nothing to brag about.

The conclusion may be drawn from the results of a building conditions survey made by Blair and Stein Associates, the city's planning consultant, and published in Progress Report No. 2—Urban Renewal Recommendations.

The planning firm said the results of the building conditions survey indicate:

1. The conditions vary from extremes of good to poor.

2. The number and percentage of buildings in poor condition are high—more than buildings in good condition.

3. The majority of buildings are only in fair condition and represent borderline cases which can go in either direction.

The planning firm said a public action program is needed to correct the conditions and that the program must be diversified enough to meet the needs of all areas.

Here is the picture, neighborhood by neighborhood, with "good" referring to new buildings or buildings in good state of repair and upkeep and requiring minimum improvements, "fair" referring to structurally sound buildings but requiring economically feasible repairs and renovations, and "poor," buildings which are structurally unsound, uneconomic to repair and ripe for redevelopment.

The North End neighborhood has 921 buildings, 139 in good condition, 698 in fair and 86, or nine per cent, in poor condition.

The Bedford Street neighborhood has 771 buildings and 199 are in good, 524 fair and 48, or six per cent, in poor condition.

The East Side area has 776 buildings and 46 are in good, 618 in fair and 112, or 15 per cent, in poor condition.

The Johnson Heights neighborhood has 1,541 buildings including 370 in good condition, 1,043 in fair and 128, or eight per cent, in poor condition.

The South Cumberland neighborhood has 1,192 buildings and 77 are in good, 880 in fair and 235, or 20 per cent, in poor condition.

The Humbird Street neighborhood has 469 buildings with 40 of them in good, 321 in fair and 108, or 22 per cent, in poor condition.

The Kelly-Springfield neighborhood has 227 buildings and 14 are in good, 195 in fair and 18, or eight per cent, are in poor condition.

The Mt. Royal area was found to have 406 buildings, including 96 in good condition, 307 in fair and three, or one per cent, in poor condition.

The West Side neighborhood has 839 buildings, including 50 in good, 661 in fair and 128, or 15 per cent, in poor condition.

The Centre Street neighborhood has 286 buildings and 16 are in good, 166 in fair and 104, or 36 per cent, in poor condition.

The Central business district has 512 buildings, including 38 in good, 279 in fair and 195, or 38 per cent, in poor condition.

All told, Cumberland has 7,940 buildings, the survey showed. A total of 1,085 were judged to be in good condition, 5,690 in fair and 1,165 in poor condition.

The planning firm pointed out that "poor building conditions are referred to as blight, a sign of economic distress which can spread over large areas unless effective steps are taken to prevent it."

Democrats Add Oldtown Rally To Schedule

A Democratic rally at the Oldtown Fire Hall at 8 p. m. Saturday has been added to an already crowded schedule for the final few days of the election campaign.

John Zapf is serving as chairman of arrangements for the rally.

Delegate Thomas F. Conlon Jr., who seeks re-election to the House of Delegates from Allegany County, will preside at the rally. He will introduce all of the county candidates present.

Matthew J. Mullaney, chairman of the County Board of Election Supervisors, will speak in behalf of the state-wide Democratic ticket.

Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the rally.

100 Maryland College Leaders To Meet Here

12 Two-Year Schools Involved

About 100 students from 12 Maryland junior colleges will convene at the Allegany Community College Saturday for the general assembly meeting of the Maryland Association of Junior Colleges — Student Association.

Alan Stockholm, Student Council adviser and physical education instructor at ACC, is in charge of arangements for the meeting.

Dr. Harold D. Reese, state supervisor of teacher and higher education, will be the principal speaker at the morning session of the college leaders. He is in a sense considered the "father" of Allegany Community College because he met several times with Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster in the spring of 1961 to offer advice on the establishment of the college on Frederick Street here.

Former Secretary

Dr. Reese formerly served as secretary of the Maryland Commission for the Expansion of Public Higher Education.

Some 70 of the students attending the Saturday meeting will come from the 11 junior colleges outside Cumberland. Many of them are expected here Friday evening.

Registration for the meeting will begin at 9 a. m. Saturday. Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, president of ACC, will extend greetings, and Roy Weed, business manager of the college here, will give the invocation.

After Dr. Reese's remarks the group will be divided into five workshops to study different problems facing them.

The workshops will consider the relationship between student body and student government, social activities, publication of newspapers and yearbooks, organizations on campus and national student association.

The visitors will be taken on a tour of the college facilities and will have the opportunity of inspecting the Civil War art exhibit which will arrive here Friday.

Luncheon At Ali Ghan

Dennis Engle is president of the Allegany Community College Student Council. Other officers are Darrell Mower, vice president; Margaret Wigfield, secretary, and Mary Louise Jones, treasurer.

The 12 colleges belonging to the association are Essex Junior College, Anne Arundel Community College; Baltimore Junior College; Catonsville Community College; Charles County Junior College; Frederick Community College; Hagerstown Junior College; Harford Junior College, Montgomery Junior College, Prince George's Community College, Villa Julie College and Allegany Community College.

Rally Is Planned Tonight At GOP Frostburg Club

A Republican rally will be held in the Young Men's Republican Club of Frostburg today at 8 p. m., according to James S. Getty, GOP campaign chairman.

L. Fred Dean, a member of the Republican State Central Committee, will be in charge and Charles Broadwater, president of the club, will be host.

Del. Noel Speir Cook will be master of ceremonies during the speaking program.

Speakers will include David J. Williams, for House of Delegate candidates; Louis V. Shinnamon, for County Commissioner; Howard W. Vandegrift, Orphans Court candidates; James Roby on behalf of Sheriff Paul Haberlein, and George R. Hughes Jr. candidate for state senator.

U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall, who was scheduled to speak for the state ticket, will not be able to attend because of duties in Washington today. Donald W. Mason, assistant state's attorney, will substitute for Sen. Beall.

All Republicans and their friends are invited, Mr. Getty said. Refreshments will be served.

Street Resurfacing Job Begins Here

The Cumberland Contracting Company yesterday began work on the resurfacing of North Centre Street, laying the leveling course from Market to Valley Street and part of the wearing course.

North Centre and North Mechanic streets are to be resurfaced, from Market Street up, with "smooth seal" bituminous concrete.

The deep ruts cut in the street by chains are being filled by the leveling course, which is being followed by a thin course of the "smooth seal" type of blacktop—the type which was used on downtown streets.

Potentate Says Shrine To Locate Burns Center

George M. Klepper, imperial potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, said here while on his offical two-day visit with Ali Ghan Temple that there is a possibility that the Johns Hopkins University Medical Center in Baltimore could be the location of the first of three proposed Shrine burns centers for research and treatment of third-degree burns of children.

Potentate Klepper, a 59-year-old Memphis, Tenn., attorney, explained that more than 50 American cities have filed requests to be considered for the burns centers. A decision on the first of these centers will be made when the Shrine Imperial Council meets on December 1 and 2.

A decision to develop three of these Shrine burns centers was made at the Shrine convention in Toronto, Ontario, Canada, in July. This followed some three years of study during which it was discovered that 1,700 children in the United States and Canada suffer third-degree burns every year.

Potentate Klepper said that the 830,000 Shriners of North America have for years supported 17 orthopedic hospitals for crippled children, the nearest in Philadelphia. Maintenance of these hospitals costs about $6,000,000 annually.

It has been estimated that these burns centers will cost $3,000,000 each to construct and about $1,000,000 each annually to maintain. Each will have about 30 beds.

Potentate and Mrs. Klepper were guests of honor last night at the potentate's dinner and ball at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Some 250 persons attended this affair which included a hospitality hour, review of the uniformed units, dinner and finally the ball. C. William Gilchrist, local attorney and Shrine noble, was toastmaster.

The Shrine potentate is a man on the go. During his year as potentate he expects to travel 90,000 miles and visit 130 of the 167 Shrine temples. Of them 153 are located in continental United States, 11 in Canada, one in Mexico, one in the Canal Zone and one in Hawaii, the 50th state. He has been home only seven days since becoming imperial potentate and has not been to Memphis since Labor Day.

Becoming the imperial potentate of Shrinedom is a difficult task. To reach the top office in the Imperial Council, a Shrine noble must first be elected outer guard, the lowest of 11 elected offices. Mr. Klepper became outer guard at the Miami convention in 1952 and 10 years later reached the highest position.

He has turned over his law practice this year to his 33-year-old son, George M. Klepper Jr.

Time For Big Push, GOP Unit Tells Candidates

This is the time for the big push to win, Republican candidates were told during a Hallowe'en party held here last night for party workers and candidates.

The pre-election party was held in South Cumberland campaign headquarters and was sponsored by the Republican Campaign committee.

Kenneth Lowe, assistant campaign chairman, told candidates to continue to pound away on "your program of positive action for Allegany County."

He urged the GOP candidates to "make sure the voters understand what you are running for."

He suggested that GOP county commissioners add to their plan a pledge to maintain a fair property tax policy.

"Don't hesitate to show that assessed valuation of real estate for fiscal year 1958-59 was $158 million compared to that of fiscal year 1962-63 at $178 million, an increase of $20 million, and that although the rate rose from $2.05 to $2.22 then back to $1.85, revenue from the real estate tax has still increased by $54,000."

All this, he said, is "in the face of a budget surplus of $462,314. I do not think this is fair to the taxpayers of Allegany County. I do not think it is fair to raise the taxes when there is a surplus at hand. The figures just given are readily available at the Assessor's Office."

Candidates present included George R. Hughes Jr., for state senator; Fred H. Anderson, J. Glenn Beall Jr., Noel Speir Cook, Lester B. Reed, Charles M. See and David J. Williams, for House of Delegates, Robert Little Ebert and Russell Carder for county commissioner, and James Roby, register of wills.

All pledged to maintain a high-level campaign through election day next Tuesday.

10 Complete First Aid Course For Instructors

Ten persons completed an American Red Cross first aid instructor's course held at Allegany Labor Temple the past two weeks and instructed by Harrison Dial, from Eastern Area headquarters, Alexandria.

Instructor certificate renewals were issued to George A. Brown, 125 Arch Street; John F. Chisholm Sr., 546 Fairview Avenue; George T. Monaghan, Ridgeley and David W. Whittington Sr., RD 5, city.

New instructor certificates were awarded to Evelyn G. Campbell, Midland; George R. Dixon, Ridgeley; Francis M. Lee and Joseph Wenrich, Cresaptown, J. W. Turner, Flintstone and David J. Lichty, 40 Humbird Street.

Truck Driver Fatally Hurt On Route 30

A Pine Bluff, Ark., truck driver was fatally injured yesterday morning when he lost control of his rig and it overturned on a sharp mountain curve about seven miles west of Schellsburg, Pa., on U. S. Route 30.

Bedford State Police said Alvin Gorman Jr., 31, died at 1:30 p. m. in Bedford Memorial Hospital of a fractured chest and internal injuries. The accident occurred at 11:30 a. m. Police are continuing investigation of the crash.

Players To Push 'Moon'

The Algonquin Players will resort to song and melodrama tomorrow night and next Friday night to publicize their next production, "The Moon Is Blue," scheduled Wednesday and Thursday, November 14 and 15, at the Maryland Theatre.

A group identified as the Fabulous Flats and another called the Pinafores will sing in downtown stores that are open on Friday nights.

The Flats are Bob Roberts, Larry Stowell, Sid Storer and Ray Robinette. The Pinafores are Beda May Riley, Amy Slough and Mary Lou Baker.

Amy Slough and Bob Roberts will present a skit called "Sadie and Leon," and the company of "The Villain Never Wins" will perform "Out of the Storm."

"Moonmen" will distribute free tickets to "The Moon Is Blue" among luck members of the audience.

Bob Boniece is director of the Hugh Herbert comedy which the players will present as part of the observance of their fifth anniversary.

ICC Ponders Issues In Speedliner Case

The Interstate Commerce Commission has notified Mayor Earl D. Chaney that hearings have been completed on the application of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to discontinue Speedliner Trains 21 and 22.

ICC officials said all facts and issues brought out in a series of hearings in cities served by the trains will be weighed before a decision is reached.

The trains will continue to operate pending a decision, the ICC said.

Mathias Brings Bus Campaign To Cumberland

Endorsed By Sun, Hagerstown Herald

Rep Charles McC. Mathias Jr., with the endorsements of the Baltimore Sunpapers and the Hagerstown Herald under his belt, brought his campaign back to Allegany County yesterday.

Mr. Mathias took time out from the campaign here to take part in the Shrine festivities welcoming the imperial potentate of the Shrine in North America.

His visit to Cumberland, where he stayed overnight, is part of a three-day bus tour of the entire Sixth District.

He toured Montgomery, Frederick and Washington counties Tuesday, completed the Washington County tour and visited Allegany and Garrett counties yesterday, and will complete his Allegany County tour and return to Washington, Frederick and Montgomery counties today.

He is scheduled to visit the Amcelle plant of Celanese Fibers Company early today, have breakfast in Cumberland and then head for North Branch, Spring Gap, Oldtown and Picardy.

The Sunpapers of Baltimore yesterday endorsed Mr. Mathias over former Rep. John R. Foley, Democrat, along with two other Republicans, Roger C. B. Morton in the First District and Mrs. Caroline R. Ramsay in the Seventh District, and three Democrats, Clarence D. Long in the Second District, George H. Fallon in the Fourth and Richard E. Lankford in the Fifth.

The Hagerstown Herald, in endorsing Mr. Mathias for re-election as Sixth District Representative, said "He has proved himself during his first two years in office and deserves to be returned to Washington."

The Questions:

Legislative Salaries, Redistricting On Ballot

This is the second of three articles explaining the constitutional amendments and referenda upon which Maryland voters will cast their ballots next Tuesday. Background material on the issues was provided by the State Departments of Legislative Reference.

Question No. 4 to be voted on November 6 is one great importance to the men who will be elected to the State Senate and House of Delegates on the same day for four-year terms.

A favorable vote on Question No.. 4 would raise the compensation of members of the General Assembly in Annapolis. This proposal would amend Section 15 of Article 3 of the State Constitution.

When the present Constitution was adopted in 1867, this section provided compensation of $5 per day for members of the General Assembly during the time they were in session. An amendment to the section adopted in 1942 put them on an annual salary of $1,000 and another amendment adopted in 1948 increased the annual salary to $1,800.

The present proposal would increase the annual salary of members of the General Assembly from $1,800 to $3,000. The two presiding officers, who always have received additional compensation, would have the extra amount increased from $250 to $300. This would make no changes in the expense provisions for legislators who now received $20 per day while the legislature is in session plus mileage for one round trip between home and Annapolis during the session.

Support Of Children

Question No. 5, the last of the constitutional matters, involves decrees for support of illegitimate children. This section of the Constitution long has provided that no person shall be imprisoned for debt. By an amendment adopted in 1950, it was provided that a court decree for the support of a wife or dependent children, or for alimony, does not constitute a debt within the meaning of this section.

The effect was to allow imprisonment for non-payment of a court order for the support of a wife or dependent children, or for alimony.

The present proposal would add a provision that a court decree for the support of an illegitimate child or children does not constitute a debt within the meaning of this section. Its effect would be to permit imprisonment for non-payment of such an order.

A commission appointed by Governor J. Millard Tawes to revise the laws on illegitimacy and the care of illegitimate children has pointed out that the language in the present Constitution specifying "a wife or dependent children," probably does not include illegitimate children. The commission recommends this amendment to the Constitution as a necessary basis for the revisions it suggests in the laws on illegitimacy and the care of illegitimate children.

New Congressional District

Question No. 6 is the first referendum on the November 6 ballot. It pertains to the creation of the new Eighth Congressional District in Maryland.

In Chapter 206 of the Acts of 1961, the General Assembly amended the election laws to create a new Eighth Congressional District. The act was petitioned to a referendum under provisions of Article 16 of the State Constitution.

The 1960 census gave Maryland an eighth seat in the House of Representatives. The two counties of Howard and Prince George's were placed in the Eighth District. They were removed from

Tawes Victory Margin Unsure In 6th District

Goldstein And Finan Considered 'Shoo-Ins'

This is one in a series of Associated Press articles surveying the Maryland political scene before the Nov. 6 election.

By GORDON BEARD

CUMBERLAND (AP) — Last-minute Republican predictions of victory may be more than mere whistling in the dark in Maryland's 6th Congressional District next week.

Even when Gov. Tawes carried the state by 207,000 votes in his thumping triumph of 1958, the governor's margin in the far-flung district was only 23,970. If he wins this time — and there are many who rate the district a toss-up — his victory margin will be considerably smaller.

Democrats admit privately that Tawes would be in serious trouble if the Republicans had a better known candidate than Frank Small Jr., who is making his first statewide pitch.

While there may be some doubt about the gubernatorial race, Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan are considered shoo-ins against relatively unknown opponents. It has been suggested the two Democratic incumbents could have quit the campaign trail long ago and gone on vacation.

Brewster "Safe"

Democratic Rep. Daniel B. Brewster is rated home safe in his U.S. Senate contest with Republican Edward T. Miller. Some observers think Brewster will lead the Democratic ticket in the 6th District.

Rep. Charles Mathias is clearly the knight-in-shining-armor candidate for the GOP. Even Democrats admit the personable congressman has built a strong following since whipping John R. Foley by 9,000 votes in 1960, and he is expected to defeat Foley again.

Republicans also are enthusiastic over the campaign being waged by Newton I. Steers for the congress-at-large seat, and they expect to pick up extra representation to the General Assembly in all five counties.

The 6th District includes the only two counties in the state—Allegany and Garrett — with Republican registration majorities. And this edge could be increased by a heavy turnout as Republicans are pushing hard in both counties to reverse upsets scored by Democrats in county and General Assembly races four years ago.

Montgomery Is Key

But curiously, it is Montgomery County, with its 22,000 Democratic registration majority, which holds the key to the 6th District. A muddled picture, which one veteran Democrat described as "the normally upset conditions of Montgomery County," has forecasters in a dither.

Montgomery contains 140,000 of the district's 259,000 voters. Tawes carried the county by 10,000 votes in 1958, but he polled only 8,700 votes in last May's primary as compared with 28,000 for his two chief rivals.

Tawes is not overly popular in Montgomery, where the savings and loan scandal hit hardest. Some Republicans predict Small will carry the county by as much as 16,000 votes.

Democrats contend that while Tawes doesn't appeal to many liberals in Montgomery, Small is even more conservative. A special "white paper" describing Small's voting record as a congressman was issued by Democrats — and they claim it has helped Tawes in Montgomery and opened the way for a slender Democratic victory.

Mathias Reports Celanese Gets $37,000 Contract

Rep. Charles McC. Mathias, who was in Cumberland last night, reported that his office in Washington informed him yesterday that Celanese has received a $37,000 contract from the Agency for International Development for acetate yarn.

The Republican from Frederick County said he understands that the yarn will come from the Amcelle plant here.

Rep. Mathias was here in the course of a whirlwind tour of Western Maryland to introduce George M. Klepper, imperial potentate of the Shrines of North America, at a dinner and ball at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. The Congressman is a noble of Ali Ghan.

Garrett County Man Is Killed By Falling Tree

Robert Brown Dies Of Fractured Skull

A Garrett County woodsman was killed yesterday morning when he was struck on the head by the limb of a falling tree while working in the woods near Friendsville.

He was Robert Brown, 30, who lived in Garrett County near the Pennsylvania line. His mailing address was Addison, Pa.

Mr. Brown died in Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, at 8 a.m., about an hour after he was fatally injured while working with a crew cutting logs.

Dr. James H. Feaster, deputy Garrett County medical examiner, ruled that death was accidental and resulted after he was struck on the head by the falling tree limb.

An autopsy showed that the woodsman died of a fractured skull.

He was born in Accident December 9, 1931, a son of Malin and Alice (Ringer) Brown, the Cove.

Surviving are his wife, Wilma (Smith) Brown; one son, Terry, at home; two stepsons, Ronald Smith, Pittsburgh and Roger Smith, at home ;one step-daughter, Mrs. Maxine Richter, Addison; two sisters, Mrs. Lois Gray, Mt. Rainier and Mrs. Kathryn Wagner, McHenry.

He was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church, the Cove, where a service will be conducted Saturday at 2 p.m. Rev. William Carlson will officiate and interment will be in the church cemetery.

The body is at the Newman Funeral Home, Grantsville. It will be taken to the church at noon on Saturday.

Jury Decides Disability At 80 Per Cent

An Allegany County Circuit Court jury yesterday afternoon deliberated about 30 minutes before deciding that Roland L. Erickson, 328 Reservoir Avenue, a Celanese employe, obtained an 80 per cent permanent partial disability to his right arm as a result of an injury while working at Amcelle.

The State Workmen's Compensation Commission had set Mr. Erickson's permanent partial disability at 75 per cent loss of the use of his right arm. The commission's award had the effect of providing Mr. Erickson with $25 a week for 189 weeks.

Both sides appealed the decision. Mr. Erickson, through his attorneys, Simon F. Reilly and Milton Gerson, contended that his disability was greater than 75 per cent. Celanese, through Attorney William H. Geppert, argued that Mr. Erickson had a pre-existing disability at the time of the accident.

Three witnesses were heard yesterday. Besides the complainant they were Dr. Lewis Brings, called by the complainant's attorneys, and Dr. Robert Feddis, called by the defense attorney.

Mr. Erickson was injured last November 29 when a bobbin of silk fell striking his right arm. It was stipulated at the close of yesterday's trial that Mr. Erickson's temporary total disability ended January 19. That left as the only issue for the 10-member jury a decision as to the percentage of permanent partial disability to the man's right arm.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris presided at the trial. Ralph F. McHenry, former county agent, was foreman of the jury of six men and four women. The Celanese insurer involved in the case was the American Motorist Insurance Company.

COLLECTION DAY TODAY

Building Conditions Here 'Nothing To Brag About'

Building conditions in the City of Cumberland are nothing to brag about.

The conclusion may be drawn from the results of a building conditions survey made by Blair and Stein Associates, the city's planning consultant, and published in Progress Report No. 2—Urban Renewal Recommendations.

The planning firm said the results of the building conditions survey indicate:

1. The conditions vary from extremes of good to poor.

2. The number and percentage of buildings in poor condition are high—more than buildings in good condition.

3. The majority of buildings are only in fair condition and represent borderline cases which can go in either direction.

The planning firm said a public action program is needed to correct the conditions and that the program must be diversified enough to meet the needs of all areas.

Here is the picture, neighborhood by neighborhood, with "good" referring to new buildings or buildings in good state of repair and upkeep and requiring minimum improvements, "fair" referring to structurally sound buildings but requiring economically feasible repairs and renovations, and "poor," buildings which are structurally unsound, uneconomic to repair and ripe for redevelopment.

The North End neighborhood has 921 buildings, 139 in good condition, 698 in fair and 86, or nine per cent, in poor condition.

The Bedford Street neighborhood has 771 buildings and 199 are in good, 524 fair and 48, or six per cent, in poor condition.

The East Side area has 776 buildings and 46 are in good, 618 in fair and 112, or 15 per cent, in poor condition.

The Johnson Heights neighborhood has 1,541 buildings including 370 in good condition, 1,043 in fair and 128, or eight per cent, in poor condition.

The South Cumberland neighborhood has 1,192 buildings and 77 are in good, 880 in fair and 235, or 20 per cent, in poor condition.

The Humbird Street neighborhood has 469 buildings with 40 of them in good, 321 in fair and 108, or 22 per cent, in poor condition.

The Kelly-Springfield neighborhood has 227 buildings and 14 are in good, 195 in fair and 18, or eight per cent, are in poor condition.

The Mt. Royal area was found to have 406 buildings, including 96 in good condition, 307 in fair and three, or one per cent, in poor condition.

The West Side neighborhood has 839 buildings, including 50 in good, 661 in fair and 128, or 15 per cent, in poor condition.

The Centre Street neighborhood has 286 buildings and 16 are in good, 166 in fair and 104, or 36 per cent, in poor condition.

The Central business district has 512 buildings, including 38 in good, 279 in fair and 195, or 38 per cent, in poor condition.

All told, Cumberland has 7,940 buildings, the survey showed. A total of 1,085 were judged to be in good condition, 5,690 in fair and 1,165 in poor condition.

The planning firm pointed out that "poor building conditions are referred to as blight, a sign of economic distress which can spread over large areas unless effective steps are taken to prevent it."

Democrats Add Oldtown Rally To Schedule

A Democratic rally at the Oldtown Fire Hall at 8 p. m. Saturday has been added to an already crowded schedule for the final few days of the election campaign.

John Zapf is serving as chairman of arrangements for the rally.

Delegate Thomas F. Conlon Jr., who seeks re-election to the House of Delegates from Allegany County, will preside at the rally. He will introduce all of the county candidates present.

Matthew J. Mullaney, chairman of the County Board of Election Supervisors, will speak in behalf of the state-wide Democratic ticket.

Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the rally.
